Bittersweet Christmas For Some

By MARY LEYDECKER

Christmas 1974 in Marin was both joyous and bittersweet — with midnight Masses, family gatherings and visits to those less fortunate being the order of the day.

For the lonely and poor, there was a turkey dinner with all the trimmings at the Whistlestop in San Rafael.

About 125 dinners were served, according to Richard Dressling, chairman of the project, who said that diners of all ages, including some children, came in groups, couples or singly.

"It was a great success," he said, with volunteers putting on the affair. In addition to the dinners served at the center, 37 meals were delivered to shut-ins, some as far away as Marin City, by more volunteers. "They (the volunteer drivers) were very enthusiastic," about the response from the recipients, he said.

Four leftover turkeys and some other food were donated to Marin Emergency Housing in San Rafael, Dressling added. The new facility was the scene of Christmas yesterday for 19 homeless persons who found shelter there.

Out at San Quentin the day's grim monotony was relieved for some of the inmates as about 400 to 600 visitors flocked to the prison to see loved ones. Only those receiving visitors and a few honor inmates were allowed to leave their cells, though, as the institution remained on total lockup following last week's violence which left two men dead.

"Everything went well," prison information officer William D. Nyberg said, as the lined-up visitors all made their way eventually to visiting rooms. The women guests were given pinecone corsages that had been made by a committee of six convicts, Nyberg said.

And the children, waiting to see inmate relatives, received sacks of "goodies," while all the men in the prison were given Christmas packages of fruit and nuts, distributed by guards.

Today, the prisoners were to be served their traditional turkey dinner, postponed from Christmas because officials said they could not allow visiting as well as the dinner under HAPPY HOLIDAYS — William Corsi, a garbageman in the happiest tradition, gives a big grin as he hoists a pail full of holiday trash. Not all holiday trimmings wind up in the pail, and his decorated Marin Sanitary Service truck, which took him a whole day to adorn with mottos of Merry Christmas and Happy New Year and all other kinds of decoration, brought joy to many San Rafael residents. "Everyone waved as I passed," Corsi said.

Prison Rebels Free Some Of Hostages

Night-And-Day Bargaining In Federal Reformatory

LORTON, Va. (UPI) — Rebellious maximum security inmates at Lorton Reformatory today released two of nine hostages and met with lawyers on their demand for a guarantee against prosecution.

A third guard was released earlier from among the original 10 persons seized when prisoners armed with butcher knives took over the dining room Christmas night.

A tentative agreement hammered out about 7 a.m. today included a guarantee that there would be no administrative reprisals and no transfers to other prisons of inmates involved in the uprising. The leaders wanted the wording changed to include a specific guarantee against criminal prosecution.

Lawyers for the inmates said they were attempting to work out such a guarantee with U.S. Attorney David H. Hopkins of Virginia's Eastern District.

Authorities had said that all the hostages were prison guards, but then identified one of the freed hostages as a kitchen attendant.

In a statement, leaders for about 75 inmates involved in the siege said the two men were released "to show the good side of us." Lorton officials said one man was suffering from a hernia while the other had a headache.

Roy Gerard, deputy director of the U.S. Bureau of Prison, assured the prisoners that no reprisals would be taken by prison authorities but refused to promise that the inmates involved would not be prosecuted.

Two attorneys from Washington were summoned by the inmates to discuss the agreement. As a sign of the decreasing tension, 18 inmates left the dining hall and returned to their cells.

The leaders of the rebellion were unaware that while they were negotiating one of four prisoners who fled over the prison wall had been fatally wounded in an escape attempt.

About a dozen inmates had rushed the prison wall and those unable to get out returned to the dining hall where the disturbance began among the maximum security facility's 280 prisoners.

Seizing 10 as hostages, the prisoners demanded a meeting with District of Columbia prison officials who operate the prison 30 miles south of Washington.

The tentative agreement reached after night-long negotiations offered guarantees that inmates would not be transferred from Lorton to federal prisons, better visiting hours and restoration of a furlough program canceled recently by Attorney General William B. Saxbe.

Seven reporters and about 15 members of inmate families watched during the negotiations held in a calm atmosphere with only occasional shouting while 70 to 75 inmates guarded the hostages in a basement.

As a good faith gesture the inmates about 2 a.m. released one of the 10 guards, Rogers Lee Porter, 30. Porter said none of the hostages had been mistreated or threatened.

The sprawling prison complex, located on federal land, has five facilities with a total population of about 2,100 prisoners.

Explosive Drama For White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A man who crashed his car through the White House gates yesterday and threatened to blow himself up within 20 feet od the North Portico had been known to the Secret Service previously, authorities said.

Marshall Hill Fields, whose late father was a U.S. diplomat, was being held at a mental hospital for observation today after keeping police and Secret Service men at bay for four hours with what looked like explosives tied to his body.

"The Secret Service would have taken a lot stronger action if the First Family was at home," said agent George Cosper. "It's Christmas Day. We felt some compassion to save the man."

Agents with high-powered weapons hid in nearby bushes and behind pillars of the portico during the incident, but no shots were fired.

Fields, 25, surrendered quietly and the bombs turned out to be highway flares. Wires hanging from his black gloves were harmless, as were three packages he set down on the ground near him.

Fields, dressed in Arab garb, speaking Arabic and English and claiming he was "wired to dynamite," finally gave up after a black radio station broadcast his demand to meet with the Pakistani ambassador. The demand was not met.

For the preceding two hours, he negotiated face-to-face from 15 feet with Secret Service official George Drescher, who said much of Fields' conversation was about Islam.

Secret Service spokesman William Hawthorne said Fields had been "of interest" to the agency before yesterday, but he would not elaborate.

The Washington Post quoted a Secret Service spokesman as saying "he was of protective interest to us. He came to our attention because we thought he could be a possible problem towards the people we protect."

Fields' father, Marshall L. Fields, was an official of the Agency for International Development and had served in several Arabic-speaking countries.

The elder Fields died of cancer in May.

The Fields' live in a middle income neighborhood in Silver Spring, Md., a suburban area where Fields recently worked as a taxi driver. He identified himself as Abdul Rahim.

The Post said at least three news media had received material from Fields indicating he planned to renounce his citizenship on Dec. 25 and seek political asylum in a third world country.

The Secret Service committed Fields to the maximum security ward of St. Elizabeth's hospital for observation, with no charges filed against him.

President Ford, vacationing with his family in Vail, Colo., was informed of the incident. He said he would not "pass judgment" now on the adequacy of White House security.

It was the second time in 10 months that the White House grounds were forcibly breached. On Feb. 17, an Army private stole a helicopter from Ft. Meade, Md., and buzzed the White House, finally landing on the South Lawn in a hail of shotgun fire.

Yesterday's incident began at 7 a.m. when Fields, driving west in his two-door brown Chevrolet, started to make what White House guards thought was a U-turn.

Instead he rammed the car throagh the iron northwest gate and drove up to within 20 feet of the mansion's door.

The drama ended as Christmas bells from a church across the street tolled joyous music and the radio station broadcast his demand. Fields then waved a white flag, dismantled his devices and surrendered.

High Speed Crash Kills Petaluman

Yesterday was the last Christmas for an 18-year-old Petaluma youth who sped to his death in his car.

Richard L. Barboni, of 759 Hicks Valley Road, was declared dead on arrival at Hillcrest Hospital, where he was rushed by ambulance after the 8:48 p.m. crash on Petaluma Boulevard South between H and I streets.

Witnesses told police Barboni's northbound auto had been careening along the boulevard, at speeds between 60 and 90 miles an hour, when it pulled into the right lane to pass another car.

At about that time, the witnesses said, Barboni apparently saw another vehicle coming onto the boulevard from a side street, and he either swerved to avoid it or lost control, veering off the road into a utility pole.

THE ALCOHOL STRUGGLE

Al-Anon Helps Relatives Cope

By GEORGE NEVIN
(Fourth of nine articles)

"Thank God I married an alcoholic so I could find Al-Anon."

Coming from the wife of a man arrested six times in 10 years for drunken driving, that statement may seem steeped in irony.

But Mrs. F means what she says. There isn't a trace of bitterness in her voice as she recounts how she coped with a man who couldn't hold a job and who seemed to spend money just on liquor, car insurance, lawyers and fines.

It took Mrs. F eight years of marriage to find Al-Anon, an organization which helps the relatives of alcoholics.

Al-Anon, said Mrs. F, helps the relatives of alcoholics with problems of their own making as well as with those created by the alcoholic. It helps them understand the causes of alcoholism and boosts their self-image by stressing that it is the alcoholic, not his family, that is the cause of the stress. It relieves the family members of their heavy burden of guilt.

It was eight years of working the night shift, then coming home and driving her husband — who had lost his drivers license — to work, to his probation officer and to jail.

Eight years of sleep grabbed an hour here, 45 minutes there; eight years of midnight trips to the Marin County Jail to post bail; eight years of fears that her husband would never come home again.

Today, Mrs. F and her alcoholic husband are divorced. But, said the tall, attractive brunette, the suffering was worth it, because two years before her marriage ended she found Al-Anon.

"Before we were married," she related, sitting at the dining room of her North Marin home, "his aunt warned me that he drank a lot. But I thought he would change once he settled down. That's the story of all alcoholics' wives.

"For the first two years he drank mainly on weekends and could spend his whole paycheck in one night. He'd cash it at a bar and just stay there. We were living off my check."

One afternoon in 1960, the legal nightmare started. Mrs. F said she got a telephone call from her husband. "I've just had an accident," he told her.

Arrested for drunken driving, he was taken to jail. For the first of five times, she bailed him out.

He lost his license for six months, and she chauffered him around — to work, to home, to see his probation officer.

Eight months later, she continued, he had another accident, this time in a new car, and another arrest. Hard on its heels followed a third arrest.

(The maximum sentence for drunken driving — through seldom meted out — is six months in jail plus a $500 fine for each offense. A second conviction carries a mandatory five-day sentence and a third conviction, 15 days.)

This time, Mrs. F said, her husband's license was revoked for three years. By now, the couple was buying a house, and Mrs. F said, "I came down hard on him, saying we could lose the house if he drove. So he didn't. Before that, he had been driving even without a license."

All this time, their insurance rates were climbing dramatically, even though Mr. F was

Ford Says Gas Tax Is 'Dead'

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — President Ford today said an increase in the gasoline tax is "about as dead as any proposal I know" but said he would discuss all options with his energy advisers when they arrive tomorrow at this Rocky Mountain winter retreat.

Ford also said he did not rule out the possibility that either parts or all of the inquiry into charges that the Central Intelligence Agency spied on American citizens would be made public at some later date.

The report, based on a rapid investigation by CIA Director William E. Colby, was being flown to Colorado from Washington after being reviewed by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Ford made the remarks in a mini-press conference at the foot of the Vail Mountain slopes as he began his fifth day of skiing during his holiday stay.

The question of a gasoline tax increase keeps cropping up, much as Ford has tried to put it down. Some of his key advisers have recommended such a levy to reduce oil consumption but Ford has said it would be inequitable.

U.S., Israel Accused Of Plotting War, Seizure Of Arab Oil Fields

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat said in an interview published today in Beirut that Israel is planning a blitzkrieg offensive against Syria and south Lebanon. He said the United States will seize the opportunity to occupy Arab oil fields.

Arafat's statements to an Indian correspondent were distributed here by the guerrilla news agency WAFA.

"There is an American-Israeli conspiracy," Arafat said. "Israel will launch a blitzkrieg war against Syria and south Lebanon, while the United States seizes the opportunity to occupy Arab oil wells.

"The American-Israeli plan is being implemented now," he said. "Joint military maneuvers are being held in the American desert, with the specific aim of training American soldiers in desert warfare."

Arafat said although Israel is "still licking the wounds" it suffered in the October 1973 Middle East war, it is "preparing feverishly for a fifth war" against Syria.

A limited war has broken out already between Israel and south Lebanon, he said. "The situation could turn into an international catastrophe in six months."

Tel Aviv news reports today said that a majority of Israel's cabinet privately favors giving back most of the occupied West Bank of Jordan to King Hussein as part of a Middle East peace settlement.

The reports came as Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said Israel was mentally and militarily prepared for another war with the Arabs should one be forced on it.

Tiburon Completes Plan For Open Space

By PAUL LIBERATORE

A plan calling for 21 acres of land for open space, parks and community recreation in downtown Tiburon has been completed by the city.

The plan, developed by the parks and recreation commission, has been sent to Madrone Associates, the San Rafael firm working on the final environmental impact report for the controversial Sequoia Pacific Development proposal for the downtown area.

It includes a six-acre waterfront park, a community center and three acres for playing fields, a one-acre formal entrance park to the downtown and a two-acre extension of Richardson Bay Park. It also recommends preservation of about six acres of marshland in its natural state.

The plan revises the city's downtown plan adopted in 1970 and will be used by Madrone Associates in making recommendations for the parks and recreation element of the environmental impact report for the Sequoia Pacific proposal.

A major change from previous city proposals is in the size of the waterfront park. Earlier plans suggested only "a thin strip" or open waterfront in the downtown area. "We now strongly recommend keeping Tiburon's entire remaining downtown waterfront open from one end to the other with no allowances for changing the configuration to produce land fill, yacht facilities or commercial development," according to the new plan.

Officer's Hunch Wrong But Leads To Arrest

A San Anselmo policeman's original hunch proved wrong Tuesday, but it still led him to arrest a man now booked on suspicion of grand theft.

Dave Townsel Jr., 28, of 49 Buckelew Drive, Marin City, was caught driving a stolen auto and was to appear today in Marin Municipal Court after failing to post $2,500 bail.

According to police reports, the officer saw the 1963 car did not have the type license plate normally issued in 1963 and, suspecting possible failure to register the auto, stopped it.

The registration proved to be valid, but the check revealed the car had been stolen from San Francisco earlier that day.

SHE'S 86. . .AND BREATHLESS AFTER A CHAT WITH FORD

The call was from President Ford in Vail, Colo., congratulating her on her 86th birthday.

"I was so shocked to get a call from the President," she said. "I could hardly say anything. He just chatted along. I just tried to hold my breath. I didn't know what to say and how to say it."

Mrs. Hall said the call was prompted by her 29-year-old granddaughter, Joy Chiles, who is on the White House press staff.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Egyptian Military Hero Dies

Ismail

Ismail, the architect of Egypt's surprise assault across the Suez Canal at the start of the war, died yesterday in London at the age of 57. A special Egyptian plane brought his body back to Cairo.

The semi-official newspaper Al Ahram said Ismail died of lung cancer. He had been undergoing medical treatment in London since last month.

In October, 1972, Sadat appointed him war minister and commander-in-chief of the armed forces, with the specific job of preparing for war.

Egypt's armed forces took Israel's troops by surprise in October, 1973, attacking on Yom Kippur, the solemn Jewish fast day.

Girl Loses Leg

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Doctors in a two-hour operation today amputated the right leg of a 16-year-old Jacksonville, Fla., girl wounded in an Arab guerrilla grenade attack against her tourist bus Sunday.

Prof. Meyer Makin, head of Hadassah Hospital's orthopedic department, described the condition of DeJean Replogle as normal and "as expected after an operation such as this."

Army Accused

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said yesterday the Army is advertising for manufacturers of deadly binary nerve gas despite the Senate's ratification of the 1925 Geneva Protocol outlawing chemical warfare.

Aspin, member of the House Armed Services Committee and a former Pentagon economic adviser, said in his statement the Army was violating the Defense Appropriation Act which eliminated $5.8 million for the production of this form of chemical warfare.

The Army had no immediate comment on Aspin's charge.

Binary nerve gas is produced when two relatively harmless chemical compounds are mixed together. The two agents are delivered in an artillery shell in which the mixing process takes place during flight.

Who Stole Yule?

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Gernie G. Dixson, 40, told police he and his family went to bed about 3 a.m. Christmas Day and awoke five hours later to find someone had stolen every present from beneath the Christmas tree.

Dixson said about 40 presents were gone, along with a stereo system and clock radio.

Blaze Kills Four

KINNELON, N.J. (UPI) — Police say an overheated Christmas tree was apparently responsible for a Christmas Day fire that killed four members of a family and gutted their split-level suburban home.

Police identified the victims as Michael Knapp, 42, an electronics engineer, his wife Frances, 40, her mother, Sophie Marshall, 72, and son Terry, 10.

Two other sons, Tim, 15, and Jim, 17, jumped to the ground from their second-story bedroom and were listed in good condition at Chilton Hospital in Pompton Plains, N.J.

Town Captured

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist infantry backed by tanks and artillery captured a county capital north of Saigon today, leaving the government in control of only one town in beleaguered Phuoc Long Province.

Military sources said the Communists overran Dong Xoai, a town of 5,000 some 50 miles north of Saigon.

In a move that helped the capture of Dong Xoai, military sources said Communist gunners fired a barrage of 37 rockets this morning at the Bien Hoa airbase.

The rockets knocked out five government warplanes scheduled to bomb around Dong Xoai in an effort to stem the Communist assault, the sources said.

Japanese Oil Spill

TOKYO (UPI) — A leak from a petrochemical complex has turned the scenic Inland Sea into a huge oil slick and has polluted some of Japan's richest fishing waters.

Maritime Safety Agency officials in Kobe said today they expect the oil slick, which is 81 miles long and 15 miles wide, to last for another five days. The Inland Sea lies between the main Japanese islands of Honshu and Shikoku.

The ooze, which blighted the area's beaches, destroyed fish as well as the seaweed upon which the fish feed.

The worst oil pollution in Inland Sea history began yesterday when 18,750 barrels of heavy oil leaked out of Mitsubishi Oil Co.'s refinery.

Saigon Protest

SAIGON (UPI) — About 200 Catholics, lawyers and newsmen demonstrated in downtown Saigon today with demands that President Nguygen Van Thieu resign. They also protested the trial of four newspaper publishers for allegedly slandering the president.

The Catholics are accusing Theiu and Huong of covering up corruption. The attorneys claim Thieu is so high-handed that he constantly violates both the Constitution and the law, and the newspaper publishers contend they were not guilty of slander in printing Catholic allegations of corruption against Thieu.

Ex-Minister Jailed

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — A magistrate's court today sentenced British legislator John Stonehouse to a week in jail for entering Australia illegally.

Australian Immigration Minister Clyde Cameron announced plans to use the period to consider a petition by Stonehouse to remain in Australia.

The former British cabinet minister, arrested in Melbourne after disappearing last month from a Miami hotel, appealed to Magistrate Norman McCarble for permission to begin a new life in Australia.

Governor Dishes Up For Poor

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Gov. David Hall, in his last Christmas as the Oklahoma chief executive, and his wife, helped dish out 2,500 pounds of turkey and all the trimmings to about 3,500 poor persons yesterday.

The free meal has been held annually for the past 29 years by former state legislator Red Andrews.

Russ Loft Fourth Space Laboratory

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union today orbited the unmanned Salyut 4 scientific station in what could be a further effort to smooth the way to a successful space linkup with American astronauts next July.

An announcement by the Tass news agency said all Salyut's equipment was functioning normally and ground stations in the Soviet Union as well as a monitoring vessel in the Atlantic Ocean were tracking the laboratory in its earth orbit.

The aim, it said, is "to further test the design, onboard systems and equipment of orbital stations and to conduct scientific and technical studies and experiments in conditions of space flight."

Judging by a reading of previous Soviet experiments, this could indicate a new attempt will be made by cosmonauts to dock with Salyut 4 which the Russians named the "Academician Sergei Korolev."

In April 1971, cosmonauts from Soyuz 10 docked with Salyut 1, then three cosmonauts from Soyuz 11 went aboard the Salyut vehicle — similar to the American Spacelab — in June that year.

Salyut 2 was a failure and no attempt was made to dock with it, but cosmonauts from Soyuz 14 went aboard the 20-ton, three-room Salyut 3 and stayed there two weeks.

The trouble-plagued Soyuz 15 failed in repeated attempts to dock with Salyut 3, which is still in orbit, and Syouz 16 cosmonauts, who were aloft from Dec. 2-8 did not attempt a docking with the Salyut but used an "imitating ring," to simulate the planned link-up with the American Apollo craft.

Afterwards the flight crew said the docking tests were successful.

Konstantin Bushuyev, project director for the joint Soyuz-Apollo mission, indicated there would be no further Soyuz flights in connection with Apollo, but added "This does not mean there will not be any more Soyuz launches before the joint fight."

Indians Begin Shooting Hearings

EAGLE BAY, N.Y. (UPI) — Nine chiefs of the Mohawk Nation began a hearing in the Ganienkey longhouse yesterday on several shootings which have occurred since a group of Indians laid claim to state-owned land in the Adirondacks.

Kakwirakeron, a spokesman for the approximately 65 Indians who have been encamped at an abandoned girls camp at nearby Moss Lake since May 12, would release few details about the hearing. He said it would resume today.

Kittikachorn's Sister-In-Law Said Kidnaped

BANGKOK (UPI) — The sister-in-law of former Prime Minister Thanoo Kittikachorn was kidnaped briefly today in northern Thailand, police said.

Ravi Kittikachorn, wife of police Maj. Gen. Sa-Nga Kittikachorn, Thanom's brother, was seized by four gunmen about noon from Plantation Home in Lampun, 360 miles north of here. She was freed unharmed three hours later when police halted her abductors' car at a roadblock.

Authorities were still questioning the men arrested but could give no motive for the kidnaping, police said.

Thanom and his wife fled into exile in Boston, Mass., 13 months ago, after 10 days of student demonstrations brought down his military government.

Third Candidate In Mayor Race

Benjamin F. Walton, a San Anselmo swimming pool specialist, is seeking election as mayor of the City of San Rafael.

Mayor C. Paul Bettini has filed for reelection to the post. Also seeking election as city mayor is Joan Fox of 127 Humboldt Street.

Walton, 45, said he is seeking the post because he had thought Bettini would run unopposed "and I didn't want to see him run unchallenged." In addition, Walton said seeking election will provide him with a forum to "inform people" and air his ideas on city redevelopment.

Walton called redevelopment a major issue, and said current proposals for major shopping centers in the city are "unrealistic."

He said he supports a facelift of the downtown area and traffic and parking improvements. "I don't think Northgate (shopping center) is doing so well that we can afford another shopping center." Should a new center be built, it should be located on Highway 17 across from the San Quentin disposal site where "there is plenty of parking and lots of access," he said.

BENJAMIN F. WALTON
Seeks mayor's post

Walton said he would support a pedestrian mall downtown on condition that an "expressway" be built linking Highway 101 with Fairfax. Such a move would remove through traffic from the downtown area, he said.

Walton also called for a high four-lane bridge across the San Rafael Canal, linking Bellam Boulevard with South San Pedro Road. This would also ease traffic flow downtown, he said.

He said parking meters downtown should serve cars for a minimum of three hours. He said that he is uncertain about provision for low and moderate income housing in San Rafael.

"Though I'm not informed totally on all the issues, I will be in the next several weeks," he said.

Walton, a native of Salt Lake City, is a 15-year resident of San Rafael. He lives at 165 Park Street with his wife, Helen. The couple has three children.

Walton works for The Pool Scene in San Anselmo.

He first came to public attention in 1968 when he circulated petitions to save the old courthouse building on Courthouse Square. He ran unsuccessfully for the San Rafael City Council in 1969 and 1971.

Tiny Child's Life Saved In Nursery

The life of a tiny infant from Humboldt County has been saved by special equipment at Marin General Hospital's intensive care nursery, according to hospital officials.

The child, Ginnie McFarland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McFarland of McKinleyville, was reported in good condition today at the hospital, where she was flown shortly after her birth in Arcata last Friday.

The baby is suffering from hyaline membrane disease, a malady which claimed the lives of five of the sextuplets born to a San Jose woman earlier this month.

Little Ginnie, who was flown to Marin County in a private plane, was placed in a Baby Bird ventilator at the Marin facility in order to aid breathing. There is no such equipment in the Eureka area, according to Ray K. Bolinger, Marin General administrator.

GROUNDED — It's tough on a man when he loses his driver's license because of a drunken driving conviction, but the difficulties don't stop there. Often an even greater strain is placed on his wife, who suddenly becomes his chauffeur.

THE ALCOHOL STRUGGLE

Al-Anon Helps Relatives

not driving. They've just begun to level off this year, two years after the divorce, she said.

Mr. F got his license back in 1968, and, said Mrs. F, "I continusouly worried for a year and a half that he was going to get picked up or have another accident."

In 1969, he was arrested three times in quick succession. Mr. F lost his license again for another three years and had to serve 75 days in jail.

"The last time," recalled Mrs. F, "I refuse to bail him out. I called the gal from Al-Anon and told her, and she said, 'Good, you're finally learning. Let him sweat. Let him take the consequences for what he did."

By 1972, Mrs. F said, "I'd had it. His drinking was getting worse and he never worked. I was still going to Al-Anon. He said I was getting brainwashed because I made him accept the consequences of his acts, and I refused to argue with him.

"When I didn't react to him he'd get mad and throw things at me and our son. That's when I said it was all over."

Mr. F moved back in with his mother — who also drinks heavily — and seldom sees his ex-wife or their child, although they live in the same community, she said.

Her husband isn't working much now, just an odd job here and there, said Mrs. F. He won't get his license back for another year, but that doesn't bother him, she said: — "he only lives a block from a bar, so he just walks there."

"I still go to Al-Anon once or twice a year when I feel the need for reinforcement or when I get depressed.

Mrs. F said her daughter, whose memory of those days when Mr. F still lived in the house has grown fuzzy with time, sometimes blames her mother for the divorce.

"She thinks I could have tried harder to make it work," she said. "But trying wouldn't have helped. His alcoholism was what separated us, and he never wanted to learn the reasons for his alcoholism."

"I couldn't have gone through with the divorce if it hadn't been for Al-Anon. It taught me to look within myself for my problems, and not to have resentment or bitterness.

"It taught me to make decisions and not to worry about what people think of me; to be happy even though my home life wasn't the happiest. It showed me the way.

"Thank God I married an alcoholic so I could find Al-Anon."

Senator Blasts Military Study

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., demanded today that Chairman Curtis W. Tarr prove that his Defense Manpower Commission would yield savings through its recommendations on military manpower.

"After 13 months of existence, the commission is still looking for a mission and appears well on the way to becoming a $2.1 million mistake," Proxmire said.

"I ask that you, as chairman of the Defense Manpower Commission, show concrete proof that the findings of your study have or will yield a two-fold return of savings derived from your recommendations."

The commission was established in 1973 to study the efficiency and manpower needs in the military.

West Street, with the waterfront park lying between the road and the shoreline.

In addition, the park plan calls for restoration of the old Donahue building on the waterfront and enlargement of the downtown ferry landing.

The downtown playing fields and 2.2-acre community center would be for organized recreation and would include a teen and an adult center plus courts for games, such as tennis.

The freshwater marsh in the downtown should be preserved for day camping, nature study and similar outdoor activities, according to the plan.

It also recommends replacing the new harbor drive proposed by Sequoia Pacific with an extension of Richardson Bay Park for use by bicyclists, hikers and joggers.

A two-acre municipal garden is proposed for raising and selling vegetables, fruits and flowers. The garden also could provide part-time jobs for students, housewives and senior citizens, the plan suggests.

The formal entrance park would include turfed areas for lawn bowling, croquet and other games for the elderly.

The Sequoia Pacific proposal for downtown land owned by Southern Pacific Railroad includes condominiums, offices, shops, a parking garage, a conference center and inn, a new city hall, a marina plus parks and open space. The city hall and garage would be financed by the city and the remaining parts of the project would be paid for by the developer.

Southland Fires Keep Firemen Busy On Holiday

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Fires in an apartment complex, two homes and on board a fishing barge kept firefighters busy Christmas, but no injuries were reported.

More than 50 tenants were safely evacuated from a Van Nuys apartment complex when flames enveloped the roof early yesterday. Firemen were still investigating the cause of the blaze, which left nine of the building's 20 units uninhabitable. Damage was estaimted at $200,000.

Chimney sparks were also listed as the probable cause of a fire in a Reseda home.

In Long Beach, a converted ferry boat capsized shortly after midnight after it caught fire while moored a mile off Little Naples. The barge sunk in 35 feet of water, leaving the vessel to burn through the night.

There was no one on board the vessel. The cause of the blaze was not immediately determined.

Hearing On Development Ideas Slated

A hearing on possible uses of some $8 million in federal community development act funds will be held next Thursday by Marin County Administrator John F. Barrows.

The session, slated to run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the planning commission meeting room, is to provide residents an opportunity to participate in developing uses for the money, Barrows said.

Cities, special districts and community groups have been asked to present their proposal for the funds.

Barrows said he also plans to explain the provisions of the new law, which will funnel more than $8 million into Marin over the next six years.

Marin's 11 cities and the county have joined together to qualify for the money, though San Rafael and Novato have demanded a percentage share based on population over the next six years.

Christmas Calls

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Nearly five million telephone calls were made on Christmas Day in California, the Pacific Telephone Company said today.

Special Meeting Set On Land Purchase

The Novato Flood Control Zone Advisory Board will hold a special meeting at 6 p.m. today in the conference room at the Novato City Hall to consider the purchase of 102 acres lying between Novato Creek and Olive Avenue.

The district has a tentative agreement to buy the land at $165,000 from the Nunes heirs for future use as a ponding area.

Mrs. Rosen Files For Reelection

Ruth Walerstein Rosen, elected to the Dixie School District Board in 1971, has filed for reelection as a district trustee.

The terms of Mrs. Rosen and colleague Patricia Gryson are expiring. Mrs. Gryson has also filed for reelection.

The Dixie ballot will also list a measure that proposes to boost by $150 the amount of money the district may spend per pupil.

Mrs. Rosen, 37, a former teacher and currently a full-time law student at the University of San Francisco, said her teaching experience enables her to "represent a certain perspective in the community not fully represented by any other board member." She described her experience on the board as an asset in itself, since "it takes about two years to learn what the board is all about."

RUTH W. ROSEN
Reelection bid

She cited citizen participation in district affairs as a major concern, saying she wants to include the community "in both the process and planning" of the district board.

She said passage of the district's $150 revenue increase measure on March 4 is "quite critical to simply maintain the program we have." She said she is optimistic about passage of the measure, but added failure of the measure will result in program cuts and lower salary boosts for teachers.

As for collective bargaining, "I'm not for teachers having both collective bargaining and tenure."

She said her educational philosophy is one that is based on an "awareness of the differing needs of different children." She said she supports a flexible educational program that combines both alternative and traditional approaches to learning.

She said the district administration "stands room for improvement in bringing in new educational ideas and in communication with the community."

She also called for study of "creative ways of revitalizing teachers and the classroom without spending a lot of money."

Mrs. Rosen is a native of Detroit, Mich. She is an eight-year resident of San Rafael and lives with her three children — all enrolled in the Dixie school system — at 5 Mount Hood Court.

She received a bachelor's degree in English from the University of Wisconsin, and won a master's degree in education from John Hopkins University. She did postgraduate work in Montessori education at Xavier University.

She worked as an elementary teacher for five years, serving in school systems in Baltimore, Cincinnati and South San Francisco.

She is a member of Marin Alternative, Another Mother for Peace, the National Women's Political Caucus, the Dixie Human Relations Council and Marin Jewish Community Center. She has served on the board of the Marin Hills Nursery School and as a volunteer tutor at Marin County Juvenile Hall.

She is currently studying law and teaches belly dancing at the University of San Francisco.

Clean Air Guidelines Put Off 6 Months

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency today announced a six-month postponement in implementation of new clean air rules that would have a nationwide impact on construction of major shopping centers, sports stadiums, airports and highways.

Russell E. Train, head of the EPA, said the new regulations, orginally scheduled to take effect Jan. 1, would be pushed back to June 30 because of "substantial public debate and misunderstanding" that has developed over the guidelines.

The new regulations require EPA approval for the construction of "indirect sources" of air pollution — those that attract a large volume of motor vehicles.

The EPA says that if the facilities are improperly designed or located they "may cause violations of air quality standards because of motor vehicle congestion they cause."

Train said that the regulations will be discussed with congressional committees when they review the entire Clean Air Act early next year.

"I am convinced that some type of indirect source control is essential if we are to meet and maintain the health-protective air quality standards for pollutants primarily caused by motor vehicles," Train said.

"My action should give these committees an opportunity to review this important issue in an orderly fashion without the immediate pressures of a Jan. 1 deadline."

Several states already have or are planning to establish indirect source programs, the EPA said.

Sirhan Still Hopes For New Probes

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sirhan B. Sirhan, convicted assassin of Robert Kennedy, issued a Christmas Day message from San Quentin prison expressing his gratitude for recent requests for another investigation of the slaying.

Sirhan issued the message from the prison, where he is serving a life sentence for the 1968 shooting, through his attorney, Godfrey Isaac.

Isaac said he would file a writ of error with the California Supreme Court next month asking for a reopening of the case, and hopefully a new trial, based on a 1970 report by a criminologist who challenged the ballistic work performed by the Los Angeles Police Department on the gun supposedly used to kill Kennedy.

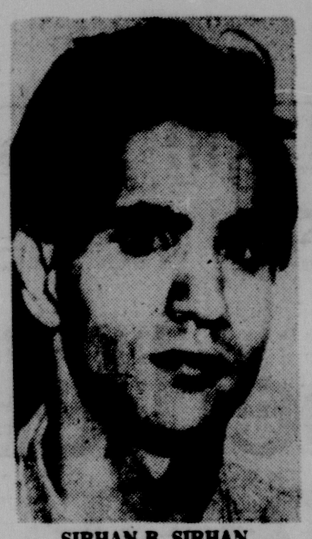
The report, by William Harper, a Pasadena ballistic expert, gave new fuel to the theory that a "second gun" fired the bullet that lodged in Kennedy's brain and caused death.

Harper said in an interview last week, however, that the condition of the bullet was so poor that it was not possible to say one way or another whether the one that killed Kennedy came from another gun.

"I am filled with feelings of hope and humility that I may some day soon have my freedom," Sirhan said in his message. "At this season I wish peace for the entire world."

Sirhan testified at his trial that he could not remember firing the shots that killed Kennedy, although dozens of witnesses said they saw him shooting at the senator from a distance of a few feet. A .22 caliber pistol was wrested from his hand at the scene.

Sirhan testified that he had several drinks and had been looking at himself in a mirror



SIRHAN B. SIRHAN
Christmas message

when he went into a trance. He said he came to reality after Kennedy had been shot and found himself holding a gun.

Former New York congressman Allard Lowenstein and others have called for a refiring of Sirhan's gun and further ballistics tests to determine whether the bullet removed from Kennedy's head came from the gun that Sirhan was holding.

Hijacker's Crash Demand Thwarted

ROME (UPI) — "Are you sure we are over Rome?" the nervous, unshaven hijacker asked. He then ordered the pilot to crash the jumbo jet into the Italian capital.

But the crew of the Air India plane, carrying 155 persons, overpowered the air pirate and landed the Boeing 747 safely at Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport.

Airport police arrested the hijacker, identified as Jozif Homolov, 30, a Czech-born Canadian. Officials said he was mostly incoherent but made clear his motives were not political.

The drama began over the Mediterranean yesterday morning, during an Air India flight from Bombay to New York with stops in Beirut, Rome, Paris and London.

The long-haired hijacker, wearing a stained green sweater, burst into the cockpit of the jetliner as the plane flew over Athens.

The pilot, Capt. A.M. Kapur, said the hijacker threatened him with a small pocket knife and said there was a bomb aboard the jet.

"Do whatever I say or else I will destroy everything," the hijacker was quoted as saying. "Carry me to Rome. Don't change altitude."

Kapur, a husky, mustachioed man of 50, said he pressed a hijack signal alerting control towers in the area but did not tell the passengers.

Homolov, nervously refusing to sit or to eat, rejected attempts by the pilot and a Czech-speaking stewardess to question him during the flying time to Rome — more than one hour.

"Are you sure we are over Rome?" he said as the aircraft circled over the Italian capital. "Show me St. Peter's."

He ordered the pilot to put on full speed and crash into the city, but the copilot signaled two stewards and the crew managed to jump the hijacker.

Wrist Wrestling's Legal Twist

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A Los Angeles promoter is attempting to steal wrist wrestling from Petaluma, the sport's Southern Sonoma organizers have claimed in a Superior Court suit here.

TAS Management Corporation and the World's Championship Wrist Wrestling Association, the Petaluma organizations which control and sanction tournaments around the country, are suing promoter Steven Simon, who does business as the World Professional Armwrestling Association, and Marvin Cohen.

The suit charges that Cohen, a vice president of the Petaluma association, gave inside information to Simon enabling him to set up his rival group.

The Los Angeles promoter has organized a tournament for that city's Busch Gardens arena on Saturday.

The Petalumans say they sanctioned Cohen to set up a tournament in Los Angeles, but he later told them he was unable to obtain use of an arena.

In fact, the Petalumans charge, Cohen and Simon obtained use of the Busch Arena and then set up a tournament on their own, coercing champions from the Petaluma organization to appear by threatening them with adverse publicity.

Cohen and Simon are to appear at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow before Sonoma Superior Court Judge John Moskowitz, who has been asked by the Petalumans to issue an order stopping the Los Angeles tournament.

No Explosion Before Air Crash

MATURIN, Venezuela (UPI) — A Venezuelan DC9 jetliner that crashed Dec. 22, killing all 72 persons aboard, did not explode in flight, Venezuelan investigators said today.

The plane which crashed shortly after taking off from Maturin Airport on a national flight to Caracas, disintegrated on impact at an estimated speed of 620 miles an hour, they said.

Eight Candidates Seeking San Rafael Council Spots

Eight candidates for election to two seats on the San Rafael City Council had filed by 11:30 a.m. today. Filing was to close at noon.

At stake are the seats of councilmen John A. Miskimen and Fred E. Jensen. Both incumbents have filed.

Others seeking election to the seats are John A. Starkweather, Anise M. Turina, Norris M. Rawles, Richard C. Fox, Edward Bott, and Peter K. Kehrlein.

Miskimen, Kehrlein and Bott, are the latest to file. Bott, a retired Army Intelligence officer, could not be reached today for comment.

Miskimen, 42, today said he is seeking reelection since "I think I can still makd a contribution to the council." He noted the city "is in the middle of a lot of things . . . The general plan has been written but not implemented, and redevelopment is still in the planning stages."

He called redevelopment a major issue. "I'm in favor of doing what we said we were going to do — which is improve the parking, traffic and appearance of the downtown." In addition, "I think we do have to introduce new retail stores downtown," he said.

Miskimen said he supports plans for a new shopping center downtown, but only if such a facility "can be integrated with existing businesses." He said new retail stores appear appropriate at the foot of Fourth Street, as well as in other locations along Fourth. Blending new stores into Fourth Street would generate more foot traffic along the thoroughfare, he noted.

He said he opposes a pedestrian mall along Fourth Street, "You can't remove any traffic lanes downtown . . . But that doesn't mean you can't take parking off Fourth, if you provide off-street parking before you do it," he said.

Miskimen also called for federal and state aid to help San Rafael cope with low and moderate-income housing. "There's no question that inflationary pressures (have created even more of a need) for adequate housing for people who work here," Miskimen said.

Miskimen also called for citizen participation in local affairs. "The last three or four years have shown a clear advantage of citizen participation," he said, saying that it provides "a better framework for decisionmaking," as in the case of preparing the general plan.

Miskimen, a native of Phoenix, Ariz., is a 15-year resident of the city. He graduated from Harvard with a bachelor's degree in economics and won a master's degree in business administration from Golden Gate University.

He works as an associate partner for San Francisco Consultants, and has served in various posts with a number of financial firms.

He is a member of the Commonwealth Club and has served on the Harvard Schools and Scholarship committee for the North Bay Area and on the Dixie School District Finance Advisory Committee.

He was appointed to the city planning commission in 1964 and reappointed to the commission in 1966. He won election to the council in 1967. He was reelected as councilman in 1971, leading a field of six candidates by polling 3,527 ballots.

He is vice mayor of the council and last year served as chairman of the Marin County Council of Mayors and Councilmen.

He lives at 24 Dominican Drive with his wife, Marilyn. The couple has three children.

Kehrlein, 47, said he is running for election since "nobody is taking this recession and or depression seriously enough and I think the San Rafael City Council should lead the way."

Kehrlein said he expects a "further downslide of the economy" and said the city council should take prompt action to ease the impact of that downslide. "I would hope my election (to the city council) would be considered as a mandate to change our civil service laws," he said.

He said that unless the city changes its personnel policies, a plummeting economy will result in mass layoffs. "I don't want mass layoffs," he said, suggesting that the city should allow two men to work half-time rather than throwing one man out of work in the event of a depression.

"I'm a human dignity candidadate . . . What we all want is human dignity, we want a little pride," he said. "I don't mind standing in a soup line, but I don't want my kids asking me 'How come they're not (standing in the line),' " he added.

Whatever economic stress confronts the city or nation should be "shared and shared alike," Kehrlein said.

Kehrlein said his three-year tenure with the state employment department in the 1960s would be an asset in helping the city cope with the economic crisis. "My job was finding jobs for people," he said of the state post.

He declined to take a stand on a proposal for a new shopping center in San Rafael, or for an open space assessment district in the Santa Margarita Valley, saying the proposals need "more study."

"Basically I'm for the individuality of San Rafael. I don't want to remake San Rafael into a Mill Valley or a Sausalito, and I don't want downtown to become another Northgate," he said.

He also called for a new city sign ordinance, since the current ordinance is "unworkable" and "plays favorites."

Kehrlein, an insurance agent in San Rafael for 17 years, has offices at 16 Mary Street. He lives at 16 Sienna Way with his wife, Anne. They have two children.

He was born in Oakland, graduated from San Francisco City College, and attended Golden Gate Law School. He worked for a number of insurance firms before becoming self-employed.

Nixon Library Is Now Unlikely

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Richard Nixon has made no objection to moves by several trustees to dissolve the foundation charged with building a presidential library for him, the Los Angeles Times said yesterday.

At least eight of the 25 trustees of the Richard M. Nixon Foundation are in favor of giving up plans to build the structure, the Times said.

Only five more votes are needed to get the majority of 13 that would dissolve the foundation.

Although Nixon has no legal control over the foundation, the Times said "those closely associated with the foundation made it clear that a move to dissolve the foundation would not have been made if Mr. Nixon objected."

Patricia Reilly Hitt, former Nixon administration official and vice chairwoman of the board of trustees, said Tuesday she had written the other trustees urging that the foundation be dissolved.

In her letter, Mrs. Hitt, former assistant secretary of Health Education and Welfare, said the foundation's purpose was "the creation and perpetuation of a presidential library and museum for the collection and study of papers and memorabilia of the 37th President of the United States.

"The prospects for being able to carry out that mission in the foreseeable future are unfortunately clouded at this time," she wrote.

When Nixon was pardoned by President Ford, both men agreed that the former chief executive would retain control over his tapes and documents.

The tapes and documents would have been destroyed in 10 years or upon Nixon's death, whichever came first.

However, Congress voted to keep the records under government control.

The foundation currently has a collection of tape recorded reminiscences by those who knew Nixon in the first 30 years of his life. Mrs. Hitt proposed that these be turned over to Nixon's alma mater, Whittier College.

The Whittier College trustees, four of whom, including Mrs. Hitt, are also foundation trustees, voted earlier this month to accept and administer Nixon memorabilia.

According to the Times, Nixon "has been consulted and expressed no objection" to dissolving the project.

Gold, Cannery Executive Dies

BERKELEY (UPI) — Edward Angle Kent, a Mother Lode gold dredger and innovator in the California canning industry, is dead at the age of 72.

Kent, who died at his home here Tuesday, started in the canning business in 1924 and later became owner-manager of the Mor-Pak Preserving Corp. in Stockton, and a partner in Manteca Canning Co. of San Francisco.

Several of his products were distributed nationally, including a tomato concentrate used as a base for tomato paste.

During the 1930s, Kent operated a successful gold dredging operation in the Mother Lode of the Sierra Nevada.

A BETTER BUN — Theodore Heidepriem has invented what he thinks is a better hot dog bun for messy treats like Coney Island chili dogs. The Saint Louis baker, 63, has also invented a similar hamburger bun.

(UPI Telephoto)

Queen Calls For Tolerance

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth, in her annual Christmas message, said those who hold widely opposing opinions should be tolerant of each other instead of vindictive.

"We may hold different points of view but it is in times of stress and difficulty that we must need to remember that we have much more in common than there is in dividing us," she said.

Baker's Revolutionary New Bun Keeps The Chili On The Hot Dog

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Theodore Heidepriem loves Coney Island hot dogs but hates the mess when the chili spills out of the bun onto his lap.

A baker for 20 years, Heidepreim did something about the mess. He invented his version of the better mouse trap — a new hot dog bun.

"I'd been thinking about it for almost 20 years," he said. Like many great thinkers, he got his inspiration while sleeping.

"I didn't jump out of bed though," he said. "I had Saturday off and I made the mold the next morning."

Using an aluminum foil TV tray, Heidepriem made a mold around a frank-shaped piece of pipe and formed dough around it.

"I have a bun which acts as a container for the food with an indented center," he said. "It holds the food without spilling it on rugs or yourself. And it's baked with a simple method by use of a single pan."

The result is a boat-shaped bun for hot dogs with the meat lying uncovered on top. Chili, onions and the rest of the makings for Coney Islands are poured on and don't make a squishy mess.

"The side baked against the metal is on the inside of the bun and that's the porous side," he said. "The goodies seep into the bun but the outside has been sealed by the oven-heat and contains the juices about three times as long as other buns."

"It's the first new bun in seven years," the inventor said proudly.

"Women tell me it has other uses, too. It could be used for salads, tuna fish, anything that is runny and needs to be contained."

Heidepriem knows he's trying to change one of America's most sacred sandwich inventions — the hot dog, which was born in St. Louis at the 1904 World's Fair.

"It's not going to be easy," he said. "The old hot dog and hamburger buns are gonna stay, but I'd like to get maybe 10 per cent of the trade.

"But, really, it's not the money. I've always earned a good salary. It's just the satisfaction of seeing my buns on the shelves. That would tickle me most."

Helms Reported On Way To U.S.

TEHRAN (UPI) — Richard Helms, U.S. Ambassador to Iran and former head of the Central Intelligence Agency, has left Tehran for an undisclosed European destination.

U.S. Embassy sources disclosed the trip yesterday but refused to confirm State Department reports that Helms would travel to Washington. The sources also declined to say when he would return to his post in Iran.

The State Department said he would be in Washington just after the new year when five congressional committees start investigating charges of illegal spying against American citizens during his tenure as CIA chief.

CHRISTMAS EVE ON HIGHWAY 101

An unbroken crush of vehicles stretches down the northbound lanes of Highway 101, part of a jam which tied up traffic from Corte Madera to Marin City on Christmas Eve. This tieup at 4:30 p.m., seen from the Corte Madera overpass, was sparked by a fire in a car driven by Mick Eterovich of San Rafael. The highway patrol had to stop traffic in the freeway lanes to push the disabled vehicle from the fast lane of the road onto the shoulder and that caused the jam on the busy freeway, already clogged with homebound commuters and shoppers. The problem of backed up traffic was so severe, according to highway patrol, that cars spilled into the northbound lane (right) reserved for buses from 4 to 7 p.m. The sign gives the reservation hours for southbound morning commuters.

Compromise Meat Imports Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford is being advised to adopt a compromise 1975 meat import control plan that would limit beef imports to slightly above this year's depressed level without formally invoking federal import quotas, an administration source indicated today.

The source said the plan, which was among several options drawn up for Ford's consideration, would be aimed at limiting 1975 beef imports to 1.150 billion pounds. That is 35 million pounds more than this year's predicted imports but substantially less than officials believe will come in unless Ford restores the import restraints suspended since mid-1972.

The strategy many administration officials favor would call for an official announcement, possibly as early as next Monday, that the Agriculture Department estimates 1975 imports will not exceed the 1.150 billion pound level.

That would be 30 million pounds below the 1.180 billion pound "trigger point" level at which Ford would be required to invoke formal beef import quotas. If quotas were invoked, imports of fresh, frozen and chilled beef and mutton would have to be limited next year to about 1.074 billion pounds.

Sources said the 1.150 billion pound estimate could be announced together with a publicized announcement that the United States expects to reach voluntary shipping restraint agreements with major producing nations like Australia and New Zealand to hold actual imports to the predicted figure.

If the agreements cannot be reached within 90 days, it was pointed out, the United States could revise its estimate of 1975 imports to above the "trigger" level in March and impose formal quotas at the 1.074 billion pound level.

The key to the procedure currently favored by many administration advisers is that it would bypass formal use of beef import quotas at a time when the United States is preparing to press other countries for trade liberalization in international negotiations.

The administration is not willing to allow completely unrestrained imports, however. U.S. cattle prices are depressed because of heavy supplies. Moreover, many cattle industry groups have been demanding formal quotas or even temporary outright embargoes on imports.

Ford himself promised during the fall election campaign that if it appeared imports might rise substantially during 1975, he would either restore formal import quotas or revive the voluntary restraint system used before mid-1972.

Agriculture Department beef trade experts say that if the administration did nothing at all to restrain imports, big supplies of cattle building up in Australia might be forced onto the U.S. beef market sometime next year.

Imports declined this year because U.S. prices were too low to be attractive to shippers. But with herds backing up on Australian ranges and other international markets closed by restrictions of various kinds, experts feel Australian producers could be forced to unload a heavy volume of beef on the already-depressed U.S. market in 1975.

Stars Broadcast 'Anna Karenina'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Henry Fonda joined a host of other celebrities in the marathon broadcast reading of Leo Tolstoy's novel "Anna Karenina" on radio station KPFK-FM.

Fonda began the broadcast of the English translation of the Russian novel last night. The station said the entire work will be completed Dec. 30, and will be interspersed with Russian music.

At 100, She Has No Advice

METAIRIE, La. (UPI) — Eloise Wilkins was 100 yesterday but she had no advice on how to live a century.

"A few years ago an 83-year-old woman I met on the bus told me she was convinced good thoughts and a good disposition provided the foundation for living to a ripe old age," she said.

"I didn't tell her then, but I thought it was the most ridiculous thing I had ever heard."

Chance Is Slim That Politics-As-Usual Will Continue

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The roof caved in on politics-as-usual in America in 1974.

The two-party system was rescued from the debris, but it underwent surgery that could have profound effects on how the country selects its political leaders and governs itself for years to come.

Watergate and the resignation of President Richard M. Nixon obviously inspired much of the reforms that are changing the face of American politics.

But the roots of "post-Watergate morality" took hold in the rich soil of social ferment and legal innovation that has been transforming broad segments of American life for the past two decades.

What is happening, then, is not simply a "quick fix" after a routine political scandal. It is a fundamental set of reforms, shaped in Congress, state legislatures and both major political parties and portending a truly new era in the political life of the United States.

The new reforms are centered on the way politics is practiced, rather than what it produces. But these changes, by serving to open the political system to citizens who have never taken part before, promise nonetheless to exert a strong impact on the substance of government policies and programs in the future.

How the political parties use these reforms could also affect their ability to recapture the attention and loyalties of the independent voter, whose growing numbers within the America electorate is perhaps the most significant U.S. political phenomenon of recent years.

As the Watergate scandal hit its peak, national public opinion polls showed more and more Americans were losing confidence in their government's problem-solving capacity, and were abandoning personal identification with either the Democratic or Republican parties.

In addition, the turnout for the 1974 congressional and state elections was only 38 per cent of eligible voters, the lowest midterm showing since 1946 and the second lowest in modern history.

Although Democrats usually win big when voter turnout is high, and light balloting traditionally favors Republicans, the Democrats increased their solid majorities in the House and Senate in 1974 and reduced the Republicans to 13 of the nation's 50 governorships.

The snap conclusion would be that large numbers of GOP stalwarts had deserted to the Democratic side. Political researchers found otherwise — that Republicans generally remained faithful to their party but independents voted Democratic.

This pointed up a trend that partly explains why all politicians are receptive to reformers who urge them to broaden the party bases with active recruiting programs.

A recent Gallup Poll indicated the Republican party actually ranks third in voter identification at 23 per cent, behind the Democrats' 44 per cent and 33 per cent for independents.

Most of the increase in independent identification in recent years has come from Republican ranks. The Democrats have remained near the same level.

The independent "minority" is growing, and no one seems to know how to deal with it. Lyndon Johnson tried to channel independent loyalty to himself and the Democratic party with his consensus politics of the mid-1960s, and Nixon sought to lure the same group into his ill-fated "new Republican majority" of 1972.

Both got the votes they wanted for themselves, but neither stemmed the growth of the independents.

Some observers believe the independents are a political party already, lacking only a name and a leader to assume legitimacy. There is speculation that a charismatic newcomer to the political scene will be able to galvanize independents into a force that would drive the Republicans — and perhaps even Democrats — to the wall.

Others believe the rise of political independence is a passing phase that will end when the two major parties once again find some vital issues and give voters a Goldwateresque "choice, not an echo."

If both parties actually carry out plans to throw open their doors to full rank-and-file participation, some say, the turned-off middle of the electorate might seize the opportunity and once again choose up sides.

Not only did Congress make some fundamental changes in the financing of future federal political campaigns, but more than two-thirds of the states and scores of localities wrote strong new reforms into their own political systems in the two years after Watergate.

The climax was passage of the 1974 Federal Election Campaign Act. Its most dramatic provision provides for public financing of presidential campaigns, starting in 1976.

Approved after months of the time-honored congressional game of drag-a-foot, kill-a-bill, the new law taking effect Jan. 1 also clamps strict limits on political contributions and campaign spending in congressional contests and creates a powerful independent enforcement commission.

Meanwhile, both political parties broke new ground. The Democrats, their "new politics" wing retaining significant power despite the McGovern election disaster in 1972, met in Kansas City and adopted a written charter — first in their history — that was designed to break the grasp that machine bosses, courthouse cliques and

Tam Valley Cooperation Is Pledged

Almonte Sanitary District directors have agreed to work with the Tamalpais Valley Businessmen's Association in developing a plan for improving the appearance of the Tamalpais Junction commercial district.

Directors said they would provide information and advice for what the businessmen described as "a realistic plan" for improving the area, according to director John J. Crncich.

The business association has expressed dissatisfaction with a redevelopment proposal in the recently completed master plan for Tamalpais Valley that would relocate all businesses in the district to the west side of Shoreline Highway.

backroom operators long held in party affairs.

The immediate thrust of the charter reforms was to give women, young people and minorities a better chance to take part in nominating presidential candidates, but the longterm effect could be an opening of the decision-making process throughout the party.

Republicans moved more conservatively than the Democrats, but they also took steps toward structural reforms that could shake the GOP's established power centers.

Part of the yeast in the political ferment of 1974 was the citizen organizations, such as Common Cause and the Ralph Nader consumer movement, which bedeviled both Democrats and Republicans in lobbying for campaign finance reforms, open government and new standards of accountability from public officials.

A measure of their impact was seen in California, where they engineered a major political coup by winning overwhelming voter support for Proposition 9 a broad-scale political reform initiative opposed by organized labor and business and backed only lukewarmly by state politicians.

Not all the reform movement's critics were disgruntled practitioners of the "old politics" who feared eventual invasion of their leadership prerogatives.

Civil libertarians questioned how the new federal campaign law would stand up against constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech and right to privacy. They planned federal court challenges of the law early in 1975, and some believed the law would soon be a dead letter.

It seemed clear the Democratic and Republican reform movements both were being used as vehicles for competing factions struggling for power.

Among the Democrats, blacks and women were pushing reform hardest, while old-line labor unionists and elected officials were maneuvering to keep control of party machinery. Among Republican, the battle lines seemed drawn along more ideological lines, with liberals seeking reform as one path back to power within the conservatively oriented national party.

Wyman Wins By Two Votes

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — Rep. Louis Wyman, R-N.H., overturned the results of a recount Tuesday and won election to the U.S. Senate by two votes, believed the narrowest margin ever in a Senate contest.

Democrat John Durkin said he would appeal his loss to the Democrat-controlled Senate.

Wyman's victory 50 days after the general election followed New Hampshire Ballot Law Commission review and reversal of Durkin's 10 vote recount victory.

Final official figures showed Wyman defeated Durkin, 110,926 to 110,924.

Church Reveals Relief Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United Methodist Church says it will spend $200,000 for famine relief next year as an example to the Ford administration.

Dr. Harry Haines, Associate General Secretary for the Methodist Committee on Relief, said the church plans to ship 1,000 metric tons of wheat to India in January in hopes the action will inspire the government aid nations facing starvation.

"If the churches take the lead such action should say something to the government," he said.

DEMO PREDICTS TAX HIKE

Recession May Erode State Surplus

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Leo T. McCarthy predicts a worsening economy over the next six months will gobble up Gov. Ronald Reagan's highly publicized half-billion dollar projected tax surplus.

The San Francisco Democrat also warns that Californians may face the prospect of a tax hike to cover rising unemployment and growing welfare rolls if the economy fails to pick up by July.

McCarthy discussed what he sees as the state's fiscal outlook in an interview with UPI.

The retiring Reagan time and again has reminded Californians that, unlike the huge deficit that existed when he became governor in 1967, he leaves office with a projected $500 million tax surplus at the end of the current fiscal year on June 30.

"I think it is safe to predict that by July that surplus will be nonexistent because of the faltering economy," McCarthy said.

He also said that legislation signed by Reagan before leaving office that will take effect in 1975 will "eat up" a lot of the projected surplus.

McCarthy, the most powerful lawmaker in California, forecasted pessimistically that the state and the nation are headed into the "worst recession" in decades.

Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post has warned it is "entirely possible" that Californians may be hit with a tax increase because of inflation, growing unemployment and increasing welfare rolls.

State figures show the number of jobless Californians climbed to 749,100 during November, an increase of 141,500 over the same month a year ago.

"If the economy keeps slipping badly, as every indicator suggests it will, Mr. Post's prediction will be accurate," McCarthy said.

Post also predicted that state government expenses will leap at least 10 per cent in the next fiscal year, outstripping revenues by about $208 million. Fueled by inflation, state costs are expected to increase by at least $857 million while tax revenues increase by only $650 million.

"If in six months from now we have to find some money to put people to work and feed people, that's an obligation we can't put aside, the lawmaker said.

Considering the possibility of legislators voting to increase taxes during the 1976 election year, McCarthy said it is not a "happy choice." In 1976 all 80 assemblymen and half of the state's 40 senators will face reelection.

"Let's hope that a lot of people who are predicting what is going to happen are very wrong," McCarthy concluded.

Grand Jury Reforms Bill Is Introduced

Z'berg's bill would separate civil and criminal functions of grand juries, shorten the life span of juries dealing with criminal cases and require random jury selection from the county for criminal panels.

The lawmaker said the measure would "instill more justice into the criminal justice system" by placing the special conditions on the operation of criminal panels without compromising civil juries.

He also contended that separate grand juries with single functions would make the system more efficient by focusing each panel's attention on one particular area.

Z'berg introduced a similar measure during the legislature's last session. That measure had the support of the attorney general's office.

Under the legislation, California's six counties with populations above 700,000 would be required to separate civil and criminal grand jury panels.

The requirement would be optional for the 22 counties with a population of 100,000 to 200,000 and for the 30 counties with a population of less than 100,000.

GAME HENS FOR THE GAME WATCHERS

New Year's Day is the favorite time of the year for most football fans. A full menu of T.V. game-watching is usually in store for those households who don't hold bowl tickets. Without disturbing the rooters, planning a bountiful buffet for family or guests is often a challenge. Sliced ham or a pot of hearty soup with cold salads are mainstays for such dining, but I've included a recipe which offers a change from this pattern and allows the cook to make extra points.

GAMETIME GAME HENS

Recipe for 4-6 Cornish Game Hens

Thaw 22-24 ounce birds overnight in the refrigerator. 1½ hours before mealtime, rub game hens with oil and begin roasting at 350° F. for 30 minutes. Meanwhile prepare sauce. Bake hens 30 minutes more, or until tender, brushing frequently with sauce. Heat remaining sauce and serve over hens at halftime or between games.

ORANGE-HONEY SAUCE

2 cans (10½ ounces each) condensed chicken broth
⅔ cup orange sections cut-up
½ cup orange juice
⅓ cup honey
¼ cup cornstarch
½ teaspoon grated orange rind
2 tablespoons lemon juice

In saucepan, combine all ingredients. Cook over low heat, stirring until thickened. Makes 3½ cups sauce.

Have a Happy New Year!!

Aiken Believes The Nation Can Overcome Its Troubles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., retiring next month as dean of the Senate, says America's leaders must confront the country's economic problems soon or they will "wake up playing chess across the table from the Aztecs."

He also suggests that Richard M. Nixon might have survived Watergate had he admitted his administration's mistakes instead of trying to cover them up.

Aiken, 82, who still looks like the Yankee farmer he once was, has served 34 years in the Senate, longer than any other present member. He has lived through the Great Depression and the great wars of this century, and has served under seven Presidents.

Interviewed in his spartanlike Senate office, which lacks the usual framed photographs and mementos of other politicians, Aiken left it to history to judge the Presidents he has known since Franklin D. Roosevelt.

He said Dwight D. Eisenhower had the "best years" to serve in the White House. Lyndon B. Johnson was a man of domestic affairs, he said, and got bogged down in Vietnam.

Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy and others made mistakes but stood taller when they admitted them publicly.

"Kennedy said, 'That Bay of Pigs, oh, I was the blame for that.' He wasn't to blame for that, but when he said he was his stocks went right up.

"When Ike said, 'Oh, that U2 was our plane. We got caught,' that ended the discussion right then and there when he admitted it.

"President Nixon could have probably saved himself a tremendous lot of trouble had he taken those tactics."

Aiken believes Nixon knew nothing in advance of the Watergate break-in that ultimately doomed his presidency.

"But, according to the testimony since, he felt it was part of his job to cover it up, protect the ones that actually performed the deed.

"And, so I say, 'Sometimes it's much worse to protect a sinner than it is to commit the sin' — as he's finding out."

He sees President Ford as "an ordinary, middle-of-ther-oad, run-of-the-mill person" whose strength lies partly in his ability to mix easily with people and "still be an ordinary man."

Ford's major failing, he said, is promising to balance the federal budget, "knowing perfectly well he can't do it."

"Perhaps one of his strongest points is his wife," Aiken said. "She's excellent."

With a gleeful wink, he added: "They help. Sometimes they get a little bossy." After his first wife died, Aiken in 1967 married Lola Pierotti, his longtime Senate secretary who is many years his junior.

The senator disagrees with those who believe the country's problems today are insurmountable.

"I think we'll pull out this time," he said, eyes twinkling. "But, if we don't watch out, we'll be joining the Aztecs."

Aiken, long a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has a lasting concern over war, and the threatof war.

"Unfortunately," he said, "the threat of war makes very good business for certain industries. I don't need to tell you who they are. But it does."

He foresees important but unpredictable changes ahead in the two major political parties, just as a "new" Democratic party and a new style of government were born with Roosevelt's election in 1932.

"I tell folks, 'Go away and come back in 10 years and you won't recognize our form of government," Aiken said.

Needed changes, he said, can be achieved only by the example of national leadership.

"How are you going to tell a fellow that's trying to keep his family going on $6,000 to $7,000 a year that he's got to cut back," Aiken asked, "when the ones that are getting from $40,000 to $100,000 a year are saying, 'We've got to have more'?"

"It don't work," he said.

"We may have it impressed upon us in the next few months," he added, warning that unless government leaders become aware of the problems they face, "they'll wake up playing chess across the table from the Aztecs."

As he looks forward to some Vermont trout fishing this spring, Aiken said he would not judge newly elected legislators until they spend some time on the job.

"New congressmen as a rule don't think too much of seniority," he observed, "but I can say as a senior member, I've never found experience to be a handicap yet.

"They will change, they will change. I just hope that they're reasonable and not too ambitious during their first term, because they'll be surprised how much they can learn in two or four years."

Dance Swindle Hearing Scheduled

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — Preliminary hearing will be held Jan. 3 in Oakland Municipal Court for a San Rafael man accused of swindling elderly women while he ran an East Bay dance studio.

Donald Harry Miles, 31, of 310 Channing Way, is charged with 20 counts of grand theft and six counts of conspiracy. He pleaded innocent at arraignment last Wednesday and sought unsuccessfully Friday to have his bail reduced from $72,000, according to the Oakland district attorney's office.

At the bail hearing, a woman he allegedly bilked of $38,000 testified on his behalf, the district attorney's spokesman said. Doris Combs, 49, said she would not describe herself as a victim, that she trusted Miles, and that she willingly loaned him large sums of money, the spokesman said.

Nonetheless, his bail was not lowered.

Miles' brother, William E. Miles, 41, of Moraga, faces 37 counts of grand theft and other conspiracy charges in the same scheme, which involved Fred Astaire dance studios. He has been a fugitive since March and is sought on a $142,000 warrant.

THOMAS A. TRUCHAN

Truchan Files For Reelection

Thomas A. Truchan, a San Rafael High School teacher who has served on the Fairfax School District Board for the past five years, has filed for reelection.

The terms of Truchan and colleague C. Patrick Fitzgerald are expiring. Fitzgerald is not seeking reelection.

Truchan, 35, was elected to the board in 1970 to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Priscilla Gray. He was elected to his first full term in 1971, leading a field of four candidates by polling 643 ballots.

Truchan said he is seeking reelection because he feels he has done a good job as a district trustee.

He said a major issue facing the school system is how to maintain the current educational program while coping with a financial squeeze. The board "will probably have to go for a revenue increase election next year" to boost the amount of money the district may spend per pupil, he said.

Truchan said he supports a move to sell Central School since "financially I don't think we have a choice." Central's alternative program will be continued at another district school, he said.

Truchan said he is "totally in favor" of a district bid to ballot a measure that would boost taxes to find a multi-use facility at White Hill School. Such a gymnasium facility is needed as an "outlet for recreation" at the school, which the district hopes to convert to a middle school, he said.

He noted that the board may find itself in the position of asking voters to boost taxes to provide for a multi-use facility, and at the same time asking for another tax hike to increase the amount of money the district may spend per pupil. "It's a tough one. I'm not sure how well we'll do. It's my job as an educational leader to present the voters with these kinds of choices," he said.

Truchan, who teaches psychology and world religions at San Rafael High School, said he sees no conflict of interest in working as a teacher in one district while serving on the school board of a neighboring district. Such allegations are preposterous, he said.

"I'm only one vote — and I've been a moderate on (teachers') salaries in Fairfax," he said. He added that working as a teacher gives him a unique perspective on curriculum needs.

Truchan is a native of Los Angeles. He received his bachelor's degree in history from the University of California at Santa Barbara. He has also studied at Washington University in St. Louis.

He is a professional string bass player and has performed with the Oakland Symphony, among other groups.

He lives with his wife Barbara at 175 Frustuck Road. The couple has a five-year-old daughter and a three-year-old son.

Choir Director Slain At Church

CHICAGO (UPI) — An argument between choir members and ushers after Christmas morning church services here ended in the stabbing death of the church's choir director.

Authorities said Wesley Coleman, 19, tried to intervene in an argument on the steps of the Precious Blood Church and was stabbed after he bumped into a 16-year-old youth in an ROTC uniform. The youth was later charged with voluntary manslaughter.

SERVING MARIN AND SONOMA SINCE 1884

FOR THE BUFFET TABLE — Mushrooms, here stuffed with liver pate, eggs and beef are traditional favorites for holiday appetizers.

Garlic Not Just Seasoning

What powers lie within the white garlic bulb? Some say it wards off evil spirits; others claim it to have healing powers.

But most of us consider garlic to be a seasoning necessity and what better way to keep it at hand than to hang wreaths of the bulbs in the kitchen.

Garlic wreaths made by Judy Evenson are a sampling of the unusual items offered at this year's Dickens Christmas Fair in Fezziwig's Warehouse near the San Francisco Produce Market.

Or why not try another favorite seasoning, onion, this time in a delicious homemade onion soup created by John and Lois Solomon.

Hours of the Dickens fair (this is the last weekend) are 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Sunday. To reach Fezziwig's warehouse and the fair, take the Bayshore Freeway (101) to the Army Street East Exit and follow the signs. Or take the shuttle bus, which offers continuous service from Union Square (opposite the St. Francis Hotel) beginning at 10:30 a.m.

GARLIC WREATHS

Making a garlic wreath is simple. Take fresh garlic, leaving the greens attached, and use the greens to braid the plants together in a wreath, a chain, or a cluster. As the garlic plants dry, they will shrink, leaving the arrangement taut and well secured. The colors will soften, too, into shades of cream.

FRENCH ONION SOUP GRATINEE

- 6 medium onions, sliced in half rounds 1/4" thick
- Butter
- 1 heaping Tbsp. oregano
- 1 clove garlic
- 1 tsp. soy sauce
- Pinch cayenne
- 2 tbsp. whole wheat pastry flour
- Broth mix — either bouillon cubes, prepared broth, soup broth, chicken flavor (John and Lois' choice)
- Croutons
- Gruyere cheese, thinly sliced
- Parmesan cheese, grated

Melt enough butter to saute the onions. Add the oregano, garlic, soy sauce and cayenne to the butter, then add onions. Saute briefly, about 3 minutes, till onions are transparent. Sift in 2 tbsps. of whole wheat pastry flour. Keep stirring with a wooden spoon so the mixture doesn't lump. Turn off the flame and stir till creamy.

In a large saucepan, heat 4 quarts water. Add bouillon cubes to taste, or 2 tbsps. of soup broth (dried) or chicken, vegetable or beef broth flavoring. Lois notes that the broth should be "very rich. If you had to eat it by itself, it should be tasty."

When the broth is heated, add the onion mixture, stirring well, then cover and simmer 10 minutes to blend the flavors.

Fill ceramic, oven-proof bowls with the soup and add croutons. Lois uses "good toast, made from bread I baked." Over the croutons, place thin slices of Gruyere, completely covering the surface. Add 2 heaping tsp. of parmesan cheese per bowl. Placein the broiler until the cheese is melted and golden. Serves 8 in 16 oz. bowls.

FOR HOME PLAYERS — This crispy Party Mix is a natural for New Year's Day snacking. It's quick and easy to prepare and can be made days before the Bowl games begin.

Pickled Eggs Provide A Change Of Pace At The Holiday Time

When planning hors d'oeuvres for your New Year's celebration, consider the versatile egg and mushroom.

Hard cooked eggs can be presented on the appetizer tray in halves, quarters or slices; they can be deviled and stuffed or used as decorations on canapes with other foods, alone, sliced or with the yolks pressed through a pastry tube in attractive designs. But for a real change of pace, try pickled eggs.

Mushroom caps just cry for a delicious stuffing such as liver pate or baked clams. Beef, too, is a natural for the buffet table. Try it rolled with avocado or skewered with fruit.

PICKLED EGGS

- 2 dozen hard cooked eggs, peeled
- 4 cups distilled white vinegar
- 1 jar (16 ounces) sweet cherry peppers
- 4 cloves garlic, halved
- 3 bay leaves
- 1 tsp. chopped chives
- 1 tsp. crushed red pepper
- 1 tsp. whole allspice (optional)
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. mustard seed
- ½ to 1 tsp. turmeric

Place eggs in glass or ceramic container with cover; add rest of ingredients including juice from peppers. Cover and let age at least overnight.

The eggs will keep without refrigeration up to one month but will become increasingly more pungent in flavor.

BAKED CLAM STUFFED MUSHROOMS

- 1 pound medium-sized mushrooms
- ¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
- 1 can (8 oz.) minced clams, drained
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- 2 eggs, lightly beaten
- 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, divided
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice, divided
- ⅛ teaspoon ground white pepper

Rinse, pat dry and remove stems from mushrooms (use stems in sauces, stuffings, etc.). Brush caps with butter; arrange in a baking pan. In a medium bowl combine clams, bread crumbs, eggs, scallions, 4 tablespoons of the mayonnaise, 1 teaspoon of thelemon juice and white pepper.

Fill each cap with some of the mixture. Combine remaining 2 tablespoons mayonnaise and 1 teaspoon lemon juice; spoon a little on top of each stuffed mushroom. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 F.) until hot, about 15 minutes.

Makes about 20 hors d'oeuvres

LIVER PATE STUFFED MUSHROOMS

- 1 pound medium-sized mushrooms
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ¼ cup minced onion
- ½ pound chicken livers, halved
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1 package (3 oz.) cream cheese, softened
- ¼ cup minced parsley

Rinse, pat dry and remove stems from mushrooms; set caps aside and chop stems (makes about 1 cup). In a medium skillet melt butter. Add onion and chopped mushroom stems; saute for 2 minutes. Add chicken livers; saute until just barely firm, about 6 to 8 minutes. Stir in salt, black pepper and Worcestershire sauce.

Place half of the liver mixture at a time in the jar of an electric blender; blend until smooth; cool. Beat cream cheese until fluffy; beat in liver mixture and parsley. Place in a pastry bag containing a star tube; pipe high into reserved mushroom caps or spoon liver mixture into caps. If desired, garnish with parsley, sesame seed or chopped nuts.

Makes about 20 hors d'oeuvres

GUACAMOLE BEEF ROLLS

- 18 to 20 thin slices roasted beef sirloin tip
- 1 medium-sized avocado
- 1 tablespoon lime juice
- 1 tablespoon grated onion
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon coriander
- 4 drops hot sauce
- ½ teaspoon chili powder
- ¼ cup chopped tomato

Mash avocado. Add lime juice, onion, salt, coriander, hot sauce, chili powder and tomato. Combine thoroughly. Spread on slices of cold roast beef, allowing about 2 teaspoons for each slice; roll up slices; wrap and chill. To serve, cut rolls in halves or thirds, depending upon length; secure each piece with small wooden pick and arrange on platter. Yield: Approximately 3 to 4 dozen rolls.

PICKLED MUSHROOMS

- 1 pound small fresh mushrooms
- ¾ cup salad oil
- ½ cup wine vinegar
- ¼ cup water
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon oregano leaves, crumbled
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- ¼ teaspoon minced garlic
- 1 jar (3 oz.) stuffed olives

Rinse, pat dry and halve mushrooms. Place in a large bowl. In a saucepan combine oil, vinegar, water, onion, salt, oregano, black pepper and garlic. Bring to boiling point; reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes.

Pour hot marinade over mushrooms. Stir in olives and their liquid; mix well. Pack mushrooms and olives into a 1-quart jar. Pour in marinade to cover mushrooms completely. Cover and refrigerate at least 2 days.

Makes one quart.

BEEF TERIYAKI KABOBS

- 2 pounds sirloin steak, cut ¾ inch thick
- ¼ cup Italian dressing
- ½ cup soy sauce
- ¼ cup white wine
- 2 tablespoons honey
- ½ teaspoon ground ginger
- 1 can (13¼ ounces) pineapple chunks, drained
- 8 kumquots, halved
- 8 mushrooms, halved
- 8 canned water chestnuts, halved

Cut steak into 3/4-inch cubes and place in bowl. Combine Italian dressing, soy sauce, wine, honey and ginger in saucepan. Simmer 10 minutes; cool. Pour over beef cubes, cover bowl and marinate in refrigerator 2 to 3 hours.

Remove cubes from marinade and thread on bamboo skewers, alternating each cube with a piece of pineapple, kumquat, mushroom or water chestnut. Place kabobs in roasting pan or jelly roll pan. Place in hot oven (450°F.) and cook to rare or medium (7 to 8 minutes.) Serve hot. Makes approximately 15 kabobs (4 beef cubes each).

Here Are Some Treats For Those Walnut Lovers

DIPPY CRUNCHED FRUIT BITES

Arrange an assortment of bite-size fresh fruit pieces on a platter. Provide forks and have guests dip their selections first into fruit flavored yogurt or sour cream sweetened with powdered sugar, then chopped walnuts.

WALNUT FRUIT CLUSTERS

Melt 1 cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces over hot water. Stir smooth, then add 1½ cups large pieces walnuts and ½ cup raisin. Drop in clusters on waxed paper and allow to set. For variety, you can use other snipped dried fruit in place of raisins.

CELERY CRUNCHIES

Stuff hollows of chilled celery with a mixture of 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese, 2 tablespoons softened butter, ¼ cup finely chopped walnuts and hickory salt for flavor.

TOASTED WALNUTS

Toasting is a fine way to enhance the natural fresh flavor and crisp texture of walnuts. Drop shelled kernels into rapidly boiling water. Boil 3 minutes, then drain well. Spread kernels in a shallow pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 12-15 minutes, stirring often. Cool. To make salad or soup croutons, snacks, or gifts, from your kitchen, toss hot walnuts in melted butter and sprinkle with salt or seasoned salt.

Party Mix Just The Thing When Watching Games

Snacking is the word for New Year's Day when eyes are glued to the action on the football field.

Instead of jumping up and down during the commercials, why not just set a bowl of party mix down on the coffee table. Party mix is crisp, crunchy and easy to make. You can prepare it before the Bowl game day because it keeps for several weeks when stored in an airtight container.

PARTY MIX

- 6 Tbsp. butter or margarine
- 4 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tsp. seasoned or savor salt
- 2 cups crispy corn squares cereal
- 2 cups crispy wheat squares cereal
- 2 cups crispy rice squares cereal
- ¾ cup salted nuts

Heat oven to 250 degrees. Melt butter in shallow pan over low heat. Stir in Worcestershire sauce and seasoned or savor salt. Add cereal and nuts. Mix over low heat until all pieces are coated. Heat in oven 45 minutes. Stir every 15 minutes. Spread out on absorbent paper to cool. Makes 6¾ cups.

Instead of seasoned or savor salt, try ⅜ teaspoon onion powder and ⅜ teaspoon salt or ⅜ teaspoon garlic powder and ⅜ teaspoon salt.

Big Beef Supply Seen

U.S. Department of Agriculture marketing specialists are forecasting an exceptionally large supply of beef for December. This outlook should mean good news for consumers. Frequently, when a food product is in such plentiful supply, retail prices will be lowered. It may be a good time to consider various cuts of beef for holiday entertaining. It may also be a good time to restock your freezer for the coming months.

Sugar Is More Than Sweetening

When deciding whether or not to substitute sweetners for sugar, keep in mind that sugar not only sweetens but has functional properties which affect the final product.

For example, sugar tenderizes wheat and egg protein, especially important in baking. Because it melts and carmelizes, sugar contributes to the brown color in baked foods. Moderate to large amount of sugr stabilize betwen egg whites for successful meringues and angel food cakes.

The home economists and dietitians at the Pillsbury Co. report that sugar substitutes, both liquid and granule can be used without problems in recipes which contain sugar mainly for flavor or sweetening: appetizers, beverages, main dishes, meat recipes, soups and non dessert sauces and vegetables.

Groceries Should Get Home Quickly

Transportation of food from the supermarket to the home is critical and becomes especially important when purchasing perishable and frozen items. Temperature changes should be kept to a minimum.

Groceries left in a car trunk on a warm day spoil quickly. To eliminate the chances of bacteria spreading, it is wise to make the supermarket the last stop before returning home.

Keeping Weight Off On Holidays

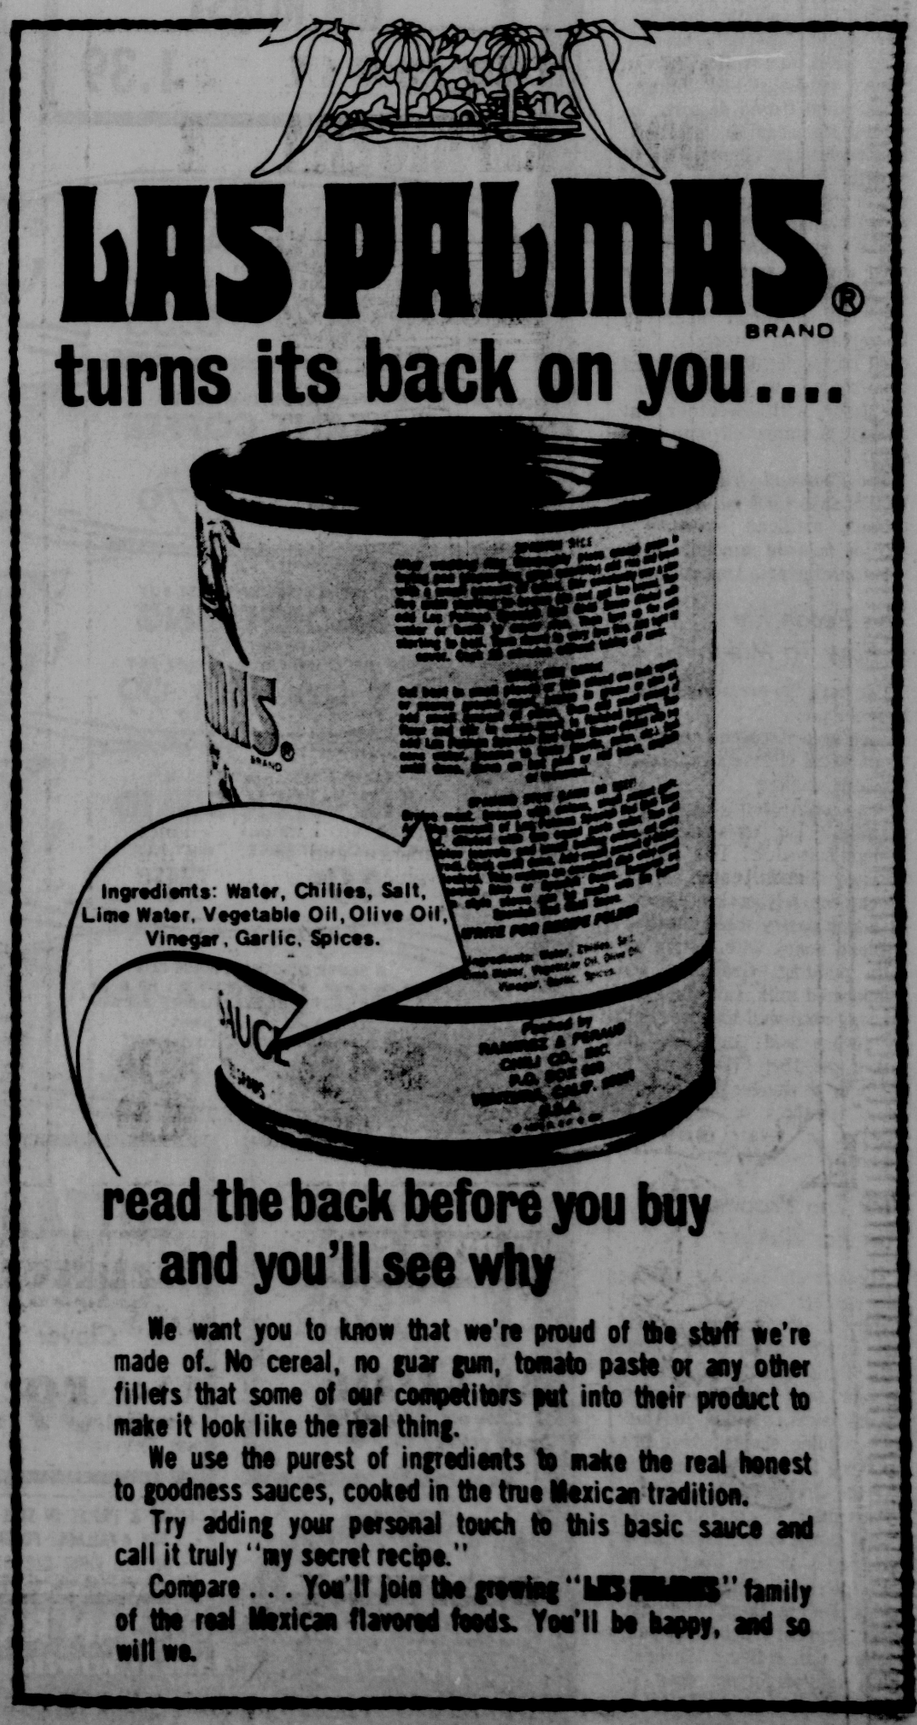
Christmas dinner, sugar plums, New Year's Eve parties and holiday snacks — they all have something in common. They're fattening.

How do you keep those pounds off during the holiday season? In his book "Let's Talk About Food," Dr. Philip White of the American Medical Association has offered some suggestions.

Taste all the holiday goodies, but don't eat too much of any one item. Most people know how much they can eat each day without gaining weight, and that knowledge should be used as a guide.

A couple of days before the holiday feasting, make it a point to eat less. This is better then dieting later. Also, it eases the conscience, allowing for a really enjoyable holiday fare.

Holiday treats are usually rich in calories. Many of those extra calories can be avoided by preparing special goodies. Many of today's cookbooks include special sections of low calorie cookies and cakes — try some of these.



USDA Releases Its 'Survival Kit'

NEW YORK (UPI) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture calls the latest edition of its annual yearbook a survival kit for 1975.

The formal title is "Shopper's Guide." It is a collection of articles by specialists on food, materials, equipment, gardening, services and recreation that tells how to get the most for your money.

You won't find many new ideas in the food articles. One contributor suggests using a larger share of your dollar for milk and milk products, fruit, vegetables, cereals and bakery products, and less of each dollar for meat group foods, fats, oils, sugars, sweets, coffee, tea and soft drinks.

For months, shoppers questioned in markets have said they are doing just that, and they still find it hard to feed their families adequately.

SO WHAT ELSE is new?

There are tables of comparative costs on food that might faze even a new-math expert.

One shows the cost of cooked lean from specific kinds of cuts of meat, poultry and fish at specific retail prices, ranging upwards from 30 cents to $1.90 per pound.

In some Manhattan supermarkets, even meatless marrow bones for soup cost more than 30 cents a pound.

Another yearbook contributor writes:

"For instance, for four 3-ounce servings of cooked meat, chicken wings are a better buy if three pounds of them cost less than a two-and-a-quarter-pound whole chicken."

Dandy — if your family prefers chicken wings to legs or breasts, both of which contain more meat and less skin than wings.

DOES YOUR family like potatoes? The yearbook says mashed potatoes made from scratch need almost one and one-fourth pounds for four half-cup servings, compared with less than a pound for parsley-buttered spuds. Fine. But instant mashed potatoes, which at last report were outselling fresh ones, are cheaper still on a per portion basis.

A freezer can help hold down food bills if you use it economically, the yearbook says. But remember that the amount and kind of food you freeze influence operating costs. A freezer uses more energy to freeze some foods than others and it wastes energy if the door is opened and closed frequently and unnecessarily.

Home gardeners benefit most, particularly if they grow more than they can consume during harvest seasons. Fresh produce from roadside stands and farms, fruits and vegetables bought from "pick your own" operations and grocery specials also are good freezer buys, the yearbook added.

Economist Richard Kerr and home economist Cynthia Cromwell worked out a formula for well-balanced meals at low cost by rejuggling the amounts spent on specific foods: it allots more of each food dollar for milk, cheese, ice cream, vegetables, fruit, cereal and bakery products and less for meat, poultry, fish, eggs, legumes, beans and peas and other foods such as snacks and soft drinks.

SUGAR

these products in which sugar performs a specific function, they report: specialty breads, sweet rolls and coffee cakes; cakes; frostings and fillings; candy; and frozen desserts including ice cream and sherbert. For cookies, a combination of sweetner with brown sugar, syrup or molasses usually gives a better product.

Plain yeast bread and rolls need a small amount of sugar as "yeast food", they continued, but additional sugar can be replaced by sweetner. Custard or cornstarch-thickened desserts can be prepared successfully with sweetner but quality is improved with part sugar.

The Food and Drug Administration says 1,000 milligrams of granule artificail sweetner a day is a safe amount, even when used over a long period.

This Pecan Pie Is Easy To Make

Use honey to create this easy-to-make pie.

1 cup mild flavored honey
1 package (4½ oz.) vanilla instant pudding
¾ cup undiluted evaporated milk
½ tspn salt
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup coarsely broken pecans
1 9-inch pastry shell, unbaked

Blend honey with instant vanilla pudding. Gradually add evaporated milk, salt and eggs, stirring until well blended. Fold in pecans and pour into unbaked pie shell. Heat oven to 375 degrees (moderate). Bake 50 to 55 minutes or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Makes 8 servings.

Pick The Proper Pan For Baking

The size and shape of baking pans affect the volume and texture of foods, such as loaf and layer cakes, bread and rolls. Pans with too high sides prevent good browning on the top of cakes, cookies and biscuits. Cookie sheets which are too large for the oven interfere with the circulation of heat.

Pans made of glass or enamel and those of tin which have darkened with use, absorb and hold the heat. Therefore any food baked in them will bake faster where it touches the pan. A shiny pan reflects the heat, and a lightweight pan does not hold the heat, so foods baked in these pans tend to cook slowly.

Wine Pickled Fruit Has Gourmet Touch For Meal

Wine Pickled Fruit, prepared in an oven cooking bag, offers a gourmet touch to meals.

Almost any combination of fruits, including dried, can go into the pickling syrup. Start with figs and raisins then add something tart such as apricots. Use your imagination to combine color and shapes.

Drain fruit well when serving alongside meat slices. The syrup keeps well and is reusable so add more fruit to it as the pickled fruit is taken out.

WINE PICKLED FRUIT

1 cup white vinegar
1¼ cup sweet white wine
1⅓ cup honey (16 oz. jar)
2 2-inch cinnamon sticks
14 whole cloves
1 quart dried fruits, any combination

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place family size (14 inch x 20 inch) oven cooking bag in deep baking pan or casserole. Add liquids and spices; stir with wooden spoon to blend. Add fruit.

Close bag with twist tie; make six half-inch slits in top of bag near tie. Cook 45 minutes or until dried fruits are plumped and tender.

Chill in bag at least 3 hours before serving. To serve, drain fruits well. Pickling syrup keeps well refrigerated and may be reused; as fruits are taken out, add more to pickle in the syrup. Serve pickled fruits with meats or in small amounts on breakfast plate. Makes eight servings.

Mushrooms

Halfway House Smooths The Path Back From Prison Life

HOUSTON (UPI) — The 70-mile bus ride from Goree prison unit for women in East Texas to Houston is lonely and frightening for a released convict.

Often her thoughts drift to the life that sent her to prison — theft, drugs, prostitution. Not much to look forward to beyond the $100 the prison gives her except the same life on the streets she lived before.

BUT IF SHE'S one of the lucky ones, she'll be met at the station by Peggy McCoy, 42, a three-time loser who has spent 12 years behind bars.

Mrs. McCoy, an attractive, doe-eyed woman, greets the ex-convict with a smile and a hug and offers her a home, a chance, a new start, through the New Directions halfway house for women.

"It's harder for women to come back to society and face it and cope with it," Mrs. McCoy said in an interview, sitting in the halfway house's warm, comfortable living room.

"A MAN can come back and he can walk in and apply for a job and they'll probably say, "Oh well, the boy's a good ol' boy. He just got caught stealing food for his kids."

"But you let a girl walk in and ask for a job and say that she's an ex-convict and immediately their thoughts come to 'Well, she's no good. She's not a fit mother. She must be a prostitute. It's harder for a woman to take this. This is why so many of them haven't been able to make it."

When Mrs. McCoy was released from prison the second time in 1970, there wasn't a New Directions programs waiting. She was soon on heroin again and back in trouble, stealing what she could to support her habit.

ARRESTED AND RELEASED a third time in 1972, she looked up Sonny Wells, a five-times ex-con and founder of the New Directions rehabilitation program for men. After kicking a methadone and heroin habit, she persuaded Wells to open a similar program for women.

Since the halfway house for women opened a year ago, 82 women have lived there. Only one has gone back to jail.

"Our program is to try to help a person when they've been involved in the criminal justice system some way," Mrs. McCoy said.

"Maybe they're on drugs, maybe alcohol, maybe just family living problems. But let's find out what the problem is. Once you do away with the drugs, you still got to deal with the problem."

THE STAFF is made up entirely of ex-convicts. In the group therapy sessions and the

MONEYWISE ADVICE

Use Credit Card If Sales Really Do Offer Savings

By ROBERT EDWARDS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Every year the questions roll in — "Should we break down and use our credit cards to take advantage of after-Christmas sales? We're out of cash from holiday spending, but bargains are tempting."

Often such questions come from couples who worked hard to pay off revolving bank credit-card balances and swore they would never get behind again. "But, wouldn't we be ahead if we bought clothes and furniture we need at sale prices, even though we'd pay a finance charge?"

WHEN PHRASED in those terms, buying goods a family needs — really needs, not just wants — on credit can save money overall. Booby traps pose hazards when paying-back time arrives, but you can protect yourself. Immediately, the trade-off figures out something like the following:

Suppose your family needs shirts, sweaters, dresses or slacks. As an alert money manager, you will have postponed buying staple clothing until sales time. If you buy $200 worth of clothing, your saving at 25 per cent is $50 and their cost is $150. Three months' finance charges would amount to $4.50 with partial payments. And the first 25 days are free. The difference between $50 and $4.50 is your savings.

Home-furnishing sales in late January or February offer a once-a-year opportunity to spruce up the house or replace worn furniture. Prices on furniture floor models may be cut 30 to 50 per cent. Or, you can buy custom furniture and select your own fabrics at 20 per cent off. Buying during the sale period on credit and paying off the balance over a few months still affords net savings of 12 to 20 per cent. On a $500 sofa that could mean a $75 to $100 bonus.

AT A RECENT bankers' convention, one speaker reported 29 per cent of consumers sampled in a survey were holding

Women Find School Meets New Goals

By JOAN LISETOR

The College of Marin's Women's Education Program has completed its first semester, serving approximately 800 women from a variety of backgrounds, but all with the same need.

Whether low income or affluent, well educated or uneducated, all have a need to contribute something meaningful, according to Inez D'Arcy, public relations coordinator for the program.

Diane Wickstrom, coordinator of the program, led a task force of community research assistants who last spring met with women throughout Marin to talk about their needs was used in setting up the Women's Education Program and a woman's center at the college.

Coordinators of the program believe there are still women in the community who want to reenter college but are held back because they are not aware of the services available to them.

"MANY WOMEN are held back because they have a pervasive fear of taking tests," Ms. D'Arcy said. "If they contact the woman's center we can offer them help in the areas in which they feel inadequate."

The first service offered to inquiring women is an appointment with a peer counselor, who has been trained to sort out her needs, and will talk to her on an informal basis, Ms. D'Arcy said. If a woman has doubts about a career, the program has college facilities, such as the career guidance center, which can be utilized. A counselor may suggest tests to find out where the woman's interests and aptitude are.

"A woman came to the center last summer who had been thinking of going back to school for 10 years, but she was terrified of tests," Ms. D'Arcy said. "She was timid and fearful because she had poor English skills. Also, her husband was leaving her. She was a La Raza woman, so we contacted another La Raza woman, and a friendship developed. She enrolled in an English As A Second Language class and made more friends. Now she is one of our peer counselors and will counsel women who have English as a second language. This woman has blossomed and gained self confidence."

Most of the women reentering the college are not uneducated. Many are "miseducated" or trained in a dead-end situation.

Another woman, single and the mother of six children, felt isolated in Marin City and doomed to day work to provide for her children. She found a job helping at a day care center.

Through Eva Turner, director of community liaison for the college, she learned of the preschool teacher education program, enrolled, and this June will be graduated with an AA degree. The woman has a job as a teacher in the same day care center where she started working cleaning the floors.

"TOP PRIORITY is given to women who have to support themselves, children or maybe even husbands or parents," she said. "For these women we have deliberately found out where jobs are and where they will be in the next five years, what the remuneration is and — very important — what chances there are for a woman to be employed in those areas."

An increasing number of women ask about vocational courses, engineering and accounting, she said.

"Women want career satisfaction, and they are willing to

Teachers Stress Getting Out Of Passive Feminism

By JOAN LISETOR

"There are a lot of women who feel stuck in roles of mother, wife, homemaker and don't know how to make those fulfilling roles or how to get out of them. There are also a lot of women who don't have to work but feel they have to do something productive outside of the home. These women are confused," said Sue Schmidt of San Rafael, who with Donna McGuinn of Kentfield will teach several classes sponsored by the San Rafael Adult Education Department.

The classes will be geared toward women and parents of both sexes who have a vague sense of discontentment, Ms. McGuinn said.

The women met two years ago when both were in the master's program in humanistic psychology at Sonoma State College.

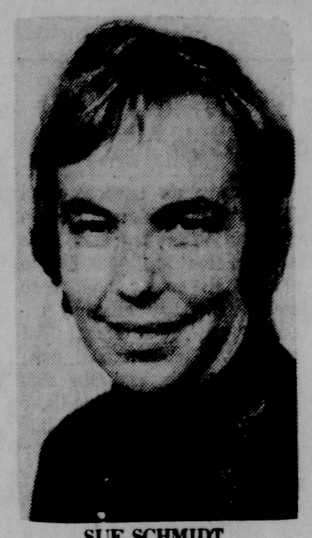
Ms. Schmidt is a graduate of the University of Oregon with a degree in journalism. She worked for a few years in the women's department at the San Francisco Examiner in the 1950s, then went to San Francisco State College for a teaching credential. She taught psychology and English for 10 years, the last few at Tamalpais High School. She decided to study for a master's degree after a few years as a volunteer instructor at the Family Service Agency of Marin.

Ms. McGuinn did not finish high school. At 19 she was divorced with two children and decided to enroll at College of Marin. Working nights as a cocktail waitress she supported her children and put herself through Sonoma State and California Institute of the Arts in Los Angeles.

THE TWO women led workshops on "Women in Action" and "Breaking Free" at the national Women in Transition conference held at Asilomar Nov. 29 through Dec. 1 and sponsored by the Association for Humanistic Psychology.

"Women are programmed not to know what they want and to devalue their abilities and achievements," Ms. McGuinn said. "Feminism is defined as passive, nurturing and intuitive. The stuff of it is already there to be assertive."

"Our goal is to teach women how to be assertive, to know what they want, go after it and not be afraid," Ms. Schmidt said.



SUE SCHMIDT

DONNA MC GUINN
Exploding myths

"If you feel good you can give, be creative and a joy to be around. People are afraid the women's movement is saying it wants to take women out of the home. Why? If you give women a sense that it is okay to get what they want out of life they will feel good, and that can't help but overflow to their families."

IF A WOMAN'S needs are fulfilled she an give to her family, but if she is doing nothing but fulfilling her family's needs it creates negative feelings which have to spill over on her family, Ms. Schmidt said.

Two of the classes the women taught in the fall, "Women in Action" and "Values Clarification," will continue this semester. Purpose of "Women in Action" was to form a support group to help women make changes in their lives. "Values Clarification" helped people clarify what they prize, what choices they have and what they are willing to act upon.

"Before they came to the classes all they knew were two choices, stay in their marriages or get out. We showed them there were more choices and how to be in that role in a different way," Ms. Schmidt said.

"LAST SEMESTER we found the people needed to be listened to, and they needed skills to communicate. Most were financially secure but were feeling heavy burdens of responsibility. They were stuck in roles they didn't even realize," Ms. McGuinn said. "The women said while they were taking the classes their relationships with their husbands and kids were getting better."

There is a concern the instructors share that the women will slip back into their old roles. A solution to this would be to train women so they could train other women.

"We had to deal with trust among women," Ms. McGuinn said.

"Several women said for the first time they trusted other women. There is not much of a chance, without trust, of building communication," Ms. Schmidt said.

THE INSTRUCTORS developed the curriculum for the classes and convinced the San Rafael Board of Education that women in Marin needed courses to help them deal with the women's movement. They will also teach "Psychology of Crisis," dealing with such crisis as illness, death, parent-child clashes, marital rifts and alcohol and drug problems; beginning and intermediate transactional analysis courses, "Games People Are Playing;" "Early Childhood Observations," an observation and discussion of pre-school children; and the "Nurturing Family," which will cover new ways of responding to partners and children.

All of the courses will have an underlying theme, examining messages the culture has

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Physical Education Woes Recalled By Several Readers

RAP:

That letter from "No P.E. Perfectionist" really hit home with me. I dreaded physical education so much in school I did everything to get out of it. I finally stopped going, and, of course, I failed it.

The reason? I was so uncoordinated that I could not hit the volleyball over the net, put a basketball in the hoop or even bat a softball, let alone catch it! I could run fast barefoot, but with sneakers on, I tripped over my own feet.

The teachers just became angry with me. They never cared how I felt when no one wanted me on their team — they just felt sorry for the "poor team" that got stuck with me.

Gym teachers for the most part have no feelings. Because THEY are athletic, they think eveyrone can be. — HEIDI

DEAR RAP:

"No P.E. Perfectionist" brought back too, too many nightmares. My family moved from the South (where P.E. meant 'exercising') to New Jersey, and I was introduced to such equipment as the horse, buck and parallel bars.

The petite gym teacher made me look like an awkward monster while the class laughed. So I tried the stunts she insisted on, because at that time, flunking gym meant not graduating. I ended up flat on the floor with a broken chin and both jaws broken. I stayed in the hospital 18 days, had my mouth wired shut and lived on a liquid diet for 12 weeks. To this day, I have the scars of broken teeth, a twisted mouth when when I laugh, and recurrent head and earaches.

I can't watch a basketball game or acrobatics on TV without bitter memories. Yet I can't blame the teacher entirely. I blame the system that forces too high standards on students. — FROM THE CLASS OF '65

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I think P.E. should be an elective course. Forcing kids to take it only turns them off. — MARTHA

RAP:

I strongly disagree with "No P.E. Perfectionist" who said gym teachers should show some kindness to nonachievers.

I too am an uncoordinated kid, and I have had no trouble at all. My gym teachers have done everything possible to make P.E. easier and more interesting. They give me encouragement, extra tries at shooting baskets, etc. and, most important, they keep the kids from needling me. I'll bet there are many gym teachers like mine. — LUCKY

RAP:

Lucas Tanner's "Klutz Class' was a great idea. Put the poor athletes in special classes and give me encouragement, extra tries at shooting baskets, and, most important, they keep the kids from needling me. I'll bet there are many gym teachers like mine. — LUCKY

RAP:

DEAR RAP:

My mother has been divorced two years and is in love with someone else. My little sister has been in school for crippled children, but Dad took her out. He won't let her live with Mom unless Mom agrees to remarry him.

We love my sister and want her with us, but Dad says there'll have to be a court case; and because Mom isn't married to the man she loves, it could go against her. Which should it be — her daughter or her guy? She wants me to help her decide, so please don't tell us it's our decision. We're — TORN BETWEEN TWO

DEAR TBT:

A man who would use his crippled daughter as a bribe isn't our idea of the world's greatest husband and father. Your mother's loveless remarriage to him might cause much unhappiness for everyone.

We lean toward the court case. Don't you? Because all things being equal, courts usually award custody of young children to their mothers. If your mother is afraid to take a chance, then maybe we don't know all the details. — HELEN AND SUE.

Handling money is a necessary skill that children should learn vrom their parents. It is a skill that will serve them through their lifetimes, and it is an important skill for both boys and girls. Our economy is such that the more children can learn about handling — and managing — money the more they will be the masters over money as adults, rather than the other way around.

The job of teaching this skill is not difficult, but you as a parent will find it important to keep the learning experiences at a child's level. That means using words, terms and examples that the child understands. Let's take a look at some ways you can do this.

Show your children that money can serve in three ways:

It can be an immediate reward for services we've done.

It can serve as a motivator toward helping us see that our work leads to acquiring the things we want or need.

It can serve us through saving it — we invest, usually in a savings account — where it not only "rests" for our future use, but it also earns interest.

EASY WAYS to do this would be a plan some projects with each child in your family. These projects should be tailored to that child's own needs, interests and motivations. A conference with your child will reveal the things your child wants. List these according to short-range or low-cost items and long-range or more expensive items. Help your child select items which are in harmony with your family's situation or home environment.

Set up these goals as projects and help your child design a plan that will help in attaining the goals. The plan should be like a budget — so much money is needed for the goal, so much is coming in, so much is needed for other purchases — leaving an amount to be saved for the goal.

Block out two or three months or whatever time you think would be reasonable for attaining the goals. Keep in mind that older children understand time concepts better than younger children so they will be better able to understand longer range projects.

Be sure the child (regardless of age) has some immediate rewards (within a week or two) as well as long range rewards. Nothing succeeds like success. Your child will see that money can bring attainment of some rewards.

Most of your child's earning power will probably come from whatever allowance he or she is able to earn — and you are able to pay. Usually an allowance is a reward for the responsibilities your child assumes in the family. Those responsibilities are usually chores such as taking care of pets, helping in the kitchen or helping around the house.

FOR EXCATLY this reason you should not give the child extra money for chores such as taking out the garbage or washing the car. These are duties that the child should learn are a part of the role of a family member. But whenever he or she is assigned a duty, or project "above and beyond" what the usual responsibilities are, the performance of that job should be rewarded.

You can introduce your child to the rudiments of record-keeping by having him or her keep track of income, expenses and of how close the goal is. A sheet of notebook paper is sufficient for the "books." You needn't be elaborate or advanced. Remember it is the elements of money handling you are trying to teach.

Teach your child to respect the value of money by helping him or her earn some or all of the money needed for special things. Buying children everything they want will not teach the value of earning money and building personal resources. Yet you do want your child to see that money can be used to help bring happiness to them

Sudden Death Risks Explored

NEW YORK (UPI) — SID stands for Sudden Infant Death. To decrease this, science hopes to identify high-risk infants before birth.

Drs. R. G. Carpenter of the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine and H. L. Emery of the Children's Hospital in Sheffield, found the risk of death falls as the mother's age rises.

Author Urges More Research Funds

NEW YORK (AP) — It's too late to help her son, who died at age 22 of acute leukemia, but Doris Lund still hopes to see us "get our priorities right."

"The amount of money we spend on experimental weapons is out of proportion to medical funds for research on cancer. "This," she declares, "is the enemy that can cross any border, pick any lock; you can put an army around the White House and it can get in. There is no defense except research."

ONE OF THE FEW times she recalls seeing her son, Eric, bitter was when she saw a big newspaper headline telling of billions just appropriated by Congress for a new fighter-bomber project, while a smaller headline told of cutbacks in funds for cancer research.

"On Ewing 8 (the chemotherapy ward of the hospital he was in and out of a dozen times) it didn't do you any good to be rich, to have status," Mrs. Lund says. "What mattered was humor, courage, relating."

And these attributes he had plenty of, his mother remembers proudly. Author of eight children's books and many magazine articles, she has now told the story of her son's gallant 4½-year fight against the illness that struck him at age 17 in a book titled simply, "Eric."

GALLANT FIGHTER — At age 18½, a year after he was stricken with acute leukemia, Eric Lund was still swimming, playing soccer and running 10 miles a day between trips to the hospital.

"IT'S A PRIVILEGE to bear witness to someone who undergoes an experience like this and does it so well, with grace and humor," she explains. "He suffered much but he managed a kind of compression of life, and seemed fulfilled. If you're really on the beam and really appreciate things you can live a lot in a short time."

Just about to start his freshman year when he got sick, Eric eventually did go to college, where he played soccer for three seasons, was elected captain of his team and named to All-New England All Stars.

This while he was being put on one drug after another, fighting nausea, his hair falling out, his face swelling from the drugs' effects. He had six remissions, each harder to achieve and shorter than the previous one. Eric was first told he had anemia, but the need for transfusions and other treatment meant he soon had to know the truth. His parents had been informed at the start that their son had six months to two years to live.

"IT WAS LIKE a lightning bolt had struck," the soft-spoken Mrs. Lund says. "I felt as if my whole body had been split. My instant defense was 'We'll save him somehow.' "

As for her husband, "All he said was 'Oh, really,' but he changed in that moment and I don't think he's ever been the same. People tend to believe the myth that trouble brings people closer together, but it depends on whether they can communicate. Sidney, being a scientist, put his hopes in science and the machinery. I realized sooner than my husband that it might not work out. I was looking at all the people around the chemotherapy ward, learning their names, watching them go."

When she told Eric, she adds, he first got "very sick." Then he said, "It's all right, mom. I can handle it. I'm going to beat it. I'm glad it isn't Mark."

HE INSISTED on being the one to tell his brother Mark, then 14, says Mrs. Lund, who has two other children, daughters Meredith and Lisa.

He also insisted on living a full and active life — traveling, working, running 10 miles a day to keep in shape between hospital stays ranging from a few days to a few months.

"HE GAVE A LOT, daring to love the other patients and accepting the risk of losing them," his mother says. "The night he died I went around and told everyone he knew.

"He didn't talk to me about death. By the time he knew he was going to die he had Mary Lou, and they talked about it," she says, referring to the nurse with whom he had a short but happy love affair.

Cotton Swab Villain In Child Deafness

CHICAGO (UPI) — Cotton-tipped swabs have been blamed as a major cause of injury and hearing loss when they are used to remove ear wax.

Northwestern University pediatrician Dr. Harvey Kravitz writes in the current issue of Clinical Pediatrics that mothers who use swabs to clean wax from the ear may ram the wax deeper into the hearing canal and plug the ear.

"All that parents need to do to clean the child's ears is to wash the ear with soap, water and a wash cloth and dry the external ear with a towel," Kravitz said. "Some cerumen (wax) is normally present in everyone's ears and should be left alone. The removal of the impacted cerumen should be left to the physician."

The pediatrician said the use of swabs usually begins with newborn infants and sometimes continues for many years.

A survey showed inner city mothers were more frequent users of the swabs than suburban mothers, and nearly twice as many inner-city children had hearing loss due to impacted wax, Kravitz said.

Registered Nurses Stick With Career

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most registered nurses do not give up their careers after working a few years to marry and have children. The popular belief is that most do.

A nurse career-pattern research project by the National League for Nursing found that approximately 68 per cent of the nurses are working as nurses, either full or part-time, five years after graduation.

out against using credit cards because they feared overspending. That figure has increased from 22 per cent only two years earlier. If you recognize the booby trap of possible, even probable overspending, you can profit from credit purchases at after-Christmas sales. Just proceed cautiously and follow these tips:

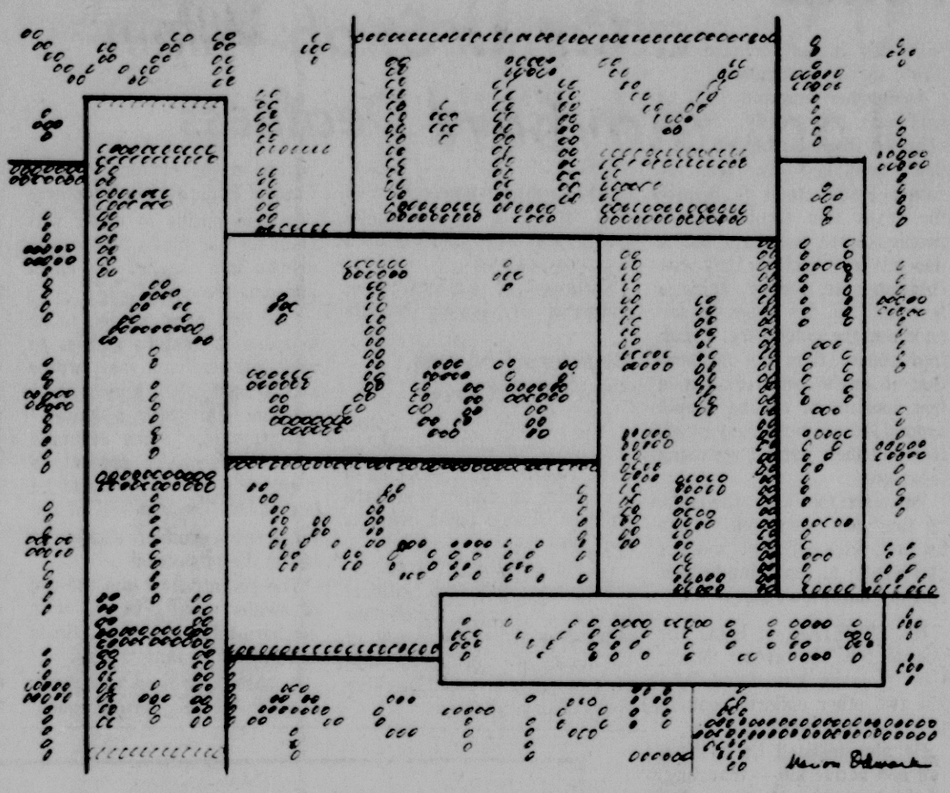
Determine your real need for clothing or home furnishings. Ads encourage families to buy at sale prices. If you need an item badly enough to pay full price, then go ahead. But, if only the lower price motivates you to buy — pass it up.

Remember your wish-list priorities. When we satisfy one need, another pops up immediately to take its place. If you stick to your quick-repayment plan, you must postpone buying new goods and services later. Otherwise, you're off and spinning on the credit card merry-go-round.

DON'T PAY MORE for goods on credit than you would if you paid cash. You will save no money if you succumb to the urge to upgrade quality and pay the same dollars for reduced-price goods instead of buying your usual quality of clothes or furnishings at lesser prices.

Determine where the cash to repay the charged purchases will be coming from. And don't forget Social Security taxes will be taking a big chunk out of paychecks for more months in 1975. Don't get trapped into a game of putting off one bill to pay another. Just be sure you can see the pay-back dollars ahead.

Next fall plan to set money aside in anticipation of after-Christmas sales. They're no surpirse; they happen every year. By paying cash, you gain full savings from reduced prices.



Needlework Graffiti Is Great For The Beginner

By MARION ODMARK
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

What can you do with a little needlepoint canvas and a lot of leftover yarn?

There are all you need for a bold new needlepoint — patchword graphics. Alphabetical letters, used alone or in monograms, words of special meaning, or favorite sayings make up a modern design motif for pillows and pictures.

YOU DO NOT NEED special artistic talent. You do not need pens, paints, brushes. You do not even need to be able to draw. But a sense of composition, color contrasts, and visual balance becomes all too obvious as you progress. You make your own statement your way — the essence of any artistic expression.

Think "patchwork," and do one word patch or unit at a time. That way you won't be intimidated by the expanse of black canvas. The more irregular the patches and the greater variety of word and letter sizes you combine in odd arrangements and colors, the more interesting the work becomes.

STRANGE THINGS invariably happen with the first stitches if you let your imagination take over. Let the creative process carry you along on its own momentum.

As you finish one patch, you will find an idea for another. Experiment with simple fill-in patterns for the space between patches — basic stitch formations afford emphasis and breathing space for the graphics. And there is no monotony in the doing.

Of all the countless pieces of needlepoint I have made and exhibited in galleries and shows, none has aroused more conversation and study than a pair of pillows in patchwork graphics. "What is this all about?" one visitor asked. "A grammarian's graffiti?"

ONE PILLOW uses the words WILL, LOVE, FAITH, JOY, LIFE, WORK, VIRTUE, and ACTION. The companion pillow uses family monograms, interspersed with whimsical touches like "U + I = US."

Equal Rights Adoption Seen By Next June

The California Commission on the Status of Women has completed a survey of state legislatures and predicts that final ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment will occur before June 1975.

The proposed amendment, which was approved by Congress in March 1972, must be ratified by 38 state legislatures before it can be added to the Constitution. Thirty-three states including California have ratified it thus far.

Of the 17 remaining states, 14 legislatures will convene in January and will hear resolutions for approval of the ERA. A poll revelas that four (North Dakota, Oklahoma, North Carolina, and Missouri) are expected to ratify quickly.

Several other states including Arizona, Illinois, Indiana and Nevada show a very close vote count, and all have a possibility of being the deciding vote.

"This is an issue whose time has come," Commission chairperson Anita Miller said.

Parent-Child Course Slated

Family Service Agency of Marin will offer a six week SHARE (sensitive hearing and relationship enrichment) course beginning Feb. 11 at 1:30 p.m. at the Novato Human Needs Center.

The course is designd to assist parents in learning ways to foster sharing and understanding between parent and child through awareness and practice of communication skills.

Further information is available from Janice Ardell, family life educator at the agency. Tuition for the course is $16 for the six week session. A fee adjustment is available.

COLLEGE

take the training and are exceptional achievers. Through feedback from the instructors we have learned that in an engineering class (of 25) the fur top students are women," she said.

She believes the mature women attending school are a stimulant to the younger students, and that the program is of value to the student body in general.

Because a lack of child care was the major problem keeping women from going back to school, child care centers were established on the campus and at the old West End School in San Rafael. Since these centers serve only low income mothers, the staff felt the need to establish a satellite baby sitting program, which will go into effect next semester.

Some children are too young, others too old for the child care centers. Others cannot take advantage of it because of a lack of transportation, so the program will have a list of babysitters who will care for the children in their own homes. Federal funds will be used to subsidize the program, which, unlike the child care centers, will be available to more than just low income persons.

Services at the center are not limited to women, according to Ms. D'Arcy. Men have received counseling and help with child care.

"THERE ARE women who have had training, a family and accomplished all that society says they should in order to be happy, and there are women who have given up because they have not accomplished all that society says they need to be happy. It's ironic; they both end up with the same need: to have a feeling of accomplishment and to need to believe they are still needed," she said.

The woman's center is open during the school vacation, and women interested in the program should call now, she said. Registration will be taken through Jan. 20.

A schedule of the classes and registration information is available from the San Rafael City Schools office. Classes will begin the week of Jan. 6 at several locations in San Rafael.

Hostess Waits To Don Finery

and others, so you will want to "treat" your child to a special gift or purchase from time to time. Strike the happy medium between earning and getting.

one-to-one encounters, they know what's going through the women's minds.

"We let them know we're here and that we know. We're a family," Mrs. McCoy said. "I went to prison the first time in 1957 and nobody asked me what my problem was I just did my time and got out.

"But I got pretty well educated in prison. That's where I learned what dope was about and what pimps were about. I have two children who are now 24 and 20 and my husband took full custody of them. So it was real easy for me to stay in that bag that nobody really cared or understood me.

"BASICALLY I would say every girl's problem is the same as mine — wanting to be loved, wanting to be accepted. In this program, we have trouble with people not wanting to leave and they come back after they move out on their own. This becomes home."

New Directions recently opened a second halfway house for women. The two homes can accommodate about 30 residents. The women are free to find jobs, date and spend weekends away. But someone is always on hand if needed.

"IF IT WASN'T for this program, I would probably be doing a life sentence," Mrs. McCoy said. "I say that New Directions saved my life.

"It wasn't any big hassle for me because I was tired and I was ready to find another way to live. I think all of us reach this point sometime in our lives, but if there's not somebody there to tell us some of the things you have to go through, it's rough.

"It hurts to change your lifestyle. But once you make up your mind to do these changes and take a risk, it gets better each time."

THE SORCERER SPINS MAGIC

A sorcerer (Neal McDermott) instructs his apprentice, Dave Sandusky (center) in the art of magic as another pageboy, Gray Ainsworth, listens. The scene is from an original medieval fantasy, "Night of the 13th Moon," to be presented by the Magic Circle at 2 and 4 p.m. Saturday at the San Rafael Improvement Club. In the play by Marion Hayes Cain, the magic is not the old, nasty kind, but a nice type designed to bring the spirit of Christmas to a family which lives in a castle.

Stars Crowd 'Orient Express'

By DAVID STERRITT
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

"It is incredible, monsieur. All the world elects to travel tonight!"

But then, this is no ordinary train. This is the Orient Express. And this is no ordinary night. There's murder afoot. And this is no ordinary movie.

"Murder on the Orient Express" comes from Agatha Christie's clockwork-precise novel of the same title (published in the United States as "Murder in the Calais Coach"). Like Dame Cristie's creation, it functions on a splendidly primitive artistic level. Nothing happens that doesn't have to. Everything that does occur has a specific and delicately measured purpose within the whole.

Sidney Lumet has directed the onscreen "Orient Express," though, and Lumet is not so stuffy a worker as Poirot. Believe it or not, the man who filmed "The Pawnbroker" and "Serpico" has quite a talent for escapist fun, and all that talent shows through his newest offering. "Orient Express" thunders along at a rollicking pace, playing it equally for laughs and suspense, succeeding best with the laughs.

And then there's that fabulous cast. Miss Bergman provides one of the year's bravura performances as a stammering and suspicious missionary. Perkins indulges his greatest talent — getting nervous — as effectively as in "Psycho." As for the others, everyone shines splendidly. And the movie's biggest mystery is how Finney manages to perform so persuasively buried under all that hilarious Poirot makeup.

"Murder on the Orient Express" is less austere and unswerving than the novel it's based on, or the traditional drawing-room-mystery genre that it nostalgically recalls. How could it help being a lush entertainment with all those stars — to say nothing of music by Richard Rodney Bennett, cinematography by Geoffrey Unsworth, design by Tony Walton, and so forth? It remains a highold time even when it gets a trifle silly or slow or confusing.

So catch this crafty Calais coach while you can. It will probably be a while before we're again invited to travel in such a diverting room on wheels.

Rebels Of Portuguese Colonies Use Art To Maintain Efforts

By ROBIN WRIGHT
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Art is as important to liberation movements as guerrilla warfare — and perhaps even more essential.

The strongly expressive works by tribes in Portugal's current and former African colonies, pulled together from 24 private and museum collections, attempts to prove the importance of culture during resistance to foreign rule.

The attempt succeeds. The sustaining vibrancy of each culture's traditions through 400 years of Portuguese domination is evident in the chiefly wood and brass sculpture. An amusing touch that further confirms the cultural loyalty are the pieces from Angola and Mozambique that caricature the dress and behavior of white administrators and tourists.

But while there is a common theme and even a common mocking, there are few similarities among the styles of art from the three geographically and politically disparate nations. The many tribes represented in the show each have their own distinctive form and style.

Guinea-Bissau's main contributions, for example, are the Nimba dance yokes of the Baga tribe. The most notable art in Angola comes from the Chokwe people, whose highly regarded work is in the forms of masks, chairs, and utilitarian objects. And the Makonde of Mazambique are famous for their human figures and helmet masks.

Most of the works will be unkown to the Western public, not because they are of poor quality. The sculpture and carvings have rarely been displayed outside of their own countries. This is the first time the art of all three nations has been on display outside Portugal, another reason the show is unusual and important.

The Institute's small gallery is a good setting for the collection, for they have not taken the pieces out of context as most exhibitors of African art too often do.

Even the theme was drawn from a liberation leader, Amilcar Cabral, who headed Guinea-Bissau's independence movement until he was assassinated in early 1973. As he said in a speech just before his death:

"Culture has proved to be the very foundation of the liberation movement. Only societies which preserve their cultures are able to mobilize and organize themselves against foreign domination."

CHAMBER REPORT

Elevated Freeway Recommended

By NELS JOHNSON

Highway 101 near San Rafael's southern entranceway should be realigned and elevated as part of city redevelopment plans, according to the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce.

The freeway should be shifted west at Bellam Boulevard, follow the old Northwest Pacific railroad spur and link up with existing freeway at Second and Irwin streets, reported Andrew James Ring III, chairman and spokesman of a chamber redevelopment committee.

The move would require construction of 4,800 feet of elevated freeway, Ring said. The portion of Highway 101 bypassed by the new thoroughfare would become a local "parkway" complete with through streets lining Bret Harte and downtown San Rafael with the Canal area, he said.

Ring estimated the new roadway would cost $2.5 million and could be erected in about five years.

The realignment would also require a major new intersection linking the head of the railroad spur at Bellam Boulevard with Highways 101 and 17, Ring said. The interchange would provide for a roadway north of Albert field, allowing east-west through traffic to skirt downtown San Rafael, he said.

Under the plan, auto dealerships along Francisco Boulevard would remain where they are, but auto service and repair facilities would relocate to the swath of land formed by the parkway and the realigned freeway, Ring said.

Plans by city consultants to widen Highway 101 as is would "wipe out" auto dealerships along Francisco Boulevard, Ring said. He called the realignment the "best solution" for improving traffic flow while retaining quality businesses along the Francisco Boulevard corridor.

He said the new elevated freeway and east-west road would be the same height as elevated portions of Highway 101 that now run through town, and said that design of the new thoroughfare would provide for rapid transit.

"Sound is important. The new freeway will absorb sound if it is properly designed. The existing freeway is poorly designed — it reflects sound."

Ring said the chamber intends to pass its proposal to city consultants for review.

Another Japanese World War Holdout Found In Indonesia

TOKYO (UPI) — A man who claims to be a Japanese World War II holdout has been found in Indonesia, the Japanese government reported today.

A spokesman for the Health and Welfare Ministry, quoting reports from the Japanese Embassy in Jakarta, said the man, clad in rags, was taken into custody by Indonesian Air Force personnel in Morotai, Indonesia's northernmost island in the Molucass group.

The man told Indonesian investigators he had been hiding on the island since World War II ended in August, 1945. The man identified himself as Teruo Nakamura, 57. He is a native of Taiwan and can speak neither Japanese nor Malay fluently, the spokesman said.

The spokesman said two officials of the Japanese Embassy will be sent to Morotai Saturday to interview the man, whose health condition was described as good.

According to officials at the ministry, a former imperial army private first class of the same name has been listed as missing since a battle in Morotai on March 5, 1945.

About a dozen former soldiers, including six Taiwanese, were found on the island in 1955 and repatriated, the officials said.

Former Army Lt. Hiroo Onoda, 51, came out of 29 years hiding in the jungles on the Philippine's Lubang Island in March this year. Another World War II holdout, Shoichi Yokoi, was captured on Guam two years earlier and returned to Japan.

HERMAN L. CHILDRESS
Veteran seeks third term

Childress Seeks A Third Term

The terms of Childress and colleagues Francis X. Kelly and Marilyn Bolinger are expiring.

The San Rafael schools ballot will also list a measure that proposes to boost by $200 the amount of money the school system may spend per pupil.

Childress, 54, seeking his third four-year term on the board, said he is running for reelection because "this is a pretty critical period in the life of the public school system."

He said the school system's financial plight is a major concern and said passage of the $200 revenue increase measure is extremely important. "We'll have critical choices to make if it fails," he said. "With salaries and benefits representing 85 per cent of the budget, you don't have much to play with" as far as cost cutting, he noted.

He said he views the possibility of collective bargaining for teachers with concern. "I would prefer we not have it," he said.

He described himself as a moderate, but said he believes it hazardous to "classify yourself" as a member of a particular educational camp. "I like to look on each issue as it comes along. Obviously, it's essential we give each child a basic education" as well as provide alternative learning approaches for youngsters who require them. "We must keep flexible," he said.

Childress, a native of Cairo, Ill., received a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from the University of Illinois, and won master's honors in chemical engineering from the Carnegie Institute of Technology. He is a veteran of World War II.

He has worked for Standard Oil Co. for the past 28 years, and currently serves as coordinator for development of new products.

He was appointed to the board of education in 1966, and won election to his first full term in 1967. He led a field of nine candidates and won reelection by a sweeping margin in 1971 by polling 5,021 votes.

He is a 16-year resident of San Rafael and lives with his wife, Dorothy, at 24 Dunfries Terrace. The couple's three children are graduates of the city school system.

The last battle of the Civil War was fought at Palmito Hill east of Brownsville, Tex., two months after Robert E. Lee surrendered.

Offshore Lease Hearing Delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interior Department announced today a revised schedule for public hearings on its proposal to triple the rate at which lands on the Outer Continental Shelf are leased for oil and gas.

Originally, the hearings were to be early this month. However, Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton, who also heads President Ford's Energy Resources Council, postponed hearings for two months.

That was to give more time to look over possible environmental impact of the accelerated leasing, Morton said.

Pathet Lao Agression Is Reported

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Communist Pathet Lao troops participated with former CIA-sponsored guerrilla soldiers to seize the northern province town of Ban Houei Sai in violation of the Laos cease-fire accords, government sources said today.

The sources said the violation was reported to the government by the deputy province governor who escaped from the rebel forces following the predawn seizure of the town Tuesday and arrived in Vientiane the following day.

The town, located about 200 miles northwest of Vientiane, and on the Mekong River boundary with Thailand, remained under rebel control today. Government officials held an emergency meeting to discuss the situation and one ranking military official said there would be "no compromise" with the rebels.

The government sources said that Houmphanh Simmasing, the deputy governor of Houa Phan province, reported to the government today that one battalion of about 320 Pathet Lao troops accompanied the approximately 90 dissident former CIA-sponsored guerrilla soldiers who staged the predawn takeover Tuesday.

Houmphanh, who the sources said got away from the rebels the following evening, reported eight government soldiers were wounded in small arms fighting for the military headquarters in Ban Houei Sai, which fell shortly before dawn.

The sources quoted Houmphanh as saying the guerrillas and Pathet Lao troops were occupying key points in and around the town and had issued a list of demands which included "neutralization" of Ban Houei Sai and implementation of an 18-point political program backed by the Pathet Lao.

Under the Laos peace agreement signed in February 1973, the only areas under control of Vientiane forces where Pathet Lao troops are permitted to enter or maintain garrisons are the "neutralized" cities of Vientiane and Luang Prabang. Vientiane is the seat of the coalition government formed last April.

U.S. officials reported that the last direct word they received from 20 American residents of Ban Houei Sai was on Tuesday night. The Americans, mostly U.S. government employees and dependents with some missionaires, were reported safe.

The rebel guerrillas are former members of the CIA organized and paid "clandestine" army which was disbanded with formation of the coalition government. They were later taken into the regular Laotian army at reduced salaries.

One of the two former guerrilla companies involved in the rebellion staged a similar uprising Oct. 18 in which it seized parts of the town to protestpay delays. That uprising ended when government officials agreed to look into their grievances.

Government and other well-informed sources said the latest seizure of the town appeared to be more politically motivated. The Pathet Lao trools who accompanied the guerrillas moved from positions along the cease-fire line, about nine miles north of town.

Fire Blamed On Cigarette

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Fire officials say a cigarette left on a sofa touched off a fire that spread to a Christmas tree, and destroyed a three-bedroom home yesterday, killing five children.

The children, ranging in age from eight months to three years, died in the Christmas morning blaze that destroyed the house in less than 30 minutes.

Three other children and two grandparents who were baby-setting escaped by leaping through windows.

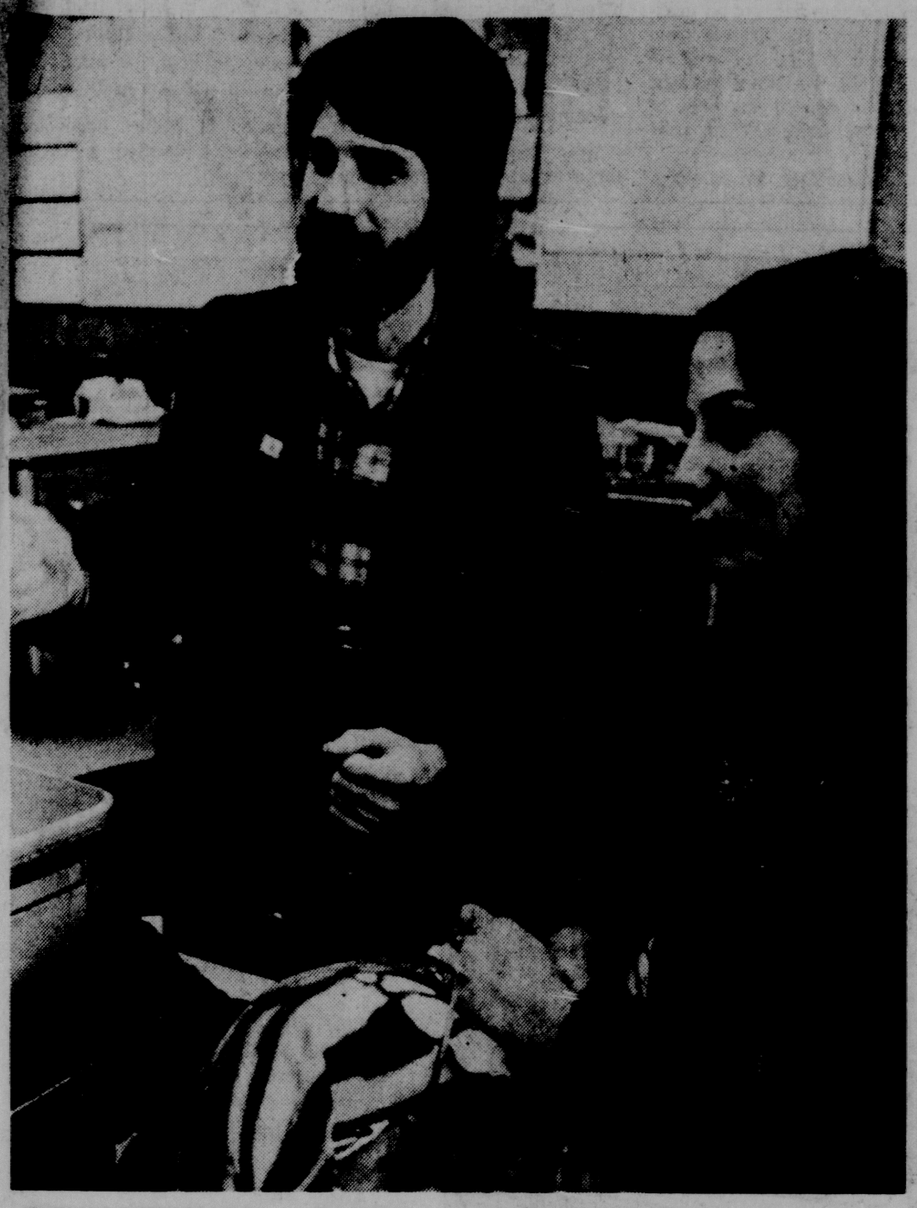
THE ALTERNATE BICENTENNIAL

Declaration Too Revolutionary?



REVOLUTIONARY — Ted Howard, national codirector of the People's Bicentennial Commission, gestures as he decries the diluting of the American Revolution into something much more innocuous than it was. Listening as the visitor from Washington speaks is Rona Elliot, Marin chairman of the commission.

By MARY LEYDECKER

The scene is the local shopping center. Someone comes over to you with a petition and asks you to sign.

This time, the cause is not saving whales or buying open space, but, rather, the document says that all people have certain God-given rights and that if their government abuses these rights, the people have the right to overthrow the government.

Would you sign on the dotted line or would you consider the document too revolutionary?

Some 50 per cent of the people approached so far in this country have decided the wording was too strong for them, according to Ted Howard, national codirector of the People's Bicentennial Commission.

But it doesn't come as a surprise to Howard that many Americans refuse to endorse their country's Declaration of Independence.

Decrying attempts to make the American Revolution into something other than an honest-to-goodness revolution, Howard gave his views during a pre-Christmas visit in the Independent-Journal's San Rafael newsroom.

He also told how he and others formed his commission in 1971 because they believe that the official national Bicentennial Commission "doesn't speak to the founding principles" of this country.

He said the official group, founded by Nixon to oversee the nation's celebration of its 200th birthday and funded with a $10 million-a-year budget, has failed to carry out its Congressional mandate "to reexamine, redirect and reapply" the ideals of the American Revolution.

Instead, Howard said, the official commission is sponsoring "circus affairs," like the Freedom Train, now on a tour of 76 American cities. The train, Howard said with a grin, is not filled with mementoes of the American Revolution "as you would expect," but rather with artifacts like "the original Howdy Doody and Gerald Ford's Bible."

Howard described the situation as a "Catch 22" event in which the official Bicentennial committee apparently has decided that the American Revolution is "too dangerous" a concept with which to deal seriously.

In fact, he said, a project in which the Declaration of Independence has been presented to citizens in many parts of the country for their endorsement in connection with the Bicentennial has backfired.

George Ebner, executive director of the official Bicentennial Commission of Pennsylvania, the state where the declaration was written, Howard said, has summed up the feelings of many Americans: "It's a pretty revolutionary document. There may be a lot of people unwilling to sign it."

Howard, though, not only accepts the American Revolution as it was, but he also believes the patriots who formed this country had a great deal to say that is applicable in today's America.

It was for these reasons that Howard, a 24-year-old Californian who had been active in antiwar protests, and others formed the "alternative commission."

Although he now quotes Tom Paine, Abigail Adams and Thomas Jefferson with the ease of a Commager, Howard is a self-taught historian who came to the field after his college days.

It was because of his belief that his antiwar views did not make him anti-American that he began to research history.

As he read the original documents of the Revolutionary period, he found he "learned incredible things."

Howard found it was not a "group of wealthy gentlemen" who started this country, but citizens who were concerned about injustices of the day and who at times were "pretty radical."

While blood didn't flow in this country in the French Revolution manner, Tories were stripped of their land and property and deported in wholesale lots, Howard learned.

As the American patriots set up the world's first democracy, they also sowed the seeds of many social movements, including abolition of slavery, women's suffrage, the labor movement and civil rights.

Even women's lib was on the minds of some of the early leaders, Howard said, quoting Abigail Adams, who told her husband John in 1776 that "if particular care and attention are not paid to the ladies, we are determined to foment a rebellion and will not hold ourselves bound to obey any laws in which we have no voice or representation."

The American leaders also spoke over and over again about abuse of power, and James Madison said, "the truth is that all men having power should be distrusted," Howard quoted.

Howard also found the economic picture in the 1770s much the same as now, with "skyrocketing inflation and scarcity of goods." But the patriots learned that merchants were hoarding the goods to drive prices up and took matters into their own hands — most dramatically at the Boston Tea Party when they took on the biggest monopoly of the day — the East India Co.

Howard believes that those revolutionary leaders, who took action to remedy the wrongs of their day, can also speak to today's times.

And he sees the nation's Bicentennial as a means to bring together the Americans, who he said, are "having an identity crisis" and who must regain control of their country.

The early patriots, such as a group of Maryland farmers who signed a broadside against the merchants of their day, "understood that wealth is power," Howard said.

Today, according to Howard, polls show that Americans believe in the one-man, one-vote principle, but most don't think they have much say in running this country.

And, perhaps surprisingly, the "revolutionary" ideas of the People's Commission have caught hold in some pretty establishment circles, Howard said.

The National Council of Churches is using the commission's publications for its bicentennial program, and the commission also has prepared material for a national Camp Fire Girls bicentennial effort.

Many radio and television stations, too, are using spots, often merely quotes from revolutionary leaders.

Even the conservative columnist James J. Kilpatrick, who wrote that he "probably would have been on the other side," in the American Revolution, endorsed the People's Commission as being more in keeping with what actually happened.

Howard sees the "democratic principles" of the founding fathers as being as applicable in Los Angeles as in Boston, and he said, "we are all heirs," whether our ancestors arrived 300 years ago on the Mayflower or 70 years ago on a big ship, like mine."

Locally, Rona Elliot of Mill Valley is serving as Marin chairman for the People's Commission. A young woman who has had experience organizing rock festivals and other entertainment events, she earlier offered her services to the official Bicentennial Commission in San Francisco.

But when they told her they were looking for a "third world typist," and offered her the job, she looked elsewhere, she said. Persons interested in joining in a local People's Commission may contact her at her home in Mill Valley, she said, or may write to the People's Bicentennital Commission, Washington, D.C., 20036.

Finally, with a grin, Hoard commented on the origin of the modern-day "superpatriot" slogan: "America — love it or leave it."

The original expression was "America — love it or Nova Scotia," he said, and was directed at the Tories, many of whom ended up in the Canadian province after being expelled from this country for their antirevolutionary views.

Joy And Gloom Mingle For Marin's Christmas

the tight security in force. (Officers were meeting today to discuss the possibility of relaxing the lockup next week.)

A cheerful deputy sheriff at the Marin County Jail said that about 80 persons forced to spend Christmas in that pokey enjoyed turkey, pie — "the whole works." He said the jail population was down from the normal number of about 120 persons, as efforts were made to let as many people as possible spend the holiday at home.

And thousands flocked to the county's Christian churches, both on Christmas Eve and yesterday, to celebrate the Nativity of Jesus.

Rev. Thomas I. Kennedy, pastor of the county's largest parish, St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael, said the 1,000-seat church was packed full for three Christmas Eve masses with more parishioners making their Communions yesterday morning.

"Some people like to get up early," Father Kennedy, who celebrated at the 6:30 a.m. Mass, said wearily today.

While many residents gathered around family tables for turkey, ham, roast beef, goose and even ravioli and sauerkraut, hundreds of others jammed into local restaurants.

"We were absolutely packed full," an employee at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael said. She commented that breakfast at the inn also was a sell-out operation, as well as dinner, where the big preference was turkey.

Residents of Marin's convalescent hospitals received special attention at Christmas, with tray favors, gifts and holiday dinners. More than 330 residents of three such hospitals were given gifts by some 50 graduates of Erhard Seminars Training, a San Francisco-based program.

Yesterday, highway traffic was light as a few last carloads of holiday-makers drove off to grandma's or motored home wearily from Uncle Joe's.

Commuters and shoppers heading home were backed up all the way to Marin City, officers said.

To avoid a chain of rear-end collisions caused by the slowing traffic, patrolmen used a "round robin" to slow traffic, weaving all over the freeway in their patrol cars, with lights flashing.

The unusual maneuver brought a flood of calls to the highway patrol office, complaints of "an officer drunk on the highway," according to Officer Myron MacNeil. "We even had a call from a policeman who told us he thought one of our officers was in trouble," MacNeil said with a chuckle.

Traffic in the highway's northbound lanes was back to normal about 5 p.m.

And dawn seemed especially early today, as weary workers dragged out of bed to head back to work again, and housewives and garbagemen faced mountains of discarded ribbons, wrapping paper and tinsel.

And for some, today meant the annual rush to department stores and shops for the inevitable returns and sale bargains.

China Camp Victim Now Conscious

A young woman found unconscious near China Camp yesterday awoke today but has not identified herself because she is unable to talk, Marin sheriff's officers said.

The woman, in her late teens, has some bruises on her chin and one arm and "might have been worked over," said one officer. She is in an isolation ward at Marin General Hospital.

Two hikers found her at 5:30 p.m. yesterday at the Old Bowman's Club, a now-defunct archery range off North San Pedro Road.

Job Training Firms Sought

The Human Resources Development Department in San Rafael is currently seeking employers to participate in a new state revenue sharing program to provide on-the-job training to qualified persons.

Any employer willing to train someone at a minimum starting wage of $3 an hour may be eligible to receive up to 50 per cent reimbursement from the state, according to Linda Hansen of the department.

Driver Accused Of Shooting Patrolman

RICHMOND (UPI) — Patrolman William Shannon, 30, was recovering today from a head wound suffered when he was shot yesterday by a motorist while he was writing a traffic citation.

The motorist fled after firing the shot which struck Shannon, but officers arrested Carl Young, 38, as a suspect and charged him with attempted murder.

Stores Tally Comfortable Yule Sales

Sears, Roebuck & Co., the nation's largest retailer, reported a record high of holiday period sales, although fewer units were sold.

A Sears spokesman said pre-Christmas price reductions may have played a factor.

Discount stores such as F.W. Woolworth's Woolco and S.S. Kresge's K-Mart were attracting shoppers who traditionally patronized department stores.

"From the way some of the people shopping here are dressed, you can tell they have more money than our usual customers," a Woolco spokesman said.

In Chevy Chase, Md., two competing department stores had markedly different shoppers.

Woodward & Lothrop, a department store which offered pre-Christmas price cuts, was doing a brisk business. Across the street in Lord & Taylor, which had relatively few items "reduced for clearance," less shoppers were visible.

Woodward & Lothrop President Edwin K. Hoffman said his stores did a record $2 million in business Monday and sales were "good" again Tuesday. "Sales have never been higher," Hoffman said. "But the number of transactions is down."

William J. Lippincott, chairman of Lord & Taylor, which has 17 stores from Houston to Boston, said "We're nicely in the black, store for store."

"It wasn't an emotional Christmas. People did not buy friviously. They are not trading far down and they are very value conscious."

Marcus of Nieman-Marcus said sales in dollar terms were up, although the rate of increase was not so high as in earlier Christmas seasons.

"We will reach our objectives, which were relatively modest ones," Marcus said, with the help of "a late buying flurry" and sales of such high priced articles as furs and jewelry.

Secret Service Has Final Word

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — President Ford doesn't have to take orders from the Secret service, but he apparently does.

Ford was approached by a group of reporters on Christmas Day and asked if two newswomen could ski along with him.

"It depends on whether they are pretty," he joked.

Then he looked inquiringly at Secret Service Agent Larry Boondorf to ask if it would be all right and got a strong negative shake of the head in reply.

"You don't have to obey him," Ford was told by reporters and he laughed. "Maybe we can arrange it some other day," he said.

Hanggliding Record Claimed

MORGAN HILL (UPI) — A hanggliding enthusiast was released from 17,000 feet and floated to earth 35 minutes later yesterday in a stunt to "improve the safety image" of the aerial sport.

Dennis Kolberg, 22, Walnut Creek, president of Phantom Wings, Inc., immediately claimed a world altitude record for hanggliding.

He was strapped to his wing-like contraption and then airlifted above Mt. Hamilton just south of San Jose, by balloonist Brent Stockwell, of Union City.

Christmas Wasn't Such A Lonely Day After All

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

A South Dakota restaurant owner who didn't want to spend Christmas alone opened the doors to his steak house and invited all lonely people to join him for dinner. The price was a smile.

More than 75 persons showed up during the first hour in response to the invitation by Larry Dethury, Brandon, S.D., a native of Hungary who lived in California for 14 years before settling in South Dakota.

Even 14 million blackbirds slated for execution by the Army at Milan, Tenn., were given a Christmas reprieve.

Army officials had planned to kill the birds as pests. However, the eradication was delayed due to "the divergency of opinion expressed by various individuals and organizations on this proposed action," a spokesman said.

But even the Christmas spirit could not overcome personal tragedy.

In Oklahoma City, Timothy O'Neal, who underwent leg surgery last summer, got an unexpected Christmas present from his doctor. O'Neal still owed $45 on his bill, but when the new statement arrived this week he found the balance had been canceled.

At Kansas City, Mo., a charity drive by radio station WDAF helped 5,000 families to a merrier holiday. The charity drive resulted in 100,000 pounds of food, two warehouses full of gifts and $20,000 in cash.

Mrs. Mary Meeks and her three children received a special gift. Fire destroyed their new home in Bakersfield Monday night. But neighbors raised money to help the family replace destroyed gifts and the Bakersfield Police Benevolent Association located a vacant home.

ELAINE BROWN

Woman Seen New Head Of Panthers

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Black Panther Party enters the new year with a slender 31-year-old woman heiress to the mantle of leadership because one founder is a fugitive and the second has apparently abdicated.

Elaine Brown, educated in a primarily white, upper class Philadelphia area high school where during assemblies the school song was sung in Latin, has emerged from the shadows of political theorist Huey Newton and the fiery Bobby Seale.

Newton is in hiding, accused of murder and assault. Seale is now living in Los Angeles and makes no effort to speak for the Panthers.

Ms. Brown served for many years as the Black Panther minister of information and to observers, appeared to rank third in the political structure, behind Newton and Seale.

This week she announced her candidacy for a seat on the Oakland City Council, downplaying her affiliation with the Panthers and making it clear that she is not running strictly as a Panther candidate.

"I'm a lot of other things beside a Black Panther," Ms. Brown told newsmen. "I want to broaden my political base." The Panthers "as well as other groups throughout the community are supporting my candidacy."

She and Seale ran unsuccessfully for elective offices two years ago. Seale sought the mayorship of Oakland and Ms. Brown a seat on the city council.

Ms. Brown moved to Los Angeles in 1967, settling near Watts where she saw the massive riots there and worked as a cocktail waitress.

Ms. Brown came to Oakland in 1971 to edit the Black Panther newspaper and serve as the party's spokesman.

Social Security Takeout Will Rise

The maximum amount of earnings which count for social security will increase $900 to $14,100 annually, beginning Jan. 1 the district Social Security office has announced.

The increase will keep the contribution, benefit base and retirement income in line with the rise in wages and prices, the office said.

CALLING ALL CAMERA FANS
By Ken Reichard

MAKING YOUR MOVIES MOVE

The major difference between still and motion picture photography is implied in the names. Movies show not just a single picture but a continuous action. Many home movies forget this basic principle. Instead of "moving," they are just collections of bits and pieces.

The ideal solution is to use your movie camera to tell a story. Take that New Year's Eve party, for instance. It might be fun to view a collection of mixed "highlights" . . . but a more effective film will make it a "story" with a beginning, middle and end.

Start where you want — with the first arrivals, for instance, opening the first bottle of champagne. Let your "highlights" build to the climactic midnight festivities. And the ending? Well, how about an "after-the-party" glimpse, when everyone has gone and you collapse, tired and happy, among the hats and favors, in the stillness?

The point is to plan a story . . . and you'll hold your viewers. Make that a resolution now . . . and resolve to see us in the New Year for the best in photographic needs, from cameras to film to dependable, prompt developing and printing.

2 Ordered To Appear In Assault

Two Novato men have been ordered to appear for arraignment in Marin Municipal Court next Monday on charges of assaulting an off-duty police officer.

The charges stemmed from a scuffle in the streets Saturday night with Theodore C. Lindquist, 27, an off-duty San Rafel police officer.

According to police reports, a car containing Wooters and Segerquist pulled alongside Lindquist as he came southbound off U.S. 101 into San Rafael. The occupants reportedly shouted obscenities. A lit cigarette was tossed into Lindquist's car.

Lindquist got of his car and approached the other car and was attacked, the report said. He was hit and kicked several times in the ensuing scuffle by his assailants, who got away, the report said.

Lindquist gave San Rafael police the number of the car, which was located at a San Rafael party. Segerquist and Wooters were arrested. A third unidentified suspect is being sought.

Story Teller

Richard Chase, a folkorist and author of children's books, will present a free program of stories at 8 p.m., Jan. 8, at the Marin Lutheran Church, 649 Meadowsweet Drive, Corte Madera, sponsored by the Friends of the Marin County Free Library.

ALMANAC

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Today is Thursday, Dec. 26, the 360th day of 1974 with five to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

Adm. George Dewey, the American naval hero of Manila, was born Dec. 26, 1837. This This is American entertainer Steve Allen's 53rd birthday.

On this day in history:

In 1917, the federal government took over operation of American railroads for the duration of World War I.

A thought for the day: President Harry Truman said, "If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen." He also said: "Being president is like riding a tiger. A man has to keep on riding or be swallowed.

The Trump Suit Usually Gives A Hand Its Shape

The trump suit usually gives a hand its shape. Weaken declarer's trumps and he loses his power to hold the hand together. He must look for ways to protect his trumps, and you must try to continue the attack.

Opening lead — ♡ K

BEGINS ATTACK

West began the attack on South's trumps by leading three rounds of hearts. South had to ruff the third heart, after which he had only the same number of trumps as West.

Declarer had to draw trumps to safeguard his diamond tricks. Hoping for the best, South led a trump to dummy's king.

This gave East the chance to be a hero, but he muffed it. "Aces were meant to capture kings," East thought to himself, and he took the first round of trumps.

CANNOT CONTINUE

Now East could not continue the attack on declarer's trumps. If East lead his last heart, dummy could ruff; and if East led anything else, South could win and draw trumps.

The correct defense is very simple, but it goes somewhat against the grain. East must refuse to capture the king of trumps with his ace. He wins the second trump trick and can then lead his last heart to make declarer ruff again.

The hand now falls apart, for West has one trump more than declarer. West's extra trump is sure to take the setting trick.

DAILY QUESTION

Dealer, at your left, bids one heart, and partner doubles.

The next player passes, and it is up to you, holding:

♠ - Q 10 9 8 7
♥ - 9 4
♦ - K 10 8 7
♣ - A Q

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts in an expert game.

This "cue bid" in the opponent's suit shows that you want to reach game. A mere jump to two spades would be invitational but not forcing. If you are doubtful that your partner will understand an advanced bid of this kind, jump right to four spades. One good way to reach game is to bid it at once.

Who'll Call Shots For Legislature?

When California's second biennial legislature actually gets down to business on Jan. 6, who will call the shots?

An item in a recent issue of the California AFL-CIO News indicates that labor union leaders believe they will. It says:

"All of our . . . endorsed candidates for statewide offices were successful in November. A perfect score!

"The affiliates of our state AFL-CIO movement have built one of the most effective political structures in American labor. Nov. 5 was a continuance of what we have been doing through united union action. We're not going to stop."

THE CALIFORNIA Teachers Association, however, thinks it is going to call the shots. Shortly after the election, the Association for Better Citizenship (CTA's counterpart of the AFL-CIO's Committee On Political Education) boasted that 85 per cent of the candidates it backed won election.

It should be noted that, in most cases, the same candidates supported by AFL-CIO's COPE were assisted by CTA's ABC. The support and assistance consisted of major cash contributions plus much work by union-paid campaigners.

While the cash given candidates comes from so-called voluntary contributions by the union members, dues money goes to pay campaigners. This is admitted in a stipulation which was filed by AFL-CIO counsel in Seay vs. International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, in these words:

"With minor exceptions, the expenses of COPE, including the salaries of COPE staff personnel, travel expenses, office supplies, telephones and telegraph, printing and general overhead expenses are paid by the AFL-CIO out of the general fund of the AFL-CIO, a fund which is derived principally from per capita taxes received from affiliated national and international unions."

During debate on the Federal Campaign Reform Act last spring, Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., pointed out that such payment of union funds was unlawful under existing law. Yet, although a dozen or more corporations have been prosecuted by the Watergate special prosecutor for illegal use of corporate funds in connection with Richard M. Nixon's campaign, no labor union has been prosecuted for illegal use of members' dues on political campaigns.

THIS BRINGS UP some interesting questions:

Will the California legislators elected with assistance from AFL-CIO through COPE (or, from CTA through ABC) feel obligated to vote for such measures as compulsory union membership for public employees — the No. 1 legislative goal of both AFL-CIO and CTA?

If they do, will they in effect endorse the illegal use of union members' dues money to help elect them?

And if the answer to both questions is "yes," where does that put these legislators relative to their oath to uphold the law?

It will be interesting to see who calls the shots.

(Reprinted from Bakersfield Californian)

With massive federal funding of higher education has come equally massive federal interference in the educational process. In accepting federal money, colleges and universities have been compelled to give up their traditional right to select faculty members on the basis of merit.

This grim truth is superbly documented in the new book, "The Balancing Act: Quota Hiring In Higher Education," by Dr. George C. Roche III, president of independent Hillsdale College in Michigan. Hillsdale is free to select its faculty without federal interference because its trustees refuse to accept money from government agencies.

"THE BALANCING ACT" is the work of a scholar who believes deeply in academic freedom and a free society. Dr. Roche sets forth in detail the inquisition that HEW and the Office of Civil Rights have directed against America's publicly funded colleges.

As Dr. Russell Kirk says in his introduction, the government Affirmative Action program is a program "for compelling colleges to engage unqualified or underqualified persons as professors of arts and sciences, merely because these favored persons belong to 'minorities'."

Since 1971, HEW and the Office of Civil Rights have been imposing quota hiring of faculty on publicly assisted colleges. This represents, in Dr. Roche's words, "a political attempt to mold the hiring practices for America's colleges and universities." Because quotas are forbidden under the Civil Rights Act, HEW and OCR refers to "goals." Those institutions which decline to accept the government's goals are threatened with loss of federal aid and contracts.

Moreover, colleges today are forced into discriminatory practices. There is great emphasis upon "candidates with Spanish or Indian names" and upon "visual surveys" of faculty.

A DEPARTMENTAL chairman of a large eastern university with a sense of humor — no doubt unappreciated by HEW — has posted the qualifications for a new faculty member: "A woman Egyptologist, black, with a Spanish surname, born on a Southwestern Indian reservation."

Many educators are deeply concerned about the situation. Elie Abel, dean of the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism, has agonized in the New York Times: "We can't, in essence, hire, promote, or give a raise to anyone without clearing it over there (HEW)."

This means, in other words, that the U.S. is being rapidly moved in the direction of a political ministry of education such as exists in totalitarian society. Education, of course, is suffering as qualified teachers are denied posts because they lack the ethnic background decreed by HEW and the Office of Civil Rights.

WILL ROGERS SAYS . . .

"This was avery happy Xmas for me, in fact the best I have enjoyed in years. The shirts my wife gave me were the right size for the first time since wedlock. Of course, they were the wrong color, but one, if married, must not be too particular.

"For a while it looked like I would spend a perfect Xmas. Then about noon a necktie arrived." — Jan. 4, 1925.

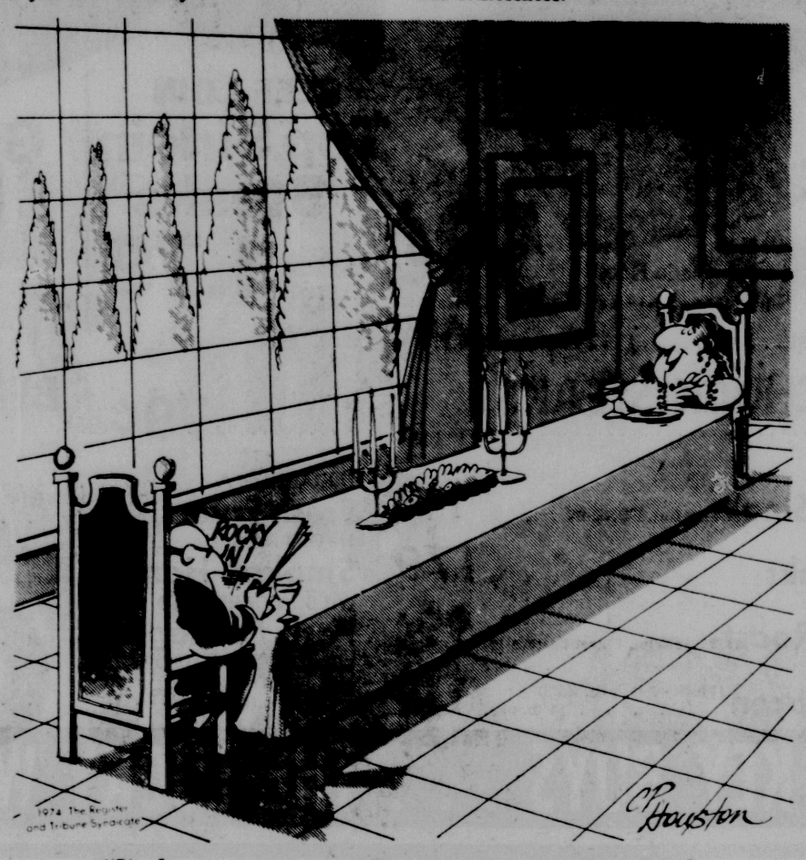
Rockefeller May Tap Varied Talents To Bring New Role To Vice Presidency

President Ford chose Vice-President Rockefeller. He might have turned to far different types of political leadership.

Therefore we may assume he knew what he was doing. He realized he was picking a man of immense dynamism, a man who could not possibly be comfortable just as a stand-by.

Now the test of both men begins. Unless President Ford is really willing — as some believe — merely to preside while the vice-president becomes a "prime minister," there will have to be a delicate adjustment of relationships. Both men will have to show unusual widsom and selflessness.



"It always warms my heart to see one of our kind get a break in life."

IT CAN BE DONE. To some extent, it has been done between President Ford and Secretary of State Kissinger. The president has not been reduced to a cipher. There seems no doubt that he played a genuine and important part in the discussions with Chairman Leonid Brezhnev at Vladivostok, even if it was more human than intellectual. And Vice-President Rockefeller is unlikely to show quite the kind of specialization and intellectual force in domestic affairs which Secretary Kissinger shows in foreign policy.

So, unprecedented as is the new role for the vice-president, the auguries are encouraging. The very novelty of the application of the 25th Amendment is a powerful factor. Neither the president nor the vice-president was elected by vote of the people; both have been ratified by Congress after extensive examination.

President Ford must have been deeply aware of the responsibilities that arise from this uniqueness. Besides, he is a modest man without false ego. Nor is Nelson Rockefeller a serious political rival, if President Ford wishes in 1976 to run again. He cannot be challenged by his vice-president even if affairs go badly.

BOTH MEN ARE CONSCIOUS of the difficulties and the opportunities. President Ford, whose political sensibility is reasonably acute, must be puzzled and perhaps frustrated about how badly many things have gone since his pardon of Richard Nixon. He must know that a major shift is necessary, both in the shape and talent of his administrative team and in the substantive policies they are generating.

The new men are being recruited; the old Nixon team is going. And we can hope that stronger policies are being formulated. They will have to include new and forceful approaches on energy conservation; they will need a new tax program, both of relief and of reform. And much more.

In short, what the nation needs is new and bold thinking expressed by leaders unhampered by the mistakes of the past. It needs wise leadership: wisdom from all available talents. This is precisely the kind of thinking and talent that has gone into the work of Nelson Rockefeller's Commission on Critical Choices. There has been no narrow political partisanship in that body's work, as there was none in the earlier Rockefeller-financed studies from which Henry Kissinger emerged.

TURNING TO THIS KIND of experience and wisdom, often outside government, is not new in American history. Presidents have quite often leaned on people they trusted in private life, escaping from the narrow concepts of a palace guard.

Now Nelson Rockefeller, fully inside government, nevertheless can be an open channel for wisdom wherever it exists. It will be easier for him to assemble it than for the president. And he may be forced to leave most of the apparatus outside government. It is unlikely that it will be felt sensible to permit Nelson Rockefeller to have a staff sensationally larger than that provided Vice-Presidents Ford or Agnew, or that he will be allowed to finance them himself. But various outside study groups can go on, and their knowledge can be available. The staff problem, surely, can be solved.

Anyway, the far larger issue is whether the American executive, for the next two years, can assembly the ability and find the courage to face up to great, crucial problems. It needs to be a government of all the talents. Perhaps the way is opening.

Equating Human Life With The Tax Bill

In reply to Mrs. James Clark's letter (Dec. 16):

Probably the most appalling aspect, and there were many, of Mrs. Clark's letter was her absolute disregard and lack of concern for the 278,000 women who had suffered the physical (and possibly emotional) trauma of the abortion and for the 278,000 unborn lives that were taken. Her most personal interest was in the cost as if we can equate human life in dollars and statistics.

Mrs. Clark's scenario for the unwanted, deprived, battered child is, I'm afraid, as tired as the classic melodrama. The problems DO exist but for different reasons and with, hopefully, better solutions. As a collector of facts and figures, she might like to pursue these. Any adoption agency will cite the numbers of prospective parents and the lengths of the waiting time. Will they be happy to know that so many babies have been destroyed with the help of their tax dollars and those of the more than half of the country who do NOT favor abortion on demand? After all, seven men decided THAT for us, not the American people. . .

The pain that comes at tax time in our very expensive area more often pulls at the purse than the heart strings, especially in these unstable times. But, let's not lose sight of the significance of the other December event — that it is a time of caring, loving, sharing. . .

The United States is disposing of over a million babies each year. A whole generation may be sacrificed before we realize the true cost.

Real World Difficult For Unwanted Child

In response to Ms. Tomsic's letter (Dec. 21), I would like to suggest that before attacking abortion she use a little insight into the matter. Going on the assumption that Ms. Tomsic was a wanted child I suggest that the other side also be looked at.

No child has the advantage of asking to be born or not; it is true that planned births are the most desirable, and even in some cases un-planned. BUT, in a case where a woman finds herself pregnant and does not want the child I feel the most humane thing to do is to have an abortion.

Almost every unwanted child eventually pays one way or the other for the act of sex that brought them into this world. The old saying "my own mother didn't want me, why should anyone else" is not far from true.

For those who speak of abortion as cruel, I would like to speak of an even crueler measure. That is to bring a child into this world "ill-equipped to raise it, or not wanting it but keeping it out of guilt. I wish these people who are so down on abortion would consider the life of the child in the "real world" and not their own moral standards. . .

Eventually the responsibility for these children's lives are placed on them as they become of age. They should "forget the past," "forget they were not wanted" and not loved — they are responsible to forget the past. Yet the scars these people hold are as real as if they were slashed across their faces.

Middle-Road Approach To Problems Needed

I have very much admired and am in substantial agreement with your recent editorials. They are as if a new wind blows. I hope that man editorial writers and editors as you come to the realization that the middle of the road, say liberal Willkie-Stevenson approach, is the only one that can untie the knotty problems that our country and the world is faced with . . .

Redevelopment Agency Should Buy Old House

Although the San Rafael City Council is faced with the clear duty to halt the threatened imminent demolition of the Sheehy building on Mission Street in San Rafael, it is morally committed not to penalize the property owners.

Policy 12, chapter V of the new general plan says the city must support preservation of buildings with "special and recognized historic or aesthetic value." Experts say the Sheehy building qualifies. The redevelopment agency, which must follow the general plan, will probably have to use its power by redevelopment law to deny demolition regardless of any provisions of a private will. However, this power to deny demolition should not in my opinion to be used to either harass or penalize the estate which owns the building.

Such a danger could easily be removed if the redevelopment agency can guarantee the owners a fair price by bidding, if necessary, at the usual court auction. Most likely some private bid would come forth. At least one viable restoration project for the Sheehy building almost succeeded recently. The local expert involved in that project says restoration is economically viable with some variances.

Any redevelopment ownership should only be for a few months, to make an honest attempt to get a private preservation project started — otherwise sale and demolition may have to result. . .

Palestinian Settlement Vital To Israel's Future

WASHINGTON — It is not anti-Semitic to report that many Americans and some high officials in the U.S. government are weakening in their pro-Israel sentiment.

Americans and Israelis alike, who want to see U.S. support for the integrity of Israel continue, better heed the trend before it becomes uncontrollable.

I write as one who has supported the rightness and the humaneness of a Jewish homeland and the Israeli state before it was created by the United Nations.

MOST AMERICANS are convinced, I believe, that the survival of Israel behind secure frontiers — as secure as those of other nations — is in the best interests of the United States and the peace of the world. But today it is not self-evidently the highest American priority.

I was revolted by the performance of Yasser Arafat at the United Nations and by the performance of the United Nations in the presence of Arafat. But the Palestinians have a valid case and it is still being unwisely ignored by the Israelis.

Israeli leaders have always said to the United States: "Give — or sell — us the arms and we'll defend ourselves; we need no more."

But one or two more wars in the Middle East will be disastrous for the Israelis, for the Arabs and for the United States.

WHAT I AM TRYING to say to the friends of the United States in Israel and to the friends of Israel in the United States was best said by I.F. Stone in a recent talk at Temple Sinai in Washington, D.C. Stone is a distinguished journalist and an American Jew who would never think of himself other than as pro-Israel. His words deserve to be seriously pondered:

"We cannot ignore the problems of the Arab refugees and of Palestinian national aspirations, nor blind ourselves to their realities. We cannot say that Jews have a right to yearn for Palestine after 1,900 years and deny the Arabs the right to yearn for their homes after 19 years . . .

"The way to end the terror, the way to heal the breach, is first of all to recognize . . . that this is a struggle of right against right, that there is an Arab side and a Jewish side, that we must find a way to live together.

"It would be wise to detach the West Bank now from Israel, to put it under international auspices for two or three years, to let the Palestinian Arabs there and in the diaspora decide for themselves what kind of state they want to establish . . .

"Israel can win another war, maybe two more, maybe three, but it cannot survive without finding the path to reconciliation. Otherwise it will eventually be destroyed, after a bare centruy of existence. I want to see Israel live."

So do most Americans. Why, then, shouldn't Israel come forward with its fairest-minded, most constructive and most persuasive proposal for negotiation? Then, depending upon the Arab response, the world can well judge who is standing in the way of a peaceful settlement — and act accordingly.

Legislators Facing Up To Problem Of Their Pay

By EARL G. WATERS

California lawmakers appear near a mood to give serious attention to the problem of fair compensation for legislators.

The emoluments which they have taken unto themselves haphazardly over the past decade have become a source of irritation. It compelled the calling of a special session just before election to repeal the indefensible features of the retirement plan. But that was only one small part of the issue.

THE "FRINGE" benefits for the members got started back in the days when lawmakers were paid only $1,200 a year. About 30 years ago, some bright solon discovered the constitutional limits on their pay did not preclude their granting themselves expenses for meals and lodging while in session. Although two salary raises followed, the living allowances continued. Further, some new emoluments, such as the furnishing of cars and pensions, emerged. Later, district offices and staff, unlimited gasoline and telephone credit came into the picture.

When the legislature transformed from part-time to full-time, meeting throughout most of the year, salaries were increased substantially and now exceed $20,000. But the hotel and meal per diems not only continued, despite the fact most of the 120 members moved their families into Sacramento.

Various proposals have been made to take the onus off the backs of the solons, including having the State Personnel Board or an independent permanent commission fix the pay. Speaker Leo McCarthy has opposed such plans, taking the view the Legislature should face the responsibility of setting its own pay. He undoubtedly fears the creation of a new bureaucracy which would entrench itself and make a career out of policing the lawmakers' pay.

TAKING THE BULL by the horns, Assemblyman Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, has proposed a constitutional amendment pegging the salary at $45,000, with cost-of-living increases to be automatic. He would eliminate the per diem allowances and automobiles.

The legislators have demonstrated their inability to set their own compensation. While Cullen's approach would probably solve the problem, his figure has been arrived at without any showing that it is justifiable or even acceptable.

Assemblyman Gordon Duffy, R-Hanford, has hit upon what seems to be the most politically sound method of ending the dilemma. He would establish a temporary committee, composed of business and labor leaders, to study and recommend a constitutional measure to establish the fair compensation. Once determined, it would thereafter be adjusted according to a price index. This would eliminate both the need for a permanent salary fixing commission and for future review.

To be really effective, however, the committee should view the overall picture of public salaries, not just the legislature. The present situation, wherein minor public officials at the state and local levels are drawing salaries greater than that paid the state's chief executive, is nothing less than criminal folly.

Some Stories You Won't Read In Newspapers Next Year

WASHINGTON — If 1975 is anything like 1974, we can expect to see many wild newspaper stories. I can't tell you what they will be, but I can predict that these are the stories that you will NOT be reading in your papers next year.

TEHRAN, Iran — The oil-producing countries meeting here today announced that they were lowering the price of oil by $4 a barrel. The Shah of Iran told newspapermen: "We made a mistake when we raised the price of oil as it hurt the economies of most of the countries we deal with. To make it up to them, we plan to roll back prices to 1970. The goodwill of the world is more important to the oil countries than the few extra dollars that are at stake. We hope everyone will forget how in a weak moment we let greed get the best of us."

WASHINGTON — President Ford announced today he was going to take strong measures to turn around the economic slump in this country. He told reporters: "I've made up my mind and I've decided to take a stand. Government controls are the only answer to the problems we face. Appealing to the good sense of the American people is the stupidest thing any President could do."

NEW YORK — Muhammed Ali admitted to Howard Cosell on television last night that he wasn't the greatest fighter of all time or, for that matter, even now. "There are probably nine or 10 heavyweights as good or better than I will ever be.

"I've been lucky during my career, but it can't last. There's something wrong with boxing when someone will pay a bum like me $5 million for one night's work. I'm just not worth it."

WASHINGTON — Nelson Rockefeller has applied for a loan from Bebe Rebozo to buy a home in Florida. Rockefeller said: "It was either getting the loan or having to sell my wife's jewels. As everyone knows, I'm not a rich man and I don't think I've done anything wrong."

PARIS — The French government announced today that it was giving up its desire to be a world power and would take a back seat in any future international negotiations. A spokesman said, "The United States has always done what's best for France and, in the future, we'll let her speak for us on all substantive matters."

GENEVA, Switzerland — the price of gold dropped to $35 an ounce when world speculators bought Italian lire and English pounds instead. One banker said, "We consider the lira and the pound the two strongest currencies in Europe, and we don't want to be stuck with gold when they are revalued upward."

MOSCOW — Henry Kissinger told reporters today that he made a big mistake in his last negotiations with the Russians. "They really made a fool of me, and I'm walking away from this conference empty-handed. This isn't the first time it's been done to me. I guess my weakness is that I trust everyone I talk to. I should be more careful, but diplomacy really isn't my forte and if I had to do it all over again, I would have stayed at Harvard."

WASHINGTON — George Meany of the AFL-CIO said at a dinner last night that one of the reasons for high prices was exorbitant labor demands that were preventing businesses from making a profit. "It is time," he said, "the unions worked harder and longer and stopped saying, 'Gimme, gimme, gimme.'"

NEW YORK — Walter Cronkite, last night on the CBS News, did his show twice. Cronkite explained on the air that after he finished the first time and said, "And that's the way it is," he realized it wasn't that way at all so he decided to do it again.

Wallace Assesses Odds For 1976

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — George Wallace says he doesn't have to struggle for recognition like other Democratic contenders because "people know my name."

While his health is expected to be a major factor in the 1976 presidential campaign, the wheelchair-bound governor plays down its importance.

"I can run for president in a wheelchair," Wallace said in an interview. "Being in this wheelchair means I'm a paraplegic. It doesn't mean I can't be president.

"I'm not straining. I'm just going to sit back and see what they do about the Wallace problem."

The "Wallace problem" is that the Alabama governor is currently the frontrunner in a crowded but lackluster field of contenders for the Democratic nomination.

While other contenders are busy with intense speaking campaigns to gain national recognition, Wallace, who will seek the nomination for the fourth time, smugly said, "I don't have to. People know my name."

One reason the governor's campaign staff is optimistic about 1976 is the more than $1 million in contributions already raised for the campaign.

Even more important is the new Democratic party rule ending winner-take-all primaries, which means that Wallace cannot be shut out in any primary, and will gain at least marginal support in nonprimary states.

Wallace contends he is "probably healthier now than I was before I was shot because I look after myself."

He has also said, however, that "with a man in my condition, you never know what's going to happen."

After the first of the year, Wallace is expected to enter a Birmingham hospital for a check-up and follow-up to a prostate operation he had about a year ago.

Kremlin Eases Curbs On Citizens' Travel

MOSCOW (UPI) — In what Western diplomatic sources said was a sweeping liberalization measure, the Soviet Union announced today that all citizens over 16 will be issued internal passports permiting travel inside Russia.

This includes an estimated 46 million "Kolkhozniks" — workers on collective farms — who were denied such documents in the past, effectively tying them to their work on the land.

"This is a great step up for them, a big liberalizing measure," a western diplomat said. "They have been virtually second-class citizens in the past."

The change over period is from Jan. 1, 1976 to Dec.31, 1981 during which time the total Soviet adult population, estimated at 200 million persons, should get new documents for life. The present internal passport must be changed at certain ages.

The Tass news agency said the decision was taken by the Communist Party Central Committee and the Council of Ministers.

Maj. Gen. I.N. Shoutov, deputy chief of the Moscow executive committee of the Interior Ministry, told the Vechernaya Moscow newspaper: "New legislation means there must be changes in the passport system. From now on, passports will be issued to everyone throughout the country."

Soviet citizens are not permitted to travel inside the Soviet Union without an internal passport. Passports to date have been limited to inhabitants of cities.

The decree means about 46 million "Kolkhozniks" — collective farm workers — will get passports for the first time.

Asked if the move would prompt a migration from the arduous task of working the land toward jobs in the cities, the western source said, "It is possible that with the young workers especially there will be some movement in this direction."

By the time the change-over period ends, the total Soviet population aged over 16 — an estimated 200 million persons — will have received the new documents.

Philippines Cleric Fasts In Protest

MANILA (UPI) — An imprisoned Filipino priest went on an indefinite hunger strike Christmas Day to protest the alleged torture and indefinite detention of political detainees by the martial law regime, church sources reported today.

The Rev. Edicio de la Torre, 31, began fasting after saying the traditional midnight mass before detainees at Camp Olivas in Pampanga province about 50 mies north of Manila, said Rev. Flor Camacho, the superior of the Society of the Divine World to which De la Torre belongs.

De La Torre has been detained at the Camp Olivas stockade since Dec. 15 shortly after his arrest at a downtown Manila cocktail lounge by government agents "for acts inimical to national and public order."

De La Torre sent a letter today to the Most Rev. Jaime L. Sin, head of the Catholic Bishops' Conference and spiritual leader of more than 35 million Filipino Roman Catholics, urging him to bring cases of alleged torture "to justice."

Sin, on several occasions, has intervened for the release of detainees. He was among those who openly called on the martial law regime to free more than 5,000 detainees, 1,094 of whom were freed this month.

Camacho said De la Torre has been active in antigovernment demonstrations before martial law was proclaimed in September of 1972 when he went into hiding

Youth Jobs Is The Aim Of Council

The Marin County Industry-Education Council has announced it hopes to coordinate planning by various interested agencies to provide ample job opportunities for county youths next summer.

A special meeting of Marin agencies and interested individuals will be held at 3 p.m. Jan. 8 in the San Rafael City Schools Administration Building board room at Third and E streets.

Ruth Truett, president of the council, said it is hoped that all jobs can be coordinated through one location — similar to a plan that was successful last year.

While the council is specifically concerning itself with summer employment, the Marin County Young Men's Christian Association has provided free year-round employment service to youths and the state Employment Office also annually promotes summer jobs for youths.

Introducing the 7½%, 6-10 year Investment Certificate.

Twice.

As a high yield way to invest.

This Bank of America Investment Certificate is the negotiable type. Available only at full-service banks. It lets you get a high 7½% interest as well as flexibility. Federal law prohibits redemption prior to maturity. But if an emergency comes up and you need your money you can sell your negotiable Investment Certificate without losing interest. However, the price that you get will depend on the money market at the time of the sale. To be realistic, if you want to sell your $1,000 Investment Certificate before the 6 to 10 years are up, you could wind up with less than $1,000. Or more. Depending upon the prevailing money market. Of course, if you hold the certificate to maturity, you'll receive the full principal plus the guaranteed interest. That adds up to a lot of money—$2,102 in 10 years.

BANK OF AMERICA

As a high interest way to save.

This Bank of America Investment Certificate is the non-negotiable type. It guarantees you 7½% for anywhere from 6 to 10 years. No matter what happens to other interest rates you don't have to worry about this savings rate changing. Even if the rates drop. Federal law requires a substantial penalty for early withdrawal on a non-negotiable Investment Certificate. So decide how much you can spare and for how long. Then put at least $1,000 in a high interest, non-negotiable Bank of America Investment Certificate.

Like the negotiable type, the non-negotiable Investment Certificate is guaranteed up to $40,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Pick the Investment Certificate that suits you best. Then ask for it at any of the more than 1,000 Bank of America offices throughout California.

You'll like what you get.

One way or the other.

Depend on us. More Californians do.

THIEF GETS $2,705

A robber who snatched a paper bag out of a man's hands in San Rafael the other day ended up with quite a haul for a few minutes' work.

The bag contained $2,705, the day's deposit for the Grand Auto store in San Rafael, which was being taken to the bank.

According to San Rafael police reports, Kyle R. Mauk, 59, of 22 Van Winkle Road, San Anselmo, was walking along A Street Monday with the money when the thief ran up from behind, snatched the bag and ran off down the street. Mauk pursued, hollering "stop, thief," but had to give up when he fell, the report said.

JOSEPH D. COONS
Board of education bid

Coons Seeks School Board Position

Joseph D. Coons, a consulting engineer on air pollution, has filed for election to the San Rafael Board of Education.

At stake in the schools election are the seats of incumbents Francis X. Kelly, Marilyn Bolinger and Herman L. Childress. The schools ballot will also list a measure asking voters to boost by $200 the amount of money the district may spend per pupil.

Coons, 50, a member of the school system's finance task force and budget advisory committee, said he is seeking election "primarily because I've gotten interested in financial problems of the district over the past few months."

He declined to take a stand on a measure that would boost spending per pupil, saying the matter deserves more study. "I certainly think the issue should be put before the voters, but I as well as they need more information" on the measure before March 4, he said.

With or without passage of the measure, "The schools are going to be faced with a need to operate on a lower budget per pupil," he said. "We need to get the most we can from every dollar we spend," he noted.

He said that although he doesn't regard himself as an expert on school finances, he is willing to tackle them.

He described himself as having a "definitely conservative" educational philosophy. "I'm strongly in favor of some of the more old-fashioned methods such as phonetics in reading. New-fashioned methods are OK if they produce old-fashioned results," he said.

"As a general rule we must be sure the kids know what they're supposed to know by the time they graduate," he said. "We must be sure they get the fundamentals."

Coons, a native of Detroit, graduated from the Lawrence Institute in Detroit with a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering. He has worked as a staff engineer for Ford Motors and from 1958 to 1964 served as director of enforcement for the Bay Area Pollution Control District. He has been a privte consultant in pollution matters for developers and governmental agencies since 1964.

He is a member and past chairman of the Advisory Council of the Bay Area Pollution Control District, past president of the Marin Chapter of the National Society of Professional Engineers, and is a registered professional engineer in the states of Michigan, Arizona and California.

He has written numerous articles for professional publications on aspects of air pollution control.

He is a 17-year San Rafael resident and lives at 853 Patricia Way with his wife, Roberta. The couple has three children, one of whom is enrolled in Terra Linda High School.

Mao Is 81, Still Active In Politics

HONG KONG (UPI) — Mao Tse-tung, frail and slowly fading physically, celebrates his 81st birthday today.

Mao still is politically active despite his advanced years. His health still is sufficient to enable him to receive foreign visitors for lengthy periods.

But his activities are more limited than ever. He is not as deeply involved in policy decisions and political details as he once was, according to analysts specializing in Chinese affairs.

China is probably in better shape today than at any time since the Communist party chairman proclaimed the founding of the People's Republic 25 years ago. But it still is plagued by problems rooted in a fight for succession, in the aged leader's conviction that revolutionary struggle must be a continuing process, economic policies and other disputed issues.

As he turns 81, Mao's mass political campaign against two dead men appears to be winding down. But a new campaign —perhaps his swan song —is mounting.

The new drive, being whipped up in the provinces but still unmentioned by the Peking power center, is a "New Leap Forward."

Just how deeply Mao has been involved in planning and preparing for the "New Leap Forward" is a matter of much conjecture. The consensus is that it undoubtedly has his blessing but not as much of his basic ideas as the disastrous "Big Leap Forward" of the late 1950s.

It was just after his 80th birthday that Mao launched a campaign to criticize the ancient sage Confucius and Lin Piao, his former heir-apparent and former defense minister who died in a 1971 abortive coup plot.

That campaign blew hot and cold throughout this year, with Mao very much involved in its direction —at least when it was blowing hottest in the first half of the year.

Mao has been mysteriously absent from his Peking residence in the Chung Nan Hai area near the Forbidden City for the past few months. His absence is probably connected with the wind-down of the campaign against Lin and Confucius and the new one budding.

Foreign visitors taken to see him usually didn't know for certain where they were. And those who did were sworn to secrecy. Meetings have been reported to take place at various places ranging from the Peitaho seaside resort east of Peking to Mao's favorite East China winter retreat of Hangchow and Changsha and Wuhan in central China. Latest reports have put him in Wuhan.

Analysts believe Mao has been meeting with provincial leaders to take political soundings about present and future policy.

The succession struggle was only one element of the campaign against Lin. Another aim was to justify the chaotic Cultural Revolution Mao launched in the late 1960s.

It may be that he now wants to see a "New Leap Forward" to justify his disastrous economic experiment of the past. Some analysts think so.

Concert Dates Are Switched

The January dates of the Marin Symphony concert and Marin Youth Orchestra concert have been switched, the Marin Symphony Association has announced.

The symphony now will perform Jan. 19 and the youth orchestra will play Jan. 26, both in Marin Veterans Auditorium.

The changes were made because the San Francisco Symphony, in which many Marin Symphony musicians play, unexpectedly scheduled a night concert Jan. 26, the symphony association said.

Christmas Storm Socks N.M., Texas

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

A Christmas snow and ice storm piled up 5 inches of snow in El Paso, Tex., and Alamagordo, N.M., today and freezing rain slicked highways in west Texas and southeast New Mexico.

The National Weather Service said more was on the way and issued heavy snow warnings for Texas west of the Pecos River, northeast New Mexico and southeast Colorado.

The Texas Department of Public Safety ordered cars to put on tire chains for traveling Guadalupe Pass and sent snow plows ahead to clear the way. "It is open but you have to go pretty slow," said Jose Lujan at the highway office in the pass.

An unexpected Christmas storm heaped snows an inch to a foot deep in New England, making travel hazardous and contributing to at least nine traffic deaths, authorities said.

New Hampshire and Maine reported a foot of powder snow in some areas while Cape Cod got only an inch. Officials at the National Weather Service in Boston said the northeastern storm caught them by surprise.

A forecaster in Albany, N.Y., was moved to doggerel. He reported, "I looked out my window and with a sheepish grin, saw it was white and it shouldn't have been. The forecast was cloudy, or was it fair, but four inches of snow — it just couldn't be there."

A tornado touched down in the retirement and vacation community of Hayesville, N. C., Christmas morning, slightly injuring a Florida couple, destroying their home and damaging another house.

Clay County Rescue Squad Capt. Howard Martin said the twister destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Williams of Miami, but the couple escaped with small scratches.

The small tornado cut a path about 50 yards wide and 75 yards long. Winds knocked down several trees and power lines, temporarily blocking roads.

A few snow showers moved across southern New England to Ohio and Michigan.

Cloudy weather spread from the north Pacific Coast to the northern Rockies and northwestern Plains

Australians Begin Digging Out After Killer Cyclone

DARWIN, Australia (UPI) — The Australian government today began a massive airborne evacuation of survivors of the cyclone that devastated this northern port city Christmas Day and killed dozens of persons. Thousands of others were homeless and without food and water.

The official death toll remained at 44, Rex Patterson, Minister for Northern Development' said today. Some estimates ran as high as 80 and Patterson said, "the final death toll will not be known until rescuers find out what is under the rubble."

Darwin is without electricity, water, fresh food and sewerage. Authorities estimated that 90 per cent of the city of 40,000 was destroyed or damaged and that at least 20,000 houses were hit when tropical cyclone Tracy struck yesterday with 165 mile per hour winds.

Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam cut short his European tour today and headed back to Australia from London to visit the Darwin area. Four passengers were taken off the Qantas flight to make room for Whitlam's party which arrives in Perth tomorrow.

Patterson, whose ministry encompasses the vast area of the Northern Territory, announced that at least 10,000 persons would be evacuated from the cyclone-battered city in order to "thin out" the population to cope with medical and food problems.

"Everyone here is a mouth to feed, we've got to thin out," Patterson said in the first radio broadcast from Darwin since Cyclone Tracy struck. "It would be intolerable for women and children to stay in Darwin for the wet season when thousands of homes will have to be rebuilt," he said.

An Australia-wide airlift of food, clothing, medical supplies and emergency equipment started moving out of three major air bases across Australia, while three naval ships, the aircraft carrier Melbourne, heavy destroyer Hobart and the frigate Stuart, sailed from Sydney for the 2,000-mile trip. They were due here on New Year's Day. Other smaller vessels were en route to help rebuild the demolished port.

Medical authorities in Darwin began an extensive inoculation campaign of residents against disease. Volunteers were called for garbage collection and a giant cleanup of the city.

The U.S. Embassy in Canberra supplied a gigantic U.S. Air Force Starlifter transport plane to assist in rescue and evacuation operations. Defense Minister Lance Barnard said Australia's three airline operators, including the national line QANTAS, would all use available aircraft to help evacuate people from Darwin. Britain sent planes from Singapore to help.

In the first flight out, a Hercules transport took 18 injured survivors, including three children in critical condition, to Sydney for emergency operations.

"Darwin is devastated," one of the survivors said. "It's gone. There is nothing but rubble and a few half-demolished buildings."

In the first radio broadcast from Darwin since the Christmas day cyclone, Patterson announced plans to evacuate women, children and injured.

"Top priority for evacuation will go to the pregnant and ill," he said.

Patterson called on the city's healthy men to stay behind and rebuild Darwin with the supplies being shipped in on naval vessels.

Government officials said Cyclone Tracy destroyed or damaged 90 per cent of Darwin, 2,000 miles north of Sydney.

The government reported hundreds of persons injured and about 20,000 homes destroyed by the erratic cyclone, which changed course suddenly and smashed into the city before officials could make preparations.

Acting Prime Minister James Cairns flew to Darwin today to direct rescue operations for the survivors of the worst storm in Australian history.

"I have been informed that almost the whole of the city has been devastated," he said before leaving Sydney. "Practically every house has been damaged, seriously or otherwise."

"The hospital has been damaged," he said. "The water supply has been damaged. Power is almost completely cut off from the city."

The 165 mile an hour cyclone blew down trees and power lines, ripped roofs off homes and demolished entire buildings. Ships in the harbor were blown aground or capsized.

A spokesman for the Sydney weather bureau said the storm had been expected to pass about 100 miles north of Darwin, but changed course at the last moment and veered south into the city.

"Nothing could be done to warn people in the early morning hours of what was about to happen," he said. "Probably nothing could have helped anyway at that stage."

Weather bureau officials said the cyclone roared out into the Timor Sea between Australia and southern Indonesia after wrecking Darwin.

The first survivors evacuated from Darwin described the Christmas morning fury as "terrifying" and "unbelievable" — interrupted only by an hour of calm as the eye of the storm passed over the city.

The government set up refugee camps amid the rubble of Darwin, the only Australian city extensively damaged by the Japanese in World War II.

DEVASTATION — The main road leading into Darwin, Australia, is obliterated following cyclone 'Tracy,' which struck Christmas Day. A lone dog picks his way along the debris-littered sidewalk. About 95 per cent of the town was destroyed.

Watergate Trial: Dean Is Target

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The lawyer for John D. Ehrlichman today described John W. Dean III, the prosecution's star witness in the Watergate coverup trial, as an articulate but pitiful young man who urged others to lie about the scandal.

"That's the man the government is putting their whole case against John Ehrlichman on," William S. Frates said of the former White House counsel. "I feel sorry for him. He was trapped. He was trapped trying to help the President of the United States. That's what makes this case so sad."

Frates continued his final arguments on the 60th day of the trial. It was expected that all the arguments would be completed by tomorrow, thus allowing the jury to begin deliberations.

Speaking in a loud, firm voice and frequently striding in front of the lectern, Frates charged that Dean had urged former White House aides Egil Krogh, Herbert L. Porter and Jeb Stuart Magruder to lie about Watergate.

During his wide-ranging arguments, Frates praised Ehrlichman's World War II record as a lead navigator on 26 bombing missions, said that although chief trial prosecutor James F. Neal had a "golden tongue" the jury ought to pay attention only to the evidence and contended officials in charge of the early Watergate investigation all exonerated Ehrlichman from obstruction of justice.

"That's the most important evidence in this case involving John Ehrlichman," Frates said.

Frates, speaking directly to the jury, urged them not to let their feelings about the Nixon administration interfere with their deliberations.

"I don't think we believe that the Nixon administration was the most popular group of people who have been in Washington in the last few years," Frates said.

The trial was in recess for two days to allow the jurors, who have been sequestered since Oct. 11, to see their families for Christmas. When Frates finishes, lawyers for defendants Robert Mardian and Kenneth Parkinson will give their presentations.

Then Watergate prosecutor James F. Neal will make his final arguments, presiding Judge John J. Sirica will give the charge and the case will go to the jury, but not before tomorrow at the earliest.

How long the jury will deliberate is, of course, not known. Both prosecutors and defense lawyers have urged the jury to examine for themselves the exhibits, which include many hours of White House tapes.

Both Neal and defense lawyers have focused attention on the prosecution's star witness, former White House Counsel John W. Dean III.

Neal said "good John Dean became mean John Dean" at the White House only after the youthful lawyer began cooperating with prosecutors as the alleged cover-up began unraveling in April 1973.

But John J. Wilson, chief lawyer for H. R. Haldeman; William G. Hundley, lawyer for John Mitchell; and Frates sought to place the blame for Watergate on former White House aides Dean, Charles W. Colson — a Nixon political operative — and Jeb Stuart Magruder, deputy campaign director.

Dean, Colson and Magruder all pleaded guilty to Watergate crimes and all are now in prison.

AFTERMATH — These two cars were swept into the swimming pool of a waterside motel in Darwin, Australia, yesterday as cyclone 'Tracy' roared through the town at 125 miles an hour. The cars belonged to motel guests.

Highway Deaths Under Estimates

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Traffic deaths on the nation's highways today appeared to have fallen short of National Safety Council estimates that between 200 and 260 persons would die during the one-day Christmas holiday period.

More than 100 persons were killed in traffic accidents before the 30-hour holiday ended. However, a final count was not expected until later today.

Last year, the Christmas holiday period traffic death toll was 480.

In one of the worst holiday accidents this year, a car smashed into a city bus near downtown Atlanta, killing five passengers in the car and injuring the bus driver.

Police said the car ran under the empty bus, shearing off the car roof, and knocked the ubs onto the sidewalk.

In Arcadia, Tex., a pickup truck carrying the Olen Ray family home from a Christmas reunion with relatives crashed into a freight train at an unlighted crossing. Five members of the family were killed and a sixth was injured.

The Texas Department of Public safety said the truck was broadsided by the train, throwing all occupants of the truck from the vehicle.

By 8:30 a.m. EST today, a United Press International survey showed at least 141 persons were killed in highway accidents since the holiday began at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

A breakdown of accidental deaths: Traffic 141; Fire 15; Plane 1; Other 8; Total: 165.

Texas reported the largest number of traffic fatalities with 15. New York had 13 highway deaths, Georgia 12, Califorina nine and Michigan eight.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Inability To Recognize Faces Blamed On Brain Disturbance

Prosopagnosia is a bizarre condition involving the inability to recognize the faces of others, or even your own face, in a photograph or mirror.

Its long, unfamiliar name, which originates from the Greek, means "face-nonrecognition" or the specific inability to recognize faces at all; an inability concerning faces only. It is not part of a general inability to recognize or remember recognizable features or visual scenes and is blamed on a distrubance in the small part of the brain.

IN PROSPAGNOSIA, the brain involvement must be well localized because face-nonrecognition is so exquisitely visual. Perhaps the problem lies in the nondominant hemisphere of the brain, since it plays a critical role in the recollection of pattern and topography. In fact, visual field defects have been found in 90 per cent of the cases reported.

The following are not extreme examples of symptoms: A victim approaching a mirror at the end of the hall stepped aside to let himself pass. Another man could not recognize his wife's face unless she wore a certain dress or spoke.

Less than 12 years ago, an editorial in "The Lancet," a British medical journal, stated that prosopagnosiacs often could not distinguish between man and women. Indeed, they probably have more difficulty today because of unisex attire and hairstyles.

VISUAL RECOGNITION of faces is an extraordinary feat, despite the well-known cliche: "I never forget a face." While some people point quickly, accurately and effortlessly to a well-known face in a group photograph of unknowns, this is not as easy as it seems, since lighting, distance and angles alter the appearance of facial characteristics.

Most people fail miserably when asked to describe the face of a friend or even their own spouse. Exceptions are people who are trained to do so, such as draftsmen, artists and policemen.

PNEUMONITIS RECOVERY

G. B. writes: I had pneumonitis six months ago and am still weak. Is this to be expected?

REPLY

No, you should have been well by now. Please consult your physician. X-rays and blood tests will show whether the infection is active. If these tests show no abnormalities, an emotional cause might be the problem.

FATS, GALLBLADDER

G. F. A. writes: Do dairy products aggravate a gallbladder condition? I love whipped cream and put it on everything, including baked potatoes.

REPLY

You really do like whipped cream, don't you? Cream-rich dairy products are not for you. Neither are fried or greasy food, heavy gravies and cabbage. If you have gallstones, you ought to consider surgery.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, in care of this paper.

Ex-Defense Secretary Clifford Urges Probe of CIA Activities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford today urged Congress to launch a "thorough investigation" of the CIA to go along with a report sent to President Ford on charges the secret agency conducted illegal domestic spying.

Clifford, who helped draft the 1947 law which established the CIA, said in a telephone interview, "I think the time has come for a thorough investigaion in depth of the Central Intelligence Agency.

"I think the Senate and House should get together and appoint a joint committee — similar to the select Watergate committee. The Congress should give this committee a good staff and a good, big appropriation."

A 50-page report prepared by CIA chief William E. Colby on the allegations published in Sunday's New York Times was flown yesterday to Ford, who is on a skiing vacation in Colorado. The plane carrying the report was scheduled to arrive later today.

Clifford was assigned by President Harry S Truman as a White House counsel to help draft the language for the National Security Act of 1947 which established the Central Intelligence Agency.

He also served from 1961 through 1968 on the Foreign Intelligence Board, a review committee, on U.S. intelligence operations.

Clifford said that he had no personal knowledge that the CIA had abused its charter language by allegedly creating massive files on dissident Americans and antiwar groups.

"We have this charge of abuse," Clifford said. "If there is evidence that the CIA was engaged in substantial domestic operations, that is all the more reason why there should be a meticulously conducted investigation."

The CIA's counterintelligence chief, James Angleton, says he is resigning because "higher authorites" wanted him to leave after the allegations were made.

Angleton made his views known in several telephone conversations with UPI. He said yesterday he did not know of CIA work against Americans within the United States, directly contradicting his previous stance.

The Times charged the CIA illegally spied on and collected dossiers on as many as 10,000 Americans.

Richard Helms, CIA director when the alleged operations took place in the late 1950s and 1960s, "categorically denied" the charges Tuesday in a message to Kissinger from his present post as U.S. ambasssador in Iran.

Helms was reported vacationing somewhere in Europe.

Angleton told UPI Tuesday he was resigning because of CIA "police state" activities but retracted some of his remarks yesterday, telephoning UPI to say he would like to get some things "straightened out" from previous talks.

"My resignation was reluctant," he said. "I was not pushed."

Ex-FBI Agent Scores Public Furor Over CIA

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Public criticism of the Central Intelligence Agency and the Federal Bureau of Investigation is destructive and only benefits the Russians, a former FBI agent says.

"What is appearing in the press concerning the CIA and the FBI is a bonanza for the Soviet intelligence agency," Sam Papich said. "They are licking their chops watching us undress ourselves, observing while we destroy ourselves.

"What is taking place is leading to a complete decay and destruction of our intelligence service operations."

Papich was an FBI agent for 30 years and is now executive director of the New Mexico Organized Crime Prevention Commission. He said yesterday he does not believe former CIA director Richard Helms had the agency conduct illegal domestic spying operations.

"I support Helms completely because I think the allegations are absolutely false," Papich said.

President Ford has ordered a report on published accounts of CIA spying against U.S. citizens.

Papich said the CIA is necessary for American security.

"People have forgotten why the CIA was developed," he said. "It goes back to December of 1941 and Pearl Harbor. These weren't criminals that set up the organization, they were well meaning citizens. All you have to do is look at their operations around the world, militarily and otherwise."

Iraq Voices Fears Over Gold, Inflation

BEIRUT (UPI) — Iraq called today for an overall international agreement on gold and a world monetary system and warned against unilateral moves that could lead to further inflation.

A statement issued by Saddam Hussein, deputy chairman of the ruling Revolution Command Council, said, "any state, or group of states, that takes steps that will worsen international inflation will be held responsible for them."

In the statement, distributed by the Iraqi News Agency, Hussein urged "developing nations generally, and oil-producing states in particular, to unite their efforts in order to affirm the necessity of reaching an overall international agreement on the question of gold and a world monetary system."

Such an agreement, Hussein said, could be reached through a provisional committee on reforming the world monetary system, the United Nations or other international organizations.

"We are following with great attention recent developments in gold policies, since they are directly connected with the interests of developing nations, including the oil-producing states," Hussein said.

"Iraq had repeatedly declared at meetings of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and other conferences that continued inflation in the advanced industrialized countries leads directly and indirectly to the raising of prices of industrialized and raw materials, as well as foodstuffs and energy. This adds to the financial burdens of the developing nations," he said.

"We do not support unilateral action on gold policies which take place outside the framework of an overall international agreement," Hussein said. "Such action will afford the advanced industrialized nations greater liquidity and this will have adverse effects on the developing nations."

Such adverse effects, he said, would include:

Decreasing the issue of new special drawing rights to the developing countries.

Adding to the financial burdens of these countries because of rising inflation which would obstruct the implementation of economic development plans and further lower their living standards.

"Such unilateral action also might be aimed at absolving the industrialized countries of their responsibility in extending technical and economic aid to developing nations and throwing this burden on the shoulders of the oil-producing states, although the latter are bound to suffer as a result of rising inflation," Hussein said.

"We urge developing nations generally, and oil producing states in particular, to unify their efforts, whether at the meetings of the provisional committee on reforming the world monetary system, or within the framework of the United Nations, or other international organizations, to deal with the question of gold and financial liquidity within the framework of an overall international agreement," he said.

Television Theater Is Alive, Too

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thoughtful television viewers sometimes grouse, "Why can't American TV produce good drama as the British do?"

The answer: It can, and does. Not on the commercial networks. The only audible answer to England's remarkable achievements — "The Forsythe Saga," "Upstairs, Downstairs," etc. — is Hollywood Television Theater.

It began in 1970 with a memorable production of "The Andersonville Trial," directed by George C. Scott. Forty productions have followed, including Clifford Odet's "Awake and Sing" (Walter Matthau), Arthur Miller's "Incident at Vichy" (Stacy Keach), Lillian Hellman's "Another Part of the Forest" (Dorothy McGuire, Barry Sullivan).

Funded by the Ford Foundation and affiliated stations of the Public Broadcasting Service, Hollywood Television Theater wastes no money on frills. For the 1974-75 season, it will present six plays at a total cost of $1.2 million. That's small potatoes by network standards, yet the plays possess remarkable quality.

"I know there is a lot of reverence for the BBC," said executive producer Norman Lloyd. "It's the best there is — but we're good, too."

Critics often agree with his appraisal. The first two plays this season have been outstanding — Judith Anderson in "The Chinese Prime Minister" by Enid Bagnold, Richard Chamberlain in "The Lady's Not for Burning" by Christopher Fry.

The next production, Oliver Hailey's comedy 'For The Use Of The Use Of The Hall," is scheduled to air Jan. 2. It stars Barbara Barrie, Susan Anspach, Joyce Van Patten and David Hedison.

Hollywood Television Theater is taped at the studios of the Los Angeles public television station, KCET, which occupies an ancient lot in Hollywood.

Producer Lloyd seems ideally suited for his work. He started as an actor with Eva Le Gallienne's repertory and the Mercury Theater of Orson Welles and John Houseman. He has appeared in many films, often as the sinister heavy, and still practices his trade — he recently did a "Kojak." For eight years he was associated with Alfred Hitchcock, producing and directing the Hitchcock TV series.

Lloyd steadfastly believes that Hollywood Television Theater presents better drama that what was seen in TV's so-called golden ageof "Studio One," "Playhouse 90," "Alcoa Presents," etc.

"We have better writers — Miller, Fry, Faulkner, Bagnold, Shaw, Ibsen," Lloyd argued. "Not only is the writing as good or better, but we can deal with more daring material."

Julie Andrews Adopts A Viet Waif

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The star with the best Christmas present of all is Julie Andrews, who has a new baby in the house — a Vietnamese orphan she has adopted.

On this Christmas morning little Amy Leigh, 9½ months, will find herself in the winter wonderland of Gstaad, Switzerland, where Julie and her husband, director Blake Edwards, make their home.

Abandoned by her parents, Amy will have a readymade brother and sister: Geoff, (15, by Edwards' previous marriage) and Emma Kate, (12, by Julie's first marriage.)

Both Julie and Blake flew to Los Angeles the past week to give Amy a very precious gift indeed, American citizenship.

"Amy has been with us four months now," Julie said, her face bright with happiness. "And Blake wanted to make sure she is an American. So here we are, undergoing intensive grilling to make sure we are fitting parents. We will hurry back to Gstaad to be with the kids for Christmas."

Julie was asked why she adopted a Vietnamese child instead of a European or American foundling.

"Blake and I were members of the Committee of Responsibility which brought children victims of the Vietnam War to this country for surgery and medical attention that wasn't available in the Orient," she explained.

"We learned then how beautiful the Vietnamese people are. Then Mia Farrow and Andre Previn are friends of ours and they adopted a Vietnamese child. And the Yul Brynners, also old friends, adopted two Vietnamese babies.

"We had been talking about adopting for a long time. So we contacted the same agency that the Previns and Brynners used in Saigon."

Julie and Blake were sent a snapshot of Amy and immediately fell in love. The waif was delivered to them late last August by jet at Heathrow Airport in London.

"She was put into my arms just outside the plane," Julie recalled. "All I could do was look at her for a long time. Then she smiled up at me. It wasn't until she was in bed that night at our flat in London that I was overcome with emotion. Blake and I both wept with happiness.

"We couldn't have found a more enchanting baby if we'd gone to Saigon and picked her out ourselves. Amy is petite, serene, impish and bright. From a serious, sober little girl she has become happy and bursting with life.

"Emma has become a regular little mother herself, bathing and feeding her little sister. Even Geoff gives Amy a bottle now and then."

Julie is devoting most of her time to parenthood now. She and Blake live quietly in Gstaad, rarely seeing such neighbors as David Niven, Elizabeth Taylor and other stars who frequent the ski resort.

Evenings are spent playing backgammon and chess with Blake and the children or showing new movies flown in on request.

"It's an ideal, beautiful life," Julie said. "But this Christmas — our first as full-time residents of Gstaad — will be best of all. There is little Amy to remind us all of the beauty of children and the meaning of the day."

Bit Parts: Cliff Robertson has been added to the cast of "Three Days of the Condor" starring Robert Redford...David McCallum will star in a television movie version of "The Invisible Man"...Joanne Woodward signed an 18-month deal with CBS-TV to develop special projects.

A MOTHER AGAIN — Julie Andrews has a new baby in the house — a Vietnamese orphan she and her husband, Blake Edwards, have adopted.

DRAMA REVIEW

Alice Faye Revives '27 Musical

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

NEW YORK (UPI) — The good news about "Good News" is that it has brought Alice Faye, the former screen and television star, to Broadway in a likeable revival of a 1927 musical that is designed to ride the tide of nostalgia for a lengthy run.

"Good News" comes to New York after nearly a year of engagements across the country by courtesy of Harry Rigby, the resuscitator of such golden oldies as "No, No Nanette" and "Irene". It opened at the St. James Theater this week to an enthusiastic audience that gave the now gray-haired Miss Faye and a large and excellent cast a standing ovation.

The musical by the late Buddy DeSylva, Lew Brown and Ray Henderson is as far removed from intellectual stimulation as any of the scores of stage and screen plots about college campus life that flourished in the '20s, '30s, '40s and even into the '60s. "Good News" has to be enjoyed on the level of its memorable popular tunes, bright staging, and energetic dancing-singing cast, or not at all.

Who can really find fault with a show that offers such classics as "The Best Things in Life Are Free", "Button Up Your Overcoat", "Lucky in Love", "You're the Cream in My Coffee," "Varsity Drag," "Together", "Keep Your Sunny Side Up," and "Life Is Just a Bowl of Cherries". Even Miss Faye, who was never much of a dramatic actress, can make a memorable statement with material like this.

When she is strutting her stuff in her Donald Brooks lavendar-and-silver sequined gown, her sooty eyelashes fluttering, her pearly smile warming the whole theater, Miss Faye restates an era of the American theater that is eternally fascinating. But she is a performer that needs strong support, which she received from her costar Gene Nelson in the role taken by John Payne on the pre-Broadway tour.

Miss Faye plays a professor of astronomy whose youthful romance with a college football hero, now the campus athletic coach, is revived in a simplistic plot revolving around the college's gridiron showdown with Colson College. Nelson's ebullient singing-dancing performance is a perfect foil for her more low-keyed, offhand impersonation of a woman who is at once decorous and vulnerable.

Backing up the stars are a fabulously talented young cast including Scott Stevenson and Joseph Burke, as a football star, Stubby Kaye as the football trainer, Barbara Lail as the ingenue, Tommy Breslin as the comic Freshman, and Jana Robbins as the vamp. They were just right as denizens of the football stadium, the lock room, the Pi Beta Phi sorority house, a fraternity house, and the prom ballroom.

Garry Marshall's adaptation is set in the 1930s to take advantage of more varied musical and dance moods. Donald Oenslager's settings, recreated from originals that were destroyed by fire while the show as on tour in California, seemed weak in comparison that Donald Brooks' brilliant costuming — plaid woolens, jazzy sweaters, satiny underwear, ruffled prom gowns, knickers and pleated skirts.

Michael Kidd's direction emphasizes frenetic activity on the stage at all times, suitable to an era when campus life supposedly streased fun and games — football games — almost to the exclusion of academic pursuits. We all know the show is only a half truth, but that's all nostalgia ever is. "Good News" at the St. James leaves today's troubled world far, far in the future for two generally happy hours.

CAPSULE COMMENTS

Fred Winship, UPI: "Good News" has to be enjoyed on the level of its memorable popular tunes, bright staging, and energetic dancing-singing cast, or not at all."

Douglas Watt, New York Daily News: "... a songfest with scenery and costumes and the thread of a story, a blunt and half-hearted sort of entertainment without any particular style."

Clive Barnes, The New York Times: "It has a sense of style, a sense of period and a few bursts of energy that really work."

REVIVAL — Alice Faye, the former screen and television star, has opened on Broadway with a revival of the 1927 musical, "Good News." The show came to New York after a year on tour.

Tuition Hike Expected At Colleges

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Most of California's private colleges will have tuition increases of at least 10 per cent next year while at the state universities and colleges, tuition might be stable but total living costs for students will rise.

Arthur S. Marmadulu, director of the California State Scholarship and Loan Commission, said fees will run about $3,810 at Stanford University, a boost of about 12.9 per cent. Living costs, including room and board, books, laundry and other essentials will be $5,630.

Occidental College is planning on increase of about 10 per cent and the University of Southern California is considering a hike of between 9 per cent and 13 per cent, he said.

Tuition at USC this year is $2,995 for a full-time undergraduate, and may be increased by between $200 and $330 next year. USC and Stanford both said they hope to increase student financial aid programs to ease the tuition problem for students.

Fees at the 19-campus California State University and Colleges will stay between $180 and $220, but officials at Cal State Northridge estimated that it will cost more for students to live off campus.

Total costs at the University of California will probably go up to $3,000 or more, officials there said, although tuition and fees should remain in the same $625 to $675 bracket.

Girl's Kidnap Suspects Freed

CEDAR CITY, Utah (UPI) — A couple accused of kidnaping a 20-month-old girl was released yesterday when they produced legal documents indicating they had legal custody.

Police sought James Pastoor, 45, Tonopah, Nev., and his wife, Loretta, 25, after Mrs. Pastoor's former husband claimed the pair had kidnaped litttle Sanya Koscik from a Cedar City home Tuesday night.

The girl's father, Thomas Koscik, had told Salt Lake City police a caller later demanded $300 ransom by phone for her return after his ex-wife and Pastoor allegedly broke into the home and abducted the girl.

The Pastoors were stopped near Cedar City with the girl, whereupon they showed officers the documents for their legal custody of Sanya. Koscik had told police he had custody.

No criminal charges were immediately filed, a police spokesman said. The couple was advised to contract their lawyer.

Soviet Demographers Seek Status

By ELIZABETH POND
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

MOSCOW — Soviet demographers are cautiously sticking their noses out of the ground to see if the winter of their profession is over yet. They still see shadows of some Marxist disdain for their research, but they are deflecting these shadows by saying that their findings are necessary for rational economic planning.

To a Westerner, the study of population shifts might seem an utterly noncontroversial and even dull subject. But in this society any social science is suspect that might set forth analyses of human behavior independent of Marxist precepts of cause and historical necessity.

Soviet demographers therefore are acting gingerly in trying to gain more respect for their profession — as a round table in recent issues of a philosophical monthly shows. But they would like to have their own institute, instead of being the tail on other institute projects. And they would like more scope for discussing population problems in delicate areas.

Soviet participants in a round table last May — covered only in the September and November issues of "Problems of Philosophy" — therefore prefaced their discussion with arguments for the worth of demography.

They also trod the fine line between "Malthusian prejudices" (of the West) and "demographic Nihilism" (of China and of Soviet ideologues in the past).

Philosophy Prof. I. Frolov, for example, spoke of the need for accurate demographic projections for the economic planning under way for the next 15 years.

Dr. Y. Guzevady pointed out, however, that demography in the Soviet Union for a long time has been equated with mere population statistics, "which negated any specific relatively active role of demographic factors in public development, or the existence of any other population problems but social and economic ones."

Dr. Guzevady went on to praise the "successful overcoming of these mistaken views," but he noted that "one cannot yet say that our scientific circles and practical organizations have completely gotten rid of past biased notions in questions of population." Even the Academy of Sciences, he said, has shown no real interest in organizing demographic research.

Dr. Guzevady prudently balanced off this criticism by attacking "delusions" of a pure demographic science independent of "social phenomena" (and, by implication, ideology).

He then launched into one of the ticklish substantive issues for Soviet demographers: The contrast between the embarrassingly low birth rate in European parts of the Soviet Union and the high birthrates of Central Asia that are comparable to third-world rates.

Both areas of the Soviet Union have been under the some social and economic system for the past half century and should presumably have the same birthrate, if the social and economic system is the chief determinant. Yet the birth- rate in the Russian republic is only 15.3 per thousand, while the birthrate in Tadzhikistan is 36 per thousand.

Dr. Guzevady offered this explanation: "Since real equality of women in all spheres comes only with the victory of socialism, a low birthrate is in principle the law in a socialist society." But it is modified by factors like the Muslim religion in Central Asia.

OAKLAND (UPI) — Oakland Raider Ron Smith hopes that after Sunday's clash with the Pittsburgh Steelers, he will still be among the thin ranks of National Football League players who have never had a serious injury.

The Raiders downed the Steelers 17-0 in regular season play and battle them next in an American Football Conference playoff game.

Oakland Coach John Madden has praised Smith's runbacks in the win over Pittsburgh. Smith, a punt and kickoff returner, set up a touchdown with a 47-yard punt return and also had a 41-yard kickoff return.

"I'm not a dirt-and-fly guy," Smith says. "I try to get all the yardage I can but a crippled man is no use to his team."

Smith says he uses his blockers and plans ahead for likely holes "but if stoppage is inevitable, I don't stand there as a target."

Smith and his teammates sandwiched their Christmas celebrating around a three-hour workout yesterday.

"I told the guys last week Christmas would be canceled if we beat Miami," Madden said half-kiddinlgly as the team went through offensive drills.

Oakland advanced to the AFC championship game Saturday by edging the two-time defending champion Dolphins, 28-26, in a hectic finish.

With the exception of perennial All-Pro defensive back Willie Brown, Madden pronounced his team ready for the step before the Super Bowl. Brown was listed as a doubtful performer because of a nagging leg injury.

Quarterback Ken Stabler, who threw the game-winning touchdown pass against the Dolphins with 26 seconds left, enjoyed a double celebration off the field. In addition to exchanging Christmas gifts, the southpaw slinger from Alabama also celebrated his 29th birthday.

"There's only one thing Kenny really wants," said Debbie Staoler. "If I could get him the one present in the world that would make him the happiest, it would be the Super Bowl. I can't, so I settled for a pool table."

A Super Bowl title would climax an exciting year for Stabler, but he isn't looking beyond Pittsburgh.

"Everyone says how much better we are this year," he said. "But if we don't beat Pittsburgh, we won't have gone any further than last year. Our 12-2 record and victory over Miami won't mean anything. Those aren't the things that motivate you. It's wanting to be the best."

East-West Shrine Game Lineups Set

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The East-West squads today announced their starting lineups for the annual Shrine game at Stanford Stadium Saturday afternoon.

Both teams scheduled a short morning practice and then the players took time off to be guests at Marine World in Redwood City.

On Christmas Day East, Coach Bo Schembechler put his squad through some kicking and offensive maneuvers. He noted the West had the day off and said, "We thought about going by their hotel and singing some Christmas carols."

Small Bush Fly Bothers Connors

Connors brushed aside Kachel 7-5, 6-2, 6-4 but was less successful in his battle with the bushfly.

"That damn thing, it sat around my head for the entire match and even changed ends with me," Connors said.

The American, self-described as arrogant, displayed all the attributes of an tennis gentleman as he ripped through the young local player. There were no tantrums and no gamesmanship as he went about demolishing Kachel.

Connors was asked if he was going to watch Australian John Newcombe, who followed Connor's match on center court.

"What for?" I'll worry about Newcombe if I get to the final. Then maybe I'll have a look at him," said Connors.

Connors opened his match today by dropping service and allowing Kachel to lead 2-0 in the first set.

Newcombe, who is seeking a $500,000 winner-take-all clash with Connors in the United States next year, breezed through his first round match, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2 against former South African Davis Cup player Trevor Fancutt.

JIMMY CONNORS
Easy victory

Connors' travelling mate, Spencer Segura, son of the famed "Pancho", was a casualty in the opening round to local player John James, who won 6-2, 7-6, 6-3 James caused a sensation last week in Sydney when he ousted the young Swedish star Bjorn Borg in the early rounds of the New South Wales championships.

West German Ulie Pinner, who meets Connors in a second round match tomorrow, defeated Japan's Sho Tanabe 6-1, 7-6, 6-3.

FOR ROOKIE OF YEAR

Giants' Hicks Edges Out Jackson

NEW YORK (UPI) — Offensive guard John Hicks, whose crunching blocking and pass protecting provided some of the few bright spots in an otherwise dismal season for the New York Giants, today was named the United Press International's 1974 National Football Conference Rookie of the Year.

Hicks, a No. 1 draft choice out of Ohio State who proved to be a real "blue chipper," became the first offensive lineman, other than an end, to gain the honor in the 20-year history of the award. He won by a slim one vote over running back Wilbur Jackson of the San Francisco 49ers in the nationwide balloting of 39 sports writers, three from each NFC city.

Hicks received 13 votes compared to 12 for Jackson who, after a brilliant collegiate career at Alabama, ranked eighth in rushing in the NFC with 705 yards on the ground despite missing a couple of games because of injuries. The only other rookie to get more than two votes was linebacker Waymond Bryant of the Chicago Bears who was named on four ballots.

The Giants finished the 1973 season with a 2-12 record, tied with Baltimore for the worst mark in the National Football League, but it was hardly the fault of the 6-foot-2, 260 pound Hicks who, along with fellow rookie guard Tom Mullen of Southwest Missouri State, gave the Giants one of the better offensive lines in the league.

"You really can't measure an individual performance such as mine in view of the team's poor record," said Hicks, who, along with an All America selection, also won both the Outland Trophy and Lombardi Trophy during his senior year at Ohio State. "I really didn't expect to start this year and I had a lot of learning to do. I tried to reach a point of consistency."

Asked if he had any trouble mastering the art of pass blocking since he came from Ohio State where head coach Woody Hayes' teams are noted mainly for their fearsome running attacks, Hicks replied:

"Even though it always seemed we ran a lot at Ohio State, I still worked a lot on pass protection. "I had a good fundamental background thanks to my coach there—Ralph Staub."

Despite the Giants' poor record this year, Hicks foresees a bright future for the club.

"We never really got blown out in any of our games and (Bill) Arnsparger is a great coach," Hayes said. "It's only a matter of time until we improve. We now have a set quarterback in Craig Morton and we believe in him and he believes in us."

Warriors' Home Mark Impressive

OAKLAND (AP) — The Golden State Warriors will be going after their sixth straight home victory tonight at 7:30 when they meet the Portland Trail Blazers at the Oakland Arena.

The Warriors, 21-11 overall and 10-3 at home, are tied with Buffalo for the second-best record in the 18-team National Basketball Association.

In the teams previous two meetings, the Warriors won one, 109-100, and the Trail Blazers captured the other, 107-106.

Portland still will be without first-round draft pick Bill Walton who hasn't played in more than a month because of a bone spur on the arch of his left foot.

LaRue Martin has been filling in. Martin was in the lineup when the Trail Blazers came back from a 26-point halftime deficit 10 days ago to beat the Lakers.

Golden State is second in the NBA in team offense with 108 points a game, but only 14th in team defense, allowing 104.3 points.

USC, Ohio State To Resume Practicing

PASADENA (UPI) — Both USC and its New Year's Day Rose Bowl opponent, the Ohio State Buckeyes, were slated to resume practice this afternoon following brief training breaks for the Christmas holidays.

John McKay's Trojans, most of whom live in California, had no workouts Tuesday or Christmas Day. Woody Hayes took most of his 60 Buckeyes to the Balboa Bay Club yesterday for a day of tennis, pool, sauna baths and strolls along the beach.

"Christmas is a very lonely day for boys who are away from family and friends," Hayes explained as the reason for the outing.

Hayes' holidays were somewhat dampened by the condition of four injured players — regular split end Dave Hazel, regular offensive right tackle Scott Dannelly, second team offensive tackle Lou Pietrini, and second team defensive tackle Tyrone Harris.

Dannelly, 6-3, 240, and Hazel, 6-1, 192, both suffered sprained ankles in practice prior to the Buckeyes arrival in California. Hayes has kept both out of contact drills to date here.

It appears as if Pietrini and Harris will be sidelined for New Year's Day with their injuries. Pietrini, 6-3, 242, who backs up Kurt Schumacher at left tackle, suffered a concussion in scrimmage Monday. Harris, 6-3, 242, strained his right knee Saturday during practice.

A Buckeye spokesman also said that James O'Rourke, 6-3, 252, who backed up of Harris, suffered such a severe sprained ankle in Columbus workouts that he was left home.

Clark Wants An Interception

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Al Clark, speedy Ram cornerback, is looking for his first reception of the year and thinks he may grab one when Los Angeles meets Minnesota Sunday.

A starter in only the last five games, Clark politely defends the Ram secondary from criticism in the news media.

"I don't think all the criticism has been justified," says the 26-year-old native of Bogalusa, La. "We couldn't be that bad or we wouldn't have been winning consistently. Statistically, we finished ahead of a lot of secondaries around the league."

During their 10-4 regular season, the Rams intercepted 22

Vikings Begin Two Days Of Workouts For Sunday

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — The Minnesota Vikings started two days of workouts here today in preparation for Sunday's National Football Conference championship game against the Los Angeles Rams.

Their coach, Bud Grant, had high hopes for Sunday.

The Rams beat the Vikings 20-17 in Los Angeles Nov. 24. But Grant said things would be very different this time around.

For one thing, Minnesota had a lot of injuries when the team played at Los Angeles.

"This time we'll be completely healthy, barring an unforeseen sickness or accident just before the game," Grant said.

Also, Minnesota will have the advantage of the home field.

Spokesmen for both teams have said the weather won't make much difference, barring a blizzard or sub-zero weather, neither of which is expected at Metropolitan Stadium Sunday.

However, Rams Coach Chuck Knox has appointed assistant coach Elijah Pitts — a former Green Bay Pakcer player — as cold weather advisor, indicating there still may be some apprehension among the Rams about playing in predicted 20-degree weather.

Donchez Glad To Be Back

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Tom Donchez, Penn State's leading rusher, is looking forward to his second appearance in the Cotton Bowl.

"I'm really looking forward to going back to Dallas," said Donchez. "We had a great time the last time we were there."

The Nittany Lions beat the Longhorns 30-6, holding them to two field goals. Donchez started against Texas because Franco Harris, now with the Pittsburgh Steelers, was hampered by injuries.

Donchez, ranked ninth on Penn State's career rushing list with 1,422 yards, gained 880 yards in 195 carries during 1974. He also led the Lions in scoring with 48 points and tied for the team lead in receiving with 17 catches for 176 yards.

Donchez had some trouble holding onto the football early in the season, but he corrected the problem and fumbled only once in the Lions' last seven games.

"It was mostly a matter of concentration," he said. "I had to think about being more careful with the football." Penn State (9-2) gathered at Harrisburg today for its flight to Dallas and its Jan. 1 meeting with Baylor.

Nebraska Grid Team Welcomes Chilling Wind

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Nebraska's Cornhuskers welcomed a change in the weather during their Christmas Day practice for the Sugar Bowl New Year's Eve against Florida.

"This is like warm weather to us," said Coach Tom Osborne as a chilling wind dropped the temperature into the high 50s during the afternoon workout.

Temperatures had been in the 70s when the Cornhuskers arrived Christmas Eve, but Osborne said he would prefer the cooler conditions for the game.

"We worked them pretty hard," Osborne said. "We'll continue these types of workouts for another two or three days until we get used to the humidity."

DICK ALLEN
Will he play?

SPORTS SHORTS

Tanner's Prediction On Allen

Combined AP & UPI

PITTSBURGH — The manager of the Chicago White Sox has predicted that slugger Dick Allen will come out of retirement and break the all-time season home run record.

Chuck Tanner said he felt Allen would play next season for the Atlanta Braves and "break the home run records set by Babe Ruth and Roger Maris." Allen retired from the White Sox last September, claiming he was tired of baseball.

The White Sox, however, sent Allen to the Atlanta Braves for a reported $75,000 and a player to be named later — if Allen reports to the Braves. Allen has insisted he will not report to Atlanta.

"I think he will change his mind," the White Sox manager said, "because he likes baseball. In that Atlanta park, he will break all kinds of records. The Atlanta park has a low fence and Allen's balls will fly out of there."

Oklahoma State Is Fiesta Bowl Choice

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — Although the Western Athletic Conference champion has won all three previous Fiesta Bowls, the oddsmakers are selecting Oklahoma State over WAC titlist Brigham Young this time around.

BYU coach Lavell Edwards does not see it that way, however.

"I realize that some people are still not sure that BYU is for real," Edwards said as he prepared his team for the Saturday afternoon contest. "I think a lot of people still think there are two or three teams in the WAC that are better than we are. We think we're as good as anybody and we want to develop the respect that comes with having a good program like Arizona and Arizona State."

Edwards admitted that overall the Big Eight Conference, which the Cowboys represent, is stronger than the WAC, but added that ASU, winner of the first three Fiesta Bowls, has been on a par with the Big Eight schools in recent years, and that Arizona is close to that point also.

"And I think now we would be up there where we could play with any of them with the exception of Oklahoma," Edwards added.

Edwards acknowledged that Oklahoma State has been made a 10-point favorite, but said he personally sees the game as a toss-up.

The Cougar attack is led by quarterback Gary Sheide, who finished as the nation's second best passer this past season with 2,174 yards as he helped his team to a 7-3-1 mark.

The Cowboys, on the other hand, passed for only 824 yards in compiling a 6-5 record, and their probable starter at quarterback, freshman Scott Burk, threw only three passes. Burk started in place of sophomore Charlie Weatherbie in the Cowboys' season closer against Oklahoma.

North Carolina Hot Stove Group Selects Hunter

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — For the second time in a row, Jim "Catfish" Hunter has been voted the Will Wynne Award, made each year to the North Carolinian who contributed the most to baseball.

The award, presented by the Raleigh Hot Stove League, will be made at the group's annual banquet Jan. 28.

Hunter, made a free agent from the world champion Oakland A's in a recent arbitration ruling, is being sought by various major league teams.

It's Not Easy Being An Official

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Few aspects of sport are as inconspicuous yet, at the same time, as important as officiating. The pace, tone and sometimes even the outcome of a game can be determined by the men in the striped shirts.

Here in Marin, we are fortunate to have the services of the North Bay Officials Association, which supplies the Marin County Athletic League with referees for both football and basketball.

Under the direction of Robert Fitzhenry, a teacher at Drake High School and a resident of Kentfield, the 80-member organization covers an area from Sausalito to Willits and includes some 50 schools in four leagues. Besides the MCAL, the North Bay, Sonoma County and North Central leagues subscribe to the service.

IT'S NOT EASY to become a North Bay Official, and members are obligated to maintain the highest levels of efficiency and knowledge. Which is all the more impressive when you consider that most of them work both football and basketball.

Say a man wants to become a ref. First he must submit to Fitzhenry an application that includes his experience, references, etc. If he is accepted, he is given at first a limited schedule of unimportant games, and from there he can work his way up.

To maintain its standards, the organization conducts clinics five times a year for each sport, and attendance is mandatory for all officials. Tests are given, with a final exam at the end of the season.

FITZHENRY USES the test results, along with evaluations by fellow officials and coaches, to compute each member's performance and draw up a ranking list each year. This enables him to assign the best officials to the most important games. It also shows him which guys aren't doing the job, and a ranking in the lowest five for two straight years results in dismissal.

The product of such stringent requirements is a first-class group of officials. According to Fitzhenry, "Paul Gaddini, who is commissioner of the North Coast Section, says that ours is the best organized and really does the best job of qualifying people."

WHEN ASKED to name some of the best officials he's got, Fitzhenry listed, for football, Verle Sorgen, Frank Ellinger, John Panagakis and Don Payne. For basketball, he named Jack Hanley, Ray Dal Poggetto and Sorgen again.

Much of the credit for the success of the organization must go to Fitzhenry, who has been commissioner for the last 10 years. Other areas, like the East Bay, suffer from a high turnover of commissioners, but Fitzhenry says, "I enjoy the job, and I really don't think there's that much pressure."

Fitzhenry also finds time to head the 25-member Marin County Umpires Association, which handles College of Marin and high school junior varsity baseball games. Varsity games are done by a group based in San Francisco.

Steeler Sizes Up Enemy

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Left cornerback J. T. Thomas of the Pittsburgh Steelers figures he is going to have a hard time defensing Oakland's Fred Biletnikoff in Sunday's American Football Conference playoff game at Oakland.

"Last week against Buffalo, I had Ahmad Rashad man-to-man almost all day," said Thomas. "Now he's big, strong and super quick. Speed is his thing.

"But Biletnikoff's entirely different. He's not very big and he's not too fast, but his moves are out of this world. That's his thing — moves. I haven't covered a receiver all year who does that as well or as often as he does."

"Mean" Joe Greene, the Steelers' All-Pro defensive tackle, says Oakland's defense should be in for a rough afternoon because Pittsburgh's offense has "arrived."

Greene, unchallenged spokesman of the Steeler defense, says he was convinced of that by Pittsburgh's playoff victory over the Buffalo Bills.

"It was the day Terry Bradshaw proved to everybody that he had finally become a man and our offensive leader.

"Last Sunday was a big day in our history," said the Texas native. "I felt like I really belonged in Pittsburgh for the first time, because for the first time the fans cheered for us as a team. Not for individuals, not against one player and for another, but for us as a team.

"It was a whole new experience and I loved every minute of it. Loved it. Now I'm going to be proud to be considered a Pittsburgher."

Greene, a first round draft pick from North Texas State who preceded Bradshaw here by one year, says Bradshaw's problems on the field and off may have stemmed from the monumental buildup given him by the Steelers and the press in his rookie season.

"Maybe him coming in here as the heralded saviour of the franchise put unfair pressure on him. Maybe that and all the falls he's taken have turned him into the man he's suddenly become."

Earlier in the season, Greene was reluctant to talk about the offense. But now that's one of his top subjects.

"We're all in this together," said Greene. "Now I'm proud to include our offense. Baby, they've arrived."

Luckman's No. 1

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sid Luckman of the Chicago Bears was the first player in National Football League history to pass more than 400 yards in one game. Luckman passed for 433 against the New York Giants on Nov. 14, 1943.

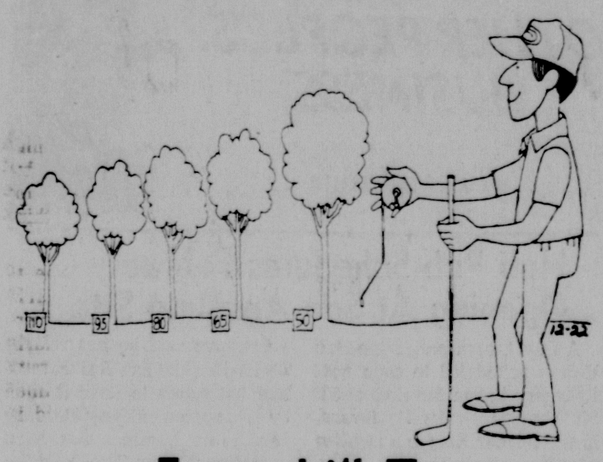
TREVINO TALKS GOLF



Every Li'l Tree

By LEE TREVINO

Some desert courses are so flat and without contrast that it's tough to get a good reading on distances. It happens in the Southwest and in Florida, which ain't exactly Switzerland.

Flat terrain is deceiving. A shot may look closer than it is, and you'll come up short by as much as one club.

Pros know what they can get out of every stick they carry. And they don't usually miss their distances — even to measuring them in terms of football fields. If you figure it's a field and a half to a big ditch you don't want to wind up in, then it's 150 yares.

Most holes on any course, desert or otherwise, are tree-lined. If there aren't trees on the hole you're playing, check the adjoining fairway.

Trees are usually 15 yards apart so the mowers can go between them. (Didn't know that, didja?) Step it off if they look farther.

Once you know the distance between trees (and it's usually consistent), all you got to do is count trees between you and the green.

I ain't no Ph.D., but eight trees 20 yards apart give me the distance to the green. It's a football field and a half, plus 10 yards. Well, you get the idea. Don't you?

Prep Basketball Tourney Games On Tap

Drake and Redwood, two of the stronger teams in the Marin County Athletic League, may face each other in the championship game of the Pinole Valley basketball tournament, which begins tonight in Pinole.

The two MCAL teams will be going against a so-so field from the Alameda County Athletic League. Redwood opens tonight at 8:30 against El Cerrito, and Drake begins tomorrow night at 8:30 against host team Pinole Valley. Action continues with semi-finals Saturday and finals Monday.

Another MCAL team, Marin Catholic, traveled to Sacramento's Jesuit High School today for the start of its All-Catholic tournament. The Wildcats were to meet St. Mary's of Berkeley this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the opening round.

Among the Alameda league teams at Pinole, the strongest are San Leandro from the southern division, which brings in a 7-1 record, and El Cerrito, just 4-6 but picked to win the northern division. Drake and San Leandro will meet in the second round if both win their openers.

Three teams from Richmond — De Anza, Kennedy and Ellis — complete the field.

Drake, 8-2, won its last two games by a total of 47 points, and coach Pete Hayward is confident he can win at Pinole. "We haven't practiced all week (due to MCAL holiday rules), but if we come to play, we'll do all right," he says.

Forward Walt Gillespie has been extremely effective as the Pirates' leader, both on offense and defense, and guards Steve Holt and Mike Ghiringhelli have done an outstanding job guiding the fast-break.

Redwood brings in a 5-4 mark, which includes a victory over Lowell of San Francisco in the title game of the Wine Valley Festival in Napa. Last week the Giants got in over their heads in the Amador Valley Classic, where they lost to Fremont and Bishop O'Dowd, two of Oakland's most powerful teams.

Marin Catholic will use the rest of its pre-season schedule looking for ways to take up the slack created by the absence of star forward Mike Mahoney. He had a cast put on his injured right ankle Monday, and is now expected to be lost for half the league season.

passes. Strong safety Dave Elmendorf and cornerback Charlie Stukes each grabbed seven.

"I still haven't made an interception this season but it'll come," says Clark with his eye on the Viking game for the National Football Conference championship.

"That's going to be a helluva game. It's going to be a real war. Minnesota has a great football team but so do we.

"Fran Tarkenton is smart and he's tough to deal with. But I promise you the secondary will be ready for the challenge. We're used to playing in adversity. And I think we've now shown we can overcome it."

Clark, 6 feet and 180, has been timed in 4.5 seconds for 40 yards. He's an elusive runner and has been used on kick returns by the Rams. He moved around fast in college — from Grambling to Northern Arizona State and finally to Eastern Michigan.

With Elmendorf and Stukes, he and Bill Simpson, a rookie from Michigan State who was a second round draft choice, round out the regular secondary. In "pass prevent" situations Eddie McMillan and/or Steve Preece may move in to help.

When the Rams beat Washington 19-10 last Sunday to win their first playoff game in 23 years, Simpson killed the final Redskin drive with an interception in the end zone. Linebackers Isiah Robertson and Jack Reynolds also intercepted passes in that one. Robertson's was the biggie — he ran the ball back 59 yards for a TD.

Difficult Tasks For West

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The West Coast's top college basketball teams have their work cut out for them in the annual round of college holiday tournaments that scatters teams from one end of the nation to the other.

The Far West Classic opens tonight in Portland with No. 14 ranked Oregon expected to give ninth-ranked Arizona State its toughest competiton.

A survey of 20 Northwest sportswriters and broadcasters predicted an all-Oregon show when the finals roll around Monday night. They picked Oregon and Oregon State as the top teams in the tournament, followed by Boston College, Arizona State and Washington State. Creighton, Wake Forest and Iowa round out the field.

Meanwhile, fifth-ranked USC is the choice against St. Joseph's (Pa.) and four local teams in New York's five-day Holiday Festival. Rutgers figures to be the final opponent for the Trojans.

San Jose State and Pacific are also in tourneys that start tonight. The Spartans are in the Rainbow Classic at Honolulu and the Tigers are at the All-College Tournament in Oklahoma City.

California and Stanford also open play tomorrow with the Bears pitting their 5-1 record against unbeaten Arizona in the Old Dominion Classic at Norfolk, Va. Stanford, 4-2, takes on Illinois in the Lobo Tournament in New Mexico.

Santa Clara plays in the Indiana State Classic tomorrow but West Coast Athletic Conference foe University of San Francisco doesn't have to travel for its tourney. The Dons, who finished third in the Cable Car Classic on their own court last weekend, take on Texas Christian in the first round of the San Francisco Invitational.

Ex-Center Bristow Makes Impressive Start As NBA Guard

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Allan Bristow, a 6-foot 7 center in college and a "natural forward," played his first game ever at guard last night and gave himself a late Christmas gift and an early wedding present.

Bristow, who is set to marry Etoila Yance in Alexandria, Va., Saturday evening, never even practiced at guard but was informed by coach Gene Shue just before the game that he "should be prepared to play some backcourt."

Bristow proceeded to score a career high 23 points and pace the Philadelphia 76ers to a 104-97 upset victory over the slumping New York Knicks at Madison Square Garden.

"I called Etoila this morning to tell her I love her and to say Merry Christmas," said Bristow, a second year forward from Virginia Tech who averaged only 4.7 points per game as a rookie.

Bristow and Billy Cunningham scored 14 points apiece in the second half to bring Philadelphia back from a 10-point halftime deficit. At one point in the second quarter, the Knicks led by 16.

Philadelphia took the lead for the first time, 89-88, on a layup by Steve Mix with 3:50 remaining in the game. The game was then tied three times before New York center John Gianelli fouled out trying to stop Fred Carter. Carter hit the two free throws and gave Philadelphia a 95-93 lead it never lost.

Suns 110, Celtics 96

Charlie Scott scored 30 points and Keith Erickson 25 as Phoenix survived a fourth quarter scare to beat Boston. Scott and Erickson's performances offset a season high 33 points by Boston's Jo Jo White. White, Dave Cowens with 23 and John Havlicek with 15 were the only Celtics in double figures.

Bullets 110, Hawks 92

Paced by Mike Riordan's scoring and Kevin Porter's stealing, Washington Bullets outscored Atlanta 32-11 in the second period and rolled to an easy victory. The Bullets converted six steals by Porter and 14 Atlanta turnovers into easy second period baskets in moving to their 25th win in 34 games, best in the NBA. Riordan finished with a game high 24 points while teammates Elvin Hayes and Phil Chenier scored 19 points each.

Rains Force Texas Gridders To Go Indoors

The Longhorns returned from a five-day holiday break to resume preparations for the game. The team had a Christmas dinner and worked out 90 minutes in a gym.

Former Longhorn backfield coach Fred Akers, the new head coach at Wyoming, returned to practice. Akers named Texas assistant Leon Manley his line coach and both men will stay with the team until the Gator Bowl game.

IRA Provides Haven For Pension Funds

By DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. Since 1961, we have had a company pension plan. It is now being discontinued and my fund is worth about $5,000. I understand that, under the new pension law, if I reinvest these funds in a new plan within 60 days, I will not have to pay tax on the money. Could you give a 60-year-old some advice on where and how to establish a new retirement fund? C.P.

A. You are referring to the tax-free rollover provision of the Individual Retirement Account (IRA) under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act. Not more than once every three years can you use the tax-free rollover to transfer assets from a qualified plan to an IRA, or from one type of IRA to another, such as from an annuity plan to a bond plan or to a mutual fund plan, etc. The $1,500 annual limit on an IRA does not apply in the case of a rollover of assets. As you are aware, you have only 60 days in which to set up the new plan.

There are numerous options open to you as far as approved investment vehicles are concerned. Using either a trust or custodian account, possibilities include: securities portfolios, mutual funds, annuities and special U.S. Government retirement bonds. At your age, you would probably prefer an investment stressing capital preservation, income and growth, in that order. A mutual fund such as Stein Roe & Farnham Balanced, a no-load, or Eaton & Howard Balanced, a load fund, would fit these objectives. Both funds offer Keogh-type plans. The former is located at 150 South Wacker Drive, Chicago Il 60606; the latter at 24 Federal Street, Boston, MA 02110.

Another possibility would be to set up a plan through a broker. This would give you the option of selecting your own investments. I would invest about $3,000 of your $5,000 in 5M (face amount) Southern Railway 5s of 1994. This deeply discounted A-rated bond trades near $600 to yield 8.5 per cent currently. The balance of your $5,000 should be invested in equal dollar amounts of Pennwalt Corp. (NYSE), in chemical and pharmaceuticals, and Consolidated Foods (NYSE) in food and home products.

DIGITAL'S LATEST PRODUCT

This compact, desk model traffic data recording system called the D101, developed by Digital Telephone Systems Inc. of San Rafael, is about one-third the size and more economical than larger models now in use. Used principally by Bell and independent telephone companies, it serves as a nerve center in counting the number of telephone calls coming in and out of a switchboard and to see what lines are getting the most usage. Digital Telephone Systems Inc. and its 200 employees, now located at Northgate Industrial Park, plans to move next spring into its new building under construction at Hamilton Industrial Park.

Public Gets Free Training In Clerical Skills Center

Men and women who want to learn or brush up on typing and other office skills may do so at a free training center maintained in downtown San Rafael by the Marin County Schools office.

That same training center also serves as an office workers pool where employers can obtain qualified office personnel.

The Office Occupations Center at 1245 Fourth Street in the Reynold C. Johnson Building is open from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday for those who want to register for training or brush-up work in typing, adding machines, mechanical and electronic calculators, and transcribing machines. Experienced instructors also help trainees in English, basic math, spelling, and push-button telephone techniques.

Muriel Lynch, one of the instructors, said the center has a flexible schedule that allows a trainee to enroll at any time, train at his own pace, and leave when he finds employment or his proficiency reaches a satisfactory level. "We also want Marin businessmen to know we are here and that they can draw on us for qualified clerk-typists and other clerical workers," said Mrs. Lynch.

The center now serves about 180 trainees, including evening and Saturday morning classes. There is a short waiting list of students who want to enroll. Trainees are largely women, in their 20's to the 50's, but the center also has had several men since it opened in downtown San Rafael in September 1973.

During 1974, 144 "graduates" of the Office Occupations Center found jobs, at least 25 of them with the State of California and others with private firms, or other public agencies.

"We have 20 more ready to go to work now," said Mrs. Lynch. "Most of them have children to support,"

The center also has volunteers such as James Stinchcomb of San Anselmo, who counsels on problems such as divorce, marital, and health problems to prepare trainees for effective employment.

$20 Million November Construction

Marin County construction shot up to almost $20 million in November this year, as measured by the value of building permits issued, but the November figure was inflated by a $13.7 million contract awarded by the Golden Gate Bridge District for its Larkspur ferry terminal.

According to figures compiled by the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, permits were issued last month for $19,964,299 worth of construction in Marin County, almost a 300 per cent increase from the $5,021,557 recorded in November of 1973.

The cumulative construction total for the first 11 months of this year was running 24 per cent below last year: A total of $91,134,835 this year compared with $120,069,766 for the first 11 months of 1973.

In November this year, the biggest construction areas (with the exception of Larkspur's $13,781,275) were San Rafael ($2,984,155) and Novato ($1,417,530).

Hub Pub Schedules February Opening At San Anselmo Site

A new tavern called the Hub Pub is scheduled to open next February in San Anselmo at 300 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, in the former Knot Inn location near Tamalpais Theater.

Owners of the Hub Pub will be Raymond J. and Joan B. Eckert and Edwin and Shirley A. Katz of Sleepy Hollow, both in the real estate business. Eckert heads Eckert & Associates Inc. Realtors, and Katz is an associate. They plan to go before the San Anselmo Planning Commission for a use permit next month.

The Hub Pub will serve beer and wine, sandwiches, soups and salads, and will have 10 off-street parking spaces. "We hope to have it open on Feb. 1 and have tentatively set the hours for 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.," said Eckert. "It will be a side business, with a manager and a staff to run it for us."

FRANK J. ROSSI of San Rafael, regional sales manager for Santa Fe Railway in San Francisco, has been elected president of the Pacific Traffic Association for 1975.

The PTA is comprised of representatives of all segments of transportation and related industries.

Rossi Kramers

KRAIG W. KRAMERS of San Rafael was appointed director of corporate planning for Fibreboard Corporation, San Francisco.

He joined Fibreboard in 1972 and was manager of business planning for the company's paperboard products group. Kramers received his degree in physics from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1964 and master of business administration from Stanford Graduate School of Business in 1966.

A NEW TIRE & BRAKE shop is planned sometime next year in San Rafael by Ronald Lammer, owner of Novato Tire & Brake at 7374 Redwood Highway, corner of Grant Avenue.

Lammer said he has not yet decided on the San Rafael location but hopes to have it open by late spring or early summer next year. Lammer has been operating Novato Tire & Brake as a partner with Lytton Schwerin of San Rafael since 1965 and has been sole owner since Schwerin retired in 1972. His second shop, in San Rafael, probably will be called Ron Lammer Tire & Brake.

BENGAL BATHER

An Indian tiger, remnant of an endangered species, takes a dip in the New Delhi zoo. Once plentiful. on the Indian subcontinent, the magnificent Bengal tiger now faces extinction, according to some authorities. Less than 35 years ago India's tiger population was placed at more than 50,000. Today, by official estimate, less than 2,000 remain. The steep decline is said to be almost entirely the result of killing by man.

Blacks, Women And Elderly Fight To Keep Their Jobs

By Ed Townsend
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK, N.Y. – Blacks, women, and the elderly are invoking federal laws to nullify traditional "last hired, first fired" policies by U.S. companies firing workers to combat recession.

Racial and women's groups insist that layoffs of the last hired must not be permitted to wipe out hard-won minority gains. Federal agencies are sympathetic.

Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan advised the city of New York that a plan to reduce its work force in part by retiring 860 employees aged 63 to 65 before their mandatory retirement age would be an illegal impairment of their rights, a violation of a federal law that now prohibits discrimination – in any way – against older workers.

New York officials and representatives of public employee unions had hoped to save jobs of younger workers by the early retirement plan.

Although the statement by the Labor Secretary mentioned only the city plan, the policy applies also to private employers and unions that might "encourage" early retirements in order to minimize layoffs of younger workers. In one recent legal test, the job of a bank employee was saved when an employer's move to retire him early was found to be discriminatory under the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunities Act.

An older worker told to retire before age 65 can refuse – and now can go to court if any effort is made to force him out.

Inflation has made this a more serious issue than it would have been otherwise: because of high living costs, older workers are now less willing to retire early. In the auto industry, where older workers can quit early under advantageous terms, relatively few are choosing to leave plants and payrolls; they say they no longer can afford to do so.

Meanwhile, private employers have been reminded that recession firings must not discri inate unjustly against minority groups, including women, and must not be allowed to create "imbalances" in work forces.

Under federal law, jobs have been forced open for hundreds of blacks and members of other racial minority groups and to women. They went into plants and other employment at the bottom of seniority lists – the last hired, and the most vulnerable in layoffs.

Where there are union contracts, layoffs on a basis of seniority are a legal part of the agreement: unions insist employers are legally obligated to layoff workers who have lowest seniority, no matter who they might be, or what age, race, or sex.

The issue is before a court in New Jersey. Blacks won construction jobs with a public utility after a federal ruling that it had discriminated against minority groups in hiring. The utility agreed to concentrate on hiring from ranks of minorities until it bad brought its ration of blacks and members of other minority groups up to "proper" levels.

However, economic conditions caused the utility to layoff the last-hired from minority ranks.

The minority went to court. If they had not been discriminated against before, spokesmen complained, they would have been employed long enough to accumulate seniority.

Many companies are watching the New Jersey case closely: It could be a precedent for other actions because there are scores of parallels.

If the blacks win their New Jersey case, and their victory stands up in almost certain appeals, other employers could be in for troubls from blacks in damage actions and from unions if seniority rules in contracts have to be circumvented.

Torrey Gets New Contract

The contract of Supt. Robert D. Torrey has been extended through the end of 1975 by the Tamalpais High School District board, following a board review of his performance.

The contract automatically is extended for one year unless the board notifies Torrey prior to Dec. 31 it intends to dismiss him, which it chose not to do following a closed meeting with Torrey Monday, he said.

In the open portion of the meeting, the board awarded a contract of $39,879 to the Valentine Corporation of San Rafael for drainage work at Redwood High School.

Haulers Vote

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Drivers for western Pennsylvania coal hauling truckers today scheduled meetings to vote on whether to remain on the job while contract talks continue or to block coal production by picketing.

Dual Benefits Are Seen From Oil-Eating Bacteria

By DAVID F. SALISBURY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

TEL AVIV, Israel — Can bacteria clean up empty oil tankers and make animal feed at the same time? If so, a continuing problem for oil shippers may be resolved and a new supply of animal feed found in the process.

Eugene Rosenberg and David Gutnick of Tel Aviv University, who have developed a bacterial clean-up method in their laboratory, believe it has promise. They say they are ready to give it a full commercial test.

The bacteria would grow on the oil residue and sludge left in the tanks after a ship has discharged its petroleum cargo. Protein (animal feed) then would be extracted from the bacteria. On return voyages, tankers routinely fill several of their tanks with water for ballast.

The Israeli experiments show that certain strains of oil-eating bacteria can live on this oil/water mixture if it is enriched with nitrogen and phosphorus and has a constant supply of air.

Initially, Drs. Rosenberg and Gutnick thought of using bacteria only to clean up the tank ballast, and this remains their major objective. But they realize that the bacteria contain valuable protein which could be used in animal and chicken feed. So now they see oil tankers as essentially "free" protein factories.

British Petroleum Limited and the Soviet government, among others, have been doing extensive work on feeding bacteria with oil to get cheap protein. However, their work has centered on specially designed factories whose product must sell for a high enough price to cover production costs. Tanker-produced protein could be a low-cost by-product.

Two years ago, the Israelis took the most promising of bacteria for this purpose and tested their idea in a small tanker returning empty from Elat, Israel, to the Persian Gulf. In seven days, the bacteria (a strain called RAG-1) has consumed 50 per cent of the oil residue in the tank.

Since then, the scientists have grown bacteria which will eat as much as 80 per cent of the oil.

These new strains, they estimate, can clean out a supertanker in two to three days. It should be possible to grow 700 tons of protein per trip. However, Dr. Rosenberg admits that the scientists have not yet analyzed their bacteria for its nutritional balance, an important factor in marketability.

Dr. Rosenberg notes that several tanker explosions have been traced to the present method of cleaning. This involved spraying the sides of the empty tanks with water under high pressures. This can create static electricity which has triggered some major explosions.

After the hydraulic treatment, workers must go down into the tanks, some the size of high-rise buildings, scrub down the sides, and remove the black sludge in buckets. The operation has been known to take as long as 30 days, says Dr. Rosenberg.

Egypt Rebuilds Suez Despite War Threat

CAIRO (UPI) — Egypt is pushing ahead with rebuilding of its war-shattered cities along the Suez Canal despite talk of a fifth Arab-Israeli war that could set back reconstruction by many months and cost close to $1 billion.

Ismail Osman, technical director of Egypt's Housing and Reconstruction Ministry, said that so far more than $500 million has been sunk into the ambitious task of restoring the cities of Port Said, Ismailia and Suez to the state they were in before the June 1967 war. Millions more will be spent in the coming months, he said.

In Suez City, which suffered the greatest damage, brand new structures rise clean and still unused next to the war-wrecked buildings whose duncolored walls are pocked with bullet holes. Much work still remains to be done.

In Port Said and Ismailia, however, daily construction reports indicate close to 80 per cent of major projects completed. Workmen already have cleared away the rubble of bomb and shell damage, set up webs of scaffolding and laid foundations on practically all building sites. Thousands of new housing units gleam in the desert sun with the spit and polish of months of manual labor.

But should another war erupt, and these cities sustain at least the same damage caused in the 1967 and 1973 conflicts and the battles in between, the accomplishments made in five months of work would be wiped out, Osman said in an interview.

"Maybe we can defend our areas, otherwise we'd be down to zero," he said.

"The work is expanding and increasing every day," Osman said. "Our responsibility is not war but the construction of the area. We leave the responsibility of war to the military."

Osman said construction and repopulation efforts are going on rapidly with an eye toward Dec. 31 as the date when all three cities will be entirely repaired and all refugees back home.

In 6½ years of warfare, Suez City on the Red Sea suffered 80 per cent destruction by bombs, rockets, artillery and small-arms fire. All but a few of the 268,000 persons who lived there left for safer ground. Nearby Port Tewfik was destroyed and evacuated and plans call for no reconstruction work there until next year.

Ismailia, at the top of Lake Timsah halfway through the 103-mile waterway, escaped with only 25 per cent damage and an almost complete exodus of its 175,000 inhabitants, all of whom have been repatriated, Osman said.

Port Said and its suburbs on the Mediterranean Sea lost 20 to 30 per cent of their buildings.

The 310,000 persons who lived there before the wars have now gone hooe, he said.

Overall, Osman said, 980,000 persons now live in the major population centers, 112,000 less than in June 1967.

Egypt does not intend to stop with the mere restoration of the area. Long-range plans, overseen by a panel of international consultants, call for major improvements in the area and introduction of elaborate telecommunication and transportation networks, tax-free working zones, a stable infrastructure and all the amenities that would attract the world's industrial giants to set up shop there over the next 25 years.

"This area has special potential," Osman said. "You don't have the good weather elsewhere like we have the year around. You don't have all the cheap and efficient labor, and I think the location geographically is tremendous."

Housing and Reconstruction Minister Osman Ahmed Osman, the builder of the Aswan High Dam and overseer of the canal building projects, predicts it will take five more years and cost Egypt $5.9 billion to raise the area completely from the ashes of war, change parts of it into garden tourist centers and turn other sectors into industrial zones.

Arabs Arms Race Is Speeding Up

By JOHN K. COOLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BEIRUT, Lebanon — With the shadow of a possible fifth Arab-Israeli war looming larger, defense has become a major priority in the main Arab states.

Three factors have prompted the region's governments to focus attention on arms: Israeli-Palestinian hostilities involving Lebanon; reports of Israeli, Egyptian, and Syrian arms buildups; and the sharpening Iraq-Iran conflict.

Even Lebanon is seeking outside Arab arms supplies. This country has traditionally rejected them and preferred to rely on big powers like France and the United States for protection.

Some of the developments of the Arab defense scene in recent days are these:

Egypt has begun to equip its air force with French-made Mirage aircraft. Six of the 36 Mirage aircraft were earlier ordered by Saudi Arabia, which is apparently buying arms for Egypt.

President Sadat has said that Soviet arms and aircraft supplies to Egypt ceased after the October 1973 war, and that he hopes they will resume after Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev visits Cairo in January.

The Israeli government reported that Syria has received large quantities of new Soviet equipment, including 300 combat aircraft, which more than made up for losses in the October 1973 war and from short-range and medium-range missiles.

High Jordanian sources in Amman said that Jordan would like to buy at least four battalions of U.S. Hawk anti-aircraft missiles, like those supplied to Saudi-Arabia, Israel, and Iran. Each batallion includes 36 missiles but costs upward of $75 million apiece, far beyond the capacity of Jordan's budget.

Iraq is augmenting its large armory of Soviet equipment, heavily committed against northern Iraq's Kurds, with new purchases of French missiles, armored vehicles, gunboats, and other equipment. Eight of Iraq's 12 divisions, nearly 100,000 men, are fighting the Kurds.

A Retired Teacher Now Aids The Ailing

NEW YORK (UPI) — A dedicated schoolteacher, who retired after 50 years service only because she had to is back in the classroom these days, teaching children who are ill or injured.

Elizabeth Castellano, 73, volunteers three mornings a week at the PS 401 classroom at Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn.

"The worst thing for a person my age is to sit still and do nothing," says Miss Castellano. Her coworkers say the gray-haired educator dresses and acts as she did 30 years ago and takes her own advice about staying active.

"He didn't look like the fourth grader I knew 25 years ago," she says, "but he recognized me."

Miss Castellano might be working out a math problem with a nine-year-old victim of a congenital bone disease one day and be sharing a picture book with a young child hooked up to an artificial kidney machine the next.

She finds that the children in the hospital do just about as well as more fortunate youngsters. She worries more about today's parents than about their offspring.

"Even though the children are ill, they're pretty much up to grade," she says. "Actually, children —sick or well —are pretty much the same as they've always been.

"But parents —they've changed. In years past, parents usually cooperated with teachers. If you complained about a child, you could count on the parents to work with you to resolve the difficulty. Today, that kind of parent is more the rarity than the rule."

Miss Castellano also is concerned about modern teaching methods.

"Take the new math," she says. "There's a time when a child needs to know that nine eights are 72, even if he doesn't know why. Later on, when he's ready to understand it, you can explain.

"Today, they're letting children decide for themselves what their programs should be. Well, I don't think any 11-year-old knows what he needs. But then, I guess I'm old-fashioned."

Although Miss Castellano serves as a volunteer, she has not signed up with the hospital's Office of Volunteer Services. She forgoes the free lunches and insurance this would entitle her to because she does not want to be transferred to another area of the hospital. Her advice to other people her age is, "Keep yourself busy!"

Christmas Was To Have Been Just Another Lonely Night...

DENVER (UPI) — It was Christmas night, but for 17-year-old Marty Cox it was just another lonely night in his Colorado General Hospital room.

"Everything was set for me to go home," said Marty, one of the world's longest surviving liver transplants. "But then this fever came up and everything had to be canceled."

For the second straight year, Marty was unable to go home to Nova, Ohio, for Christmas. And his family — his father is an automobile assembly line worker — couldn't afford to come see Marty.

Then, shortly after 8 p.m., the nurse came into Marty's room, put him in a wheelchair and wheeled him into the visitors room.

After reading about the plight of the Cox family in a Denver newspaper, an Englewood, Colo., businessman, who did not want to be identified, put up $577 for the round trip air fare for the three, a local motel provided them rooms for four days and the hospital staff took up a collection for their meals.

"When we woke up Christmas morning we had no idea all this was going to happen," said Mrs. Cox. "This is the nicest Christmas present we ever had."

"He had asked us to keep them until he could come home for a Christmas and open them," said Mrs. Cox, whose son had the liver operation in 1969 and has since undergone more than a dozen operations. "But we decided not to wait any longer. When we heard about coming here, we packed them all up."

WAREHOUSE LIQUIDATION SALE

Must Liquidate $100,000.00

20% to 50% OFF Most Merchandise . . .

Due to ever increasing costs of carrying a large inventory, higher interest rates, California inventory tax, warehouse rent, insurance and handling, we have decided not to enter into a new lease at our present large warehouse location. We must reduce about ½ of our on-hand inventory. For better handling and warehousing we are relocating to a smaller warehouse. We have gone through our store and warehouse and have taken large markdowns on the majority of stock.
